The Centre Democrat. Report in Gen, Fremont's Case. The Adjutant-General's Observations in Missouri.

Secretary Cameron's Visit to Kentucky and Indiana.

HARRISBURG, PA., Oct. 19, 1861. GENERAL: When I did myself the honor to ask you to accompany me on my Western tour, it was with a view of availing myself of your experience as Adjutant General of the Army. Finding that the result of my investigation might (as I at first appreinvestigation might (as 1 at first appre-hended) have an important effect, not only upon the army of the West, but upon the army of the whole country, I requested you to take full notes upon all points connected with the object of my visit. As you inform Pair. me that you have carefully complied with my wish, I now respectfully request you to submit your report as early as practicable, in order that the President may be correctly advised as to the administration of affair connected with the army of the West. Very respectfully, your obedient servant, SIMON CAMERON.

Secretary of War. Brig. Gen. L. Tuonas, Adit. Gen. U. S. A. WASDINGTON, Oct. 21, 1861. Sig : I have the honor to submit the re port requested in your letter of the 19th

We arrived at St. Louis, as you are aware, at 24 a. m., Oct. 11. After break-fast, rode to Benton Barracks, above the On the street leading to camp passed city. a small field work in course of construction. Found the camp of great extent, with extensive quarters, constructed of rough boards. Much has been said of the large sums expended in their erection; but some one mentioned that Gen. McKinstry, principal Quartermaster, who made the dishurse-ments, gave the cost as $15,000. If so, it was judicious. The Total cost should be ascertained. Gen. Curtis was in command Force present, 140 officers, 3,338 men, wrin-cipally detachments, except the First Iowa cavalry-34 officers, 904 men-having horses, but without equipments.

Gen. Curtis said of General Fremont that he found no difficulty in getting access to him, and when he presented business con-nected with his command, it was attended to. Gen. Fremont, however, never con-sulted him on military affairs, nor informed him of his -plans. Gen. Curtis remarked that while he would go with freedom to Gen. Scott and express his opinions, he would not Scott and express ins opinions, newould not dare to do so to General Fremont. He deemed Gen. Fremont unequal to the comm mand of an army, and said that he was no more bound by law than by the winds. He considered him to be unequal to the command of the army in Missouri.

After dinner, rode to the Arsenal below the city : Capt Callender in charge. Gar-rison, for its protection, under Maj, Granger, Third Cavalry. But very few arms on hand; a number of heavy guns designed for gun-boats and morter boats. The Captain is engaged in making ammunition. He said he had heard that some person had a contract for making the carriages for these guns; that if so, that he knew nothing of it, and that it was entirely irregular, he being the proper officer to attend to such work. This, in my opinion, requires investigation. --He expected soon to receive funds, and desired them for current purposes i was fearful however that they might be diverted to other payments.

Visited a large hospital not far distant from the arsenal, in charge of Assistant Surgeon Bailey, U. S. A. It was filled with patients, mostly doing well. Hospital in fine order, and a credit to the service. The Doctor had an efficient corps of assistants from the Volunteer service, and in addition a number of Sisters of Charity as nurses, God bless these pure and disinterested

Col. Andrews, Chief Paymaster, called on me and represented irregularities in the Pay Department, and desired instructions from the Secretary for his Government, tating that he was required to make pay ment and transfers of money contrary to law and regulations. Once, objecting to what he conceived an improper payment, he was threatened with confinement by a file of soldiers. He exhibited an order the transfer of $100,000 to the Quarterthe transfer of $100,000 to the Quarter-master's Department, which was irregular. Exhibited abstracts of payment by one Pay-master, (Major Felizer) to 42 persons ap-pointed by Gen. Fremont, viz: 1 Colonel, 3 Majors, 9 Captains, 151 Lieutenants, 11 2d Lieutenants, 1 Surgeon, 3 Assistant Sur-geons; total 42. Nineteen of these have appointments as Engineers, are entitled to Cavalry pay. A second abstract of pay-ments was furnished, but not youched for as reliable, as the Paymaster was sick. It is only given to show the excess of officers of rank appointed to the Major General Body Guard of only 300 men, the commander being a Colonel, &c. the whole number of irregular appointer, ec. the whole further of irregular appointents made by Gen. Fremont, was said by Col. Andrews to be nearly 200. The following is a copy of one these appointment. "HEADQUABTERS WEATERN DEPARTMENT,] St. Louis, Aug. 28, 1861.] "SIR :---You are hereby appointed captain of cavalry, to be employed in the Land Transportation Department, and will report

"HEADQUARTERS WESTERN DEPARTMENT,] Camp Lillis, Oct. 2, 1861. "Sir:-I am requested by the commander General to authorize Col. Degraf to take any hay that has been contracted for by the vernment, his receipt for the same being all the voucher you require.

