Window shading and fixtures at J. C. Miller & Co's. Mr. Yarnell, of Benner township, died on Tuesday last week. The Millheim Journal can now talk about its town council. John Lyon has resumed his former position as bookkeeper at Valentines stores. Mr. Rhul, of Snow Shoe, we are informed, will occupy the Potter's Mills hotel after April 1. Mr. Hartzell, formerly of the Bush House, departed for Bethlehem last Monday morning. Save an agent's profit by buying of Bunnell & Aikens, corner Bishop and Allegheny streets. Every person in this town, having sufficient strength, it is thought, will "move" on next Tuesday. C. L. Gramley, of Rebersburg, will open his select school on Tuesday, April 15, to continue ten weeks. Three wagons opened the curb-stone market season last Saturday morning at the usual place in the Diamond. On and after this date, overcoats will be sold at cost at Newman's Eagle Clothing Hall. Remember this. Mr. A. J. Cruse, the popular tobacconist, departed Saturday morning for a week's visit to Philadelphia and Baltimore. Several persons were immersed at Marsh Creek, last Sunday morning, by Rev. Biggert, of the Baptist church, this place. John C. Miller & Co., at "The Model Book Store," have on hand the largest variety of wall paper ever brought to Bellefonte. We see it stated that the famous Clearfield Turner murder trial will come up again in Lock Haven about the last week in April. A beautiful original poem entitled "The Angels' Track," intended for this page, has been unavoidably crowded on to the fourth page. Miss Hilda Baker, a lady of some elocutionary powers, from Syracuse, N. Y., recently gave an entertainment of reading and recitation at Howard recently. To ladies—Send to Bunnell & Aikens for your patterns. $500 worth of Buttrick's and $500 worth Mme. Demorest's always on hand. Catalogues free. At the music store you can buy a new Domestic sewing machine of Bunnell & Aikens, corner of Bishop and Allegheny streets, for $30. Reason—no agents. Notwithstanding the fact that the rafting season commenced last week, the Clearfield county court convened as usual with his Honor Judge Orvis on the bench. The next total eclipse of the sun will, of course, occur next Tuesday between 12 A. M. and 1 P. M., visible throughout Bellefonte. Get your smoked glass ready. The temperance people are invited to assemble in convention at Harrisburg on April 23 and 24. Something of the kind is positively needed to counteract the influence of the Legislature. It is not often we have such welcome visitors as was Adam Voheda, of Zion, who dropped in upon us about 2 o'clock last Thursday afternoon. He is an old and much-valued friend. People who enjoy first-class funerals or want their children to grow up to either get killed on the railroad or become public lecturers have only to remove to Altoona and their wishes will be gratified. The popular price for weekly papers is $1.60 per annum. The Valley Spirit, of Chambersburg, has yielded to the general demand and now announces that its subscription has been reduced to that price. Mrs. Bigony, the lady of the genial clerk at the Bush House, will join her husband in a couple of weeks. She is an invalid, and it is hoped that the invigorating air of our Bellefonte summers will do much towards restoring her health. The great rush still continues at the grocery store of S. A. Brew & Son. People will always go where the best goods are kept, and it has been proved by experience, that at no store do the goods give such general satisfaction as those purchased from this model grocery store. Rev. John Hewitt preached last Sunday from the miracle contained in the 6th chapter of John of the five loaves and two small fishes, or the "Food of the Spirit." In the evening his text was from the same miracle, viz., gathering up the twelve baskets of fragments, or "Economy." The recent snows and rains have rendered many of the roads leading to town almost impassable. This does not deter the people from the country in coming, however, as they do not wish to miss the rare opportunity now offered by J. Newman, Jr., of purchasing the best of men's and boy's clothing at such reasonable rates. We call attention to the public sale of the household and personal property of Mr. Wm. V. Hughes, at his late residence on Linn street, this morning, March 27, at ten o'clock, A.M. A splendid lot of household furniture, bed room sets, hand-some carpets and all kinds of first-class house furnishings will be sold. As the terms of sale are very easy as to time we suppose there will be plenty of bargains.

