The places of business, with few exceptions, were closed, and our people seemed to say, by their actions, "we are thankful," And thus it should be, for we, as a nation, have much for which to thank God. We should be stock is constituted of a greater variety of articles thankful that thus far, through the threaten- than we have ever before seen in a country store .ed storm of Secession, Disunion, civil war Their Advertisement appears in to day's paper. and bloodshed, our country has yet been spared, and may still be called the United States; that we are still in the enjoyment of Liberty, civil and religious. In it all, we eannot but see the same hand which guided our forefathers in their Revolutionary strug gles -- the same hand which has so long preserved our confederacy. We should be thankful for National Health. No dread pestilence has swept over our land, carrying off thousands of our fellow beings. We should be thankful for a plenteous harvest. And Oh! what a hervest we have had. The inhabitants of the world might feed upon our well-filled granaries to-day. While Europe watched with anxious eye the growth of her slowly ripening fields, and drought and weewil threatened her nacent shocks, our season has been, under the blessing of God, a complete success, ending in the gathering of an abundance of the necessaries of life. thankfulness. While other powers have been shaken and overthrown by the ravages of war, we have been enjoying peace, happiness, and prosperity. Indeed, for everything joyed within our borders is another cause for we enjoy, we ought to be thankful to God, and we are glad that our people so univereally acknowledge the great source of their blessings by observing annually a day of thanksgiving and praise.

Religious services were held in the different Churches of our town. In the morning, Rev. James Linn, p stor of the Presbyterian Church, had Livine service, and a collection was taken up for the relief of the Syrian Christians. In the afternoon, Rev. George Fields preached in the Episcopal Church, and a collection was lifted for the benefit of the sufferers in Kansas. In the evening, Rev. Thos. Sherlock, of the M. E. Church, preached a thanksgiving sermon, which we think the best sermon of the kind to which we ever listened. The day passed of as quin oily as the Sabbath.

THE NEW JAIL.

The Grand Jury of the August term of Court decided favorably to the building of a new Jail, The Law, on this point, rendering it necessary that two successive Juries shol'd decide favorably to such improvements, the Grand Jury of the November term took up the Jail question, and, after visiting the "old fabrie" and discussing the question at length, they decided against erecting a new building by a vote of eight for, and twelve

The principal objection urged against the bili was, the heavy debt which already rests upon the County, incurred by the building of the new Court House.