"Respectfully yours, "LEONIDAS HASKELL,

"Captain and A. D. C." What does this mean? Contractors deliver forage direct to Quartermasters, who issue the same. But here another party steps in, and for the purpose, if a contractor or the co-partner of one, of filling his own contractor. It is difficult to suppose that this double transaction is done without a consideration. The accounts in this case should be examined, and the price paid to Degraf be compared with that paid to the contractors, whose forage was seized. This same Capt. Haskell, A. D. C., was a contractor for mules. He desired Capt. Turn-ley to receive his animals, "good, bad, and indifferent," as Capt. Turnley said. This he would not do, but stated his prices for the different classes of mules, "wheel," "lead," &c. Besides, he had more mules than he could possibly send to the army. Notwithstanding all this, he received an order to inspect and receive Mr. Haskell's mules rapidly as possible. Capt. Turnley very soon after received an order from Gen. nont to leave St. Louis and go into the interior of Missouri.

interior of Missouri. By directions of Gen. Meigs, advertise-ments were published for proposals to furnish grain and hay, and contracts were subsequently made for specific sums—28 cents per bushel for corn, 30 cents for oats, and $18 95 cents per ton for hay. In face of this, another party in St. Louis, Baird, or Baird & Palmer (Palmer being of the old firm in Californiv, Palmer, Cook & Co., Gen. Fremont's genetis in that State) were di-Fremont's agents in that State.) were di rected to send to Jefferson Gity, where hay and corn abound, as fast as possible, 100,000 bushels of cats, with a corresponding amount of hay, at 33 cents per bushel for the grain, and $19 per ton for hay. Captain Edward M. Davis, a member of his staff, received a contrast by the direct order of General Fremont for blankets. They were examined by a board of army officers, consisting of Captain Hendershott, Fourth Artillery; Captain Harris, Commissary of Subsistence, and Captain Tarnley, Assistant Quartermaster. The blankets were found to be rotten and worthless. Notwithstanding this decision, they were purchased and given to the sick and wound-ed soldiers at the hospital.

Among the supplies sent by General Fremont to the army now in field may be enu-merated 500 half barrels, to carry water in a country where water is abundant, and 500 tons of ice. We examined the barracks in course of nstruction in St. Louis, near and around the private house occupied by him as quar-ters-the Brant house, which, by the by, is rented for $6,000 per annum. These bar-racks have brick foundations and brick outer walls, weatherboarded, and are sufficient as quarters and stables for 1,000 men. Like those of Camp Centon, these barracks were built by contract on published proposals. They are certainly more expensive and more permanent than the quarters a temporary army would require, and the precise cost of them, though difficult to be got at, should be ascertained. A pontoon bridge has been erected

A pontion bridge has been erected across the Chio river hy Gen. Fremont, at Paducah. A ferry hoat, in a region where such boats are readily procured, would be just as efficient and much less expensive.

Contracts, it will be seen, were given to individuals without resorting to advertisements for bids, as is required by the law and ments for block, as is required by the law and the army regulations. Having received an intimation from anoth-er quarter of an impropriety, I called on Captain McKeever, A. A. G., for the facts, which he gave me as follows: One week after the receipt of the President's order modifying General Fremont's proclamation relation of the factor for the factor relative to the emancipation of slaves, Gen. Fremont, by note to Captain McKeever, required him to have 200 copies of the orig-

and the troops were exposed to it all night ; were without food for twenty-four hours; and when food was received the beef was found to be spoiled. Gen. Hunter stated to me that he had just received a written report from one of the Colonels, informing him that but twenty out of a hundred of his guns would go off. These were the gans procured by Gen. Fre-mont in Europe. I will here state that Gen. Sherman, at Louisville, made to me a similar comblaint of the great inferiority of these European arms. He had given the men orders to file down the nipples. In conversation with Col. Swords, Assistant Quartermaster General at Louisville, just from California, he stated that Mr. Selover, who was in Europe with Fremont, wrote to some friend in San Frantisco that his share of the profits of the purchase of these arms was $30.000