A man by the name of "Harris," residing in Lewisburg, has fallen heir to $15,000. We would be willing to "fall" once every day if we could always tumble into such a lucky streak of fortune as that. While standing on a chair and engaged in the occupation of white-washing, on Friday the 14th, Mrs. Rachel Halderman, of Oak Hall, had the misfortune to fall from the chair and break one of her arms. The injured lady is a sister of Mrs. Ruth Boalich, of this place, and an aunt of Mrs. John Rote. If you are informed in a confidential manner, next Tuesday, that a certain person desires to see you, that there is a hole in your coat, or that there is a spider crawling on the back of your neck, do not believe the assertion. Remember, it is All Fool's Day, which means that any one who gets a chance has a right to make one of you. The man who, in these times, says to the people who are in need of comfortable clothing, "Be ye clothed," and then follows up his advice by providing the wherewithal to do this, is truly a philanthropist. This J. Newman, Jr., actually does at his clothing store on Allegheny street, of which fact all who will call at his store may be convinced. During the coming summer Bellefonte will have to submit to the temporary absence of a worthy citizen, Mr. Levi Stroube. He left town on Monday morning last for Altoona and will be engaged in a planing mill in that place. His family, however, will remain here. We are sorry he is gone, but glad that he has found the employment which he so anxiously sought. On the authority of "Anon," who writes from Rebersburg to the Millheim Journal, we see that a company from Lewisburg have purchased, from Melchior Bierly, thirty acres of timber land about one mile south-west of Rebersburg, on which they will erect a steam saw mill. The purchase price was $3,750. Such an enterprise will doubtless be a welcome visitor to that part of the county. Every day a large number of new guests register at the Bush House. Mr. Hoppes, the proprietor, is the most genial of landlords, while the new clerk, Mr. Penn Bigony, understands the art of welcoming strangers as very few hotel clerks do. He has had extended experience in various large hotels throughout the country, and the Bush House, reaping the benefit of this, will certainly prosper under the regime of these two veterans at the business. We are quite sorry that in about a week Mr. Hamilton Otto will consider it to his advantage to pull up stakes and depart for other regions of business. He has won golden opinions from all since coming to this place, has captured one of our pretty young ladies, and next week threatens to depart for Milton to there engage in the tobacco business. There are too many vendors of the weed in Bellefonte for millions to be made at the business, and he hopes to do better at that place, which we hope will be the case. The Centre Hall Reporter raises the frightful question as to whether the town of Aaronsburg really belongs to the inhabitants of the place who now claim peaceable possession, or to the heirs of one Aaron Levy, an Israelite, who are now searching through the records of Northumberland county for the proofs that will establish their claim, which, they say, was willed to them by the paternal Levy. The Reporter thinks, however, that there is no reason for the present incumbents to be apprehensive of an adverse result. The hills around Bellefonte, which have for three months been locked in snow and ice, are free once more and will soon exhibit their joy by bringing forth bright spring-time beauty. These bands of snow and ice have yielded to the gentle beams of a welcome sun, and this apparently weak instrument has done more than all the power of man could accomplish in again restoring beauty to the coming year. The apprehended danger of great disease, of terrible floods and of foreboding imaginary evils have been mercifully removed from us, and as the season advances the water will in all probability be no higher than is desirable for successful lumber operations. These almost miraculous blessings should assuredly have the effect on man of also unlocking the icy bands and fetters that have been oppressing him and his heart should go out even as nature in spontaneous thankfulness and praises for such benedictions and glorious beauty. The Centre Hall Reporter asks for information on a very simple question, which we are happy to give. It says: "What would the quiet people of Aaronsburg say, to wake up one morning and find themselves gobbled up by the heirs of Aaron Levy?" Our dear and Kurt(eous) friend, in the sad event which you have described, we think that the quiet people of that town would be so unusually silent as to be beyond saying anything. It would have been more to the point if you had asked what the heirs of the said Aaron would say. They would be the greatest sufferers and would probably be like the individual who exclaimed in agony: "It's that confounded cucumber I've eat and can't digest." If you would like to "put yourself in his place," just try to swallow one of the editorials which emanate from over Haupt's tin shop.