When Gen. Hunter received, at Jefferson City, orders to march to Tipton, he was di-rected to take 41 wagons with him, when he had only 40 mules, which fact had been duly reported to headquarters. At this time, Col. Stevenson, of the Seventh Misson-i reciment mer without Con ri regiment, was, without Gen. Hunter's knowledge, taken from him, leaving him, when under marching orders, with only one regiment at Jefferson City fit to take the field Gen. Hunter also showed me the order for marching to Durock Ferny, dated at Tipton. October 10th, which he did not receive until the 12th. He also showed me his reply, proving that it was impossible for him to comply with the order to march. This orwas changed to one requiring him to make a single day's march. When Gen. Pope received his order to march at Georgetown, twenty-five miles distant, he wrote back to Gen. Hunter a let-ter, which I read. It set forth the utter impossibility of his moving for the want of transportation and supplies, and asked whether Gen. Fremont could mean what he had written. All of the foregoing facts go to show the want of military foresight on the part of Gen. Fremont in directing the necessary means for putting into, and maintaining in the field, the forces under his command.

Gen. Hunter also stated that although the second in command, he never was consulted by Gen. Fremont, and never knew anything of his intentions. Such a parallel I will venture to assert, cannot be found in the annals of military warfare. I have also been informed that there is not a Missourian on his staff-not a man acquainted person-ally with the topography and physical charactapistics of the country or its people. The failure of Gen. Fremont to reinforce Gen. Lyon demands notice. Gen. Fremout arrived at St. Louis on the 26th of July, called there from New York by a telegraphic despatch stating that Gen. Lyon was threatened with destruction by 30,000 rebels. At this time Gen. Pope bad nine regiments in North Missouri, waere the rebels had em-bodied force. The Confederate forces in the State were those under Price and Md-Culloch, near Springfield in Southwest Missouri, and those under Pillow, Jeff. Thompson, and Hardee, in Southeast Missouri.— Two regiments held Rolla, near the terminus of the Southwestern branch of the Pacific Bailroad, while Jefferson City, Booneville, Lexington and Kansas City had each a gar-ison of 300 or 400 men behind intreachments. Cairo and Bird's Point, were fortified, and defended with heavy artillery. (Pilot Knob and Cape Girardeau were fortified, after Gen. Fremont's arrival) All these places could be reinforced by railroad and river from St. Louis and the Northwestern States, and could nold out until reinforced, even if attacked by superior forces. On his arrival in St. Louis, Gen. Fremon vas met by Capt. Cavender, First Missouri. and Major Farror, aid decamp to Gen. Lyon with statements from the latter, and requests for reinforcements; Major Phelps, M. C., from Springfield, Dr. M. der, of Omaha, and nany other citizens, having ample means of formation, made the same representations, and urged the setding of reinforcements.-To Gov. Gamble, General Fremont said. Gen. Lyon is as strong as any other officer is line." He failed to strengthen Lyon and the result, as is well known, was the defeat of that gallant officer. The two regi-ments at Rolla should have been pushed for-ward, and the whole of Pope's nine regiments brought by rail to St. Louis and Rolla. and thence sent to Lyon's force. Any other General in such an emergency would have pursued the same obvious course. The battle of Springfield (or more strictly Wilson Creek)-one of the most desperate ever fought on this continent -took place August 10th, when the brave Lyon fell, and of the army to distribute the funds, and the troops borne down by great superior numbers were obliged to fall back, but were not trapsfer them to irresponsible agents -- in other words, those who do not hold com missions from the President, and are not un Gen. The six regiments accomplished nothing. They were ot ordered to advance and cover the retreat of Lyon's army, although it was supposed in St. Louis that Price and McCulloch were following it, and that Hardee bad moved up to cut off his retreat on the Gasconade. An advance of three regiments would have enabled the army to retrace its steps, and to beat the forces of Price and Mauguloch so badly that they would have been unable to follow our force on their retreat. It is said that every officer in Lyon's army expected to mest reinforcements, and to return with them, and drive Price and McGulloch from 9,750 General Hunter arrived at St. Louis from Chicago, called thither on a suggestion from Washington as an adviser. Gen. Fremont submitted to him for consideration and ad-vice, a paper called " Dispositions for retak-38,789 ing Springfield." It sets out with a stra-getical point of that wide elevation which separates the waters of the Qaage from those of the Arkansas, the key to the whole southwestern Missouri, commandi g an area of nearly 60.000 mil-s. Why did this not em ter the brain of the Major General before the fall of Lyon, and he strained every nerve to hold that important key in his posession ? Gen. Hunter, in answer to the paper, re-plied, "Why march on Springfield, where there is no enemy and nothing to take? Let me rather take the troops and proceed to Legington, in which direction Price was marching, and where he expected to be join-d by 40 000 robes. Instead of this however merather take the troops and proceed to Lexington, in which direction Price was marching, and where he expected to be join-d by 40.000 rebels. Instead of this he was sent to Rolla, without instructions, and re-mained there until ordered to Jefferson City, still without instructions, and thence to Tip-ton, where we found him. In regard to the contracts. Without an Th regard to the contracts. Without an examination of the accounts it will be diffi-cult to arrive at the facts. It is the ex-pressed, belief of many intelligent gentle-men in St. Louis that Gen. Fremont has men in St. Louis that Gen. Fremont has around him and his staff, persons directly and indirectly concerned in furnishing sup-plies. The following is a copy of a letter signed by Leonidas Haskell, Captain and A. D. C. He though, on Gen. Fremont's staff, is said to be a contractor for hay, and forage and mules. The person named in his note, Col. Degraf, is his partner.

inal Proclamation and Address to the army of the same date, printed and sent immedi-ately to Ironton, for the use of Major Garrett, of the Indiana Cavalry, for distribution through the country. Capt. McKeever had the copies printed and delivered. Fremont's order in this matter was as follows -"Adjutant General will have 200 copies of Proclamation of Commander General, da ted 30th of August, together with Address to the army of she same date, sent immedi-ately to Ironton, for the use of Maj. Garrett, ately to ironton, for the use of Maj. Garrett, Indiana cavalry. Major Garrett will dis-tribute it through the country.

"Sept. 23. 1861. J. C. F., Com. Gen." We left St. Louis Oct. 2, for Gen. Fremont's headquarters, 2t Tipton, 160 miles distant, passing the night at Jefferson City, the capital of Missouri, 125 miles from St. Louis. General Price was in command of the place, with a force of 1,200 men. The Eighth Iowa was there, en route for Tipton. At this place there were accumulated a large quantity of forage, landed from steambarts and other means of transportation; also, the half-barrels for carrying the wa-ter, and a number of mules, which Captain Turnley said he could not get forward; hav-ing no control over the transportation by railroad.

We arrived in Tipton at 9 A. M., of the 13th. The Secretary of War was called on by Gen, Fremont, and, upon his invita-13th. tion, accompanied him to Syracuse, five miles distant, to review Gen. McKinstry's division, about 8,000 strong. This body of troops is said to be the best equipped and best supplied of the whole army. They certainly are, as far as means of transportation are o At Tipton, beside Gen. Fremont and staff, his body guard, &c., I found a part of Gen. Hunter's First Division and Gen. Ashboth's Fourth Division.

The force designed to act against Price consists of five divisions, as follows ; 1st Division Hunter's at Tipton Pope's at Georgetown 9,220 Sigel's "Sedalia 7,980 Ashboth's "Tipton 6,451 McKintry's "Syracuse 5,318 3d 4th

Hunter, second in command, and conversed freely with him. He stated that there was great confusion, and that Gen, Fremont was utterly incompetent; that his own division was greatly scattered, and the force there present defective in many ra-spects; that he himself required one hun-dred wagons, but that he was under orders to march that day, and some of his troops were already drawn out on the road. His indifferent arms, but no equipments. The men had to carry their eartridges in their men had to carry their eartridges in their vest pockets—consequently on their first day's march from Jefferson City, in a heavy rain which fell, the cartridges were destroy-ed. This march to Tipton (35 miles) was made on a mud road, heavy and mirry with rains, and parallel to the railroad, and but a little distance from it. The troops were di-rected by Gen. Fremont to march without provisions of knowsche provisions or knapsacks, and without trans-portation. A violent rain storm came up,

In view of the heavy sums due, especially in the Quarter Master's Department in this city, amounting to some $4,500.000 it is important that the money, which may now be in the hands of the disbursing officers, or be received by them, be applied to the current expenses of your army in Missionri, and these debts to remain unpaid until they can be properly examined and sent to Washington for settlement; the disbursing officers

Instructions were previously given (Oct. 12) to the Hon. James Craig to raise a regiment at St. Joseph, Mo. We left St. Louis Oct 14, and arrived at Indianapolis in the evning. Remained at In-dianapolis Oct. 15, and conversed freely with Gov. Morton. We found that the State of Indiana had come nobly up to the work of suppressing rebellion. Fifty-five regiments, with several batteries of artillery, had been raised and equipped-a larger number of troops in proportion to population than any other State has sent into the field. The best spirit prevailed, and it was manifest that additional troops could readily be raised. The