There is one article of household furniture that deserves special attention in its manufacture, and which it seems has received it, for in the last few years it has undergone wonderful development in mechanical skill. That article is the kitchen stove. We have had the pleasure of examining two beautiful samples of cook-stoves at the store of Wilson, McFarlane & Co., and in their construction we think perfection of arrangement and beauty of design have been achieved. We allude to the Highland Queen and the Regulator. It will pay those who are interested in cook stoves to give these specimens a thorough examination. Here goes another party to the West. They started last Tuesday afternoon. If it continues this way very long it will be easier to give the names of those who remain: Ira Lawver, Geo. Hoy, Wm. Hoy and James Dunlap, to Topeka, Kas.; J. J. Piper and family, to Junction City, Kas.; Joseph Holder and family, to Abilene, Kas.; A. K. Daugherty and J. D. Rappo to Kansas City; Geo. Hoover and family, to Salina, Kas.; Mary Long and Lydia Frank, to Beloit, Kas.; Ellen Guiswite, to Salina, Kas.; Henry Stieckler, to St. Louis; Abraham Best and family, to Lindsey, Ottowa county, Kas.; Abraham, William and Mrs. Armstrong, to Severance, Kas. The Bush House expects to be filled with city guests during the summer. Three letters of inquiry were received on Tuesday last from parties in Baltimore and other cities, and as few places can offer more attractions, they will probably conclude to make Bellefonte their summer home. The Altoona Tribune, on Monday, contained the following interesting local reminiscence: "Mr. E. M. Bingham, now 71 years old, in 1822 carried the mail on horseback from Blair's Gap, three miles above the foot of Ten, near Duncanville, to Bellefonte. The route was through Warriorsmark and Half Moon valleys. He knew Lewis and Connelly, the celebrated robbers, personally, and saw them both after they had been taken prisoners. He also knew Peter Deisel, the man who shot Lewis in the arm—a wound that terminated fatally. Mr. Bingham is still hale and hearty, and with all his years quite sprightly." Mr. William R. Jenkins, of the firm of W. P. Duncan & Co., has been inventing a continuous rolling mill, which is said to be the greatest invention in that line of invention ever produced. He is now in Baltimore superintending the operation of one of his mills in use at that city. He has also taken out letters patent for his mill in Germany, England, France, Sweden and Belgium. He will take them out in every country in the world, we suppose, before he is through with this matter. Oh, well, he is only another of the world-famed gentlemen whom Bellefonte has produced, and to whom we take off our hats and wish success. The residents at Hot Springs, Arkansas, seem to have a large development of the bump of gratitude. They have again been thanking our elegant citizen, James Miliken, Esq., and lately serenaded him with the peculiarly delightful music which a Hot Springs band is supposed to produce. The thanks and music are an acknowledgement of the distinguished services tendered them by the Hon. James on the occasion of the unpleasant conflagration that visited Hot Springs some time ago. It would be well for every one to test the merits of Harrison's Celebrated Ready-Mixed Paints before spoiling their buildings with the non-descript stuff that is called mixed paint and that, after a few weeks of nice appearance, becomes cracked and is continually peeling off. Harrison's Ready-mixed Paint neither peels or cracks, and presents the same uniform and bright appearance after the wear of years that it does a week after it is just put on. Wilson, McFarlane & Co. are the sole agents for it in Centre county. Tremendous excitement has been created by the opening of the exclusive dry-goods store of J. H. Bauland, on Allegheny street. It is correctly named "The Bee Hive," for a swarm of bees does not present a more lively scene of industry than this store, being filled, as it constantly is, with eager buyers. The inducements offered are such that all who wish to purchase will do well to patronize "The Bee Hive." Mr. William Foster, of College township, seems to be rather unfortunate with his stock. Last Wednesday he lost a valuable sorrel horse, which he had borrowed from William McFarlane, Esq., of Boalsburg, some time ago. The horse contracted a heavy cold, and died of what was supposed to be lung fever. A new residence is to be erected for C. Alfred Smith, M. S., the present Professor of Chemistry of the State College, and a former student of that institution. This was one of the grave decisions arrived at on the occasion of a recent meeting of the Executive Committee of the College. On the 17th of this month Harvey Newton, son of Rev. Crosthwaite, formerly of this county, died, aged seven years, five months and fifteen days. Rev. Crosthwaite is located at Hastings, Nebraska. All the young men in town are now purchasing new calico dresses for their girls. J. H. Bauland, at "The Bee Hive," offers them cheaper than they have ever before been sold in this place.

DEATH OF DAVID WEAVER.—For many long days Mr. David Weaver, one of the best known citizens in all Centre county and who was born and raised within its borders, has been prostrated, as it were, at death's door, and has hovered at the threshold, loath to leave the many attachments which held him to earth and yet anxious to enter the bliss of eternity, until Saturday night at about 8 o'clock, when his spirit bid all things on earth an everlasting farewell and went triumphantly forth to meet its Maker. David Weaver was born at Salona, then a part of this county, on the 27th of January, 1811, making him 68 years, 1 month and 24 days old at the time of his death. He was the son of John Weaver, who lived in this county, pursuing the occupation of a miller. His father had two brothers—Daniel and George. John Weaver was the father of seven children—John, who lives at Iowa; James, at Milesburg; George B., in this place; Michael; and David, the subject of this brief sketch; Mary Davison and Mrs. Harriet Harper, each of whom reside in this place. About the year 1818 David Weaver moved to what is now recognized as the old Weaver homestead, about three and one-half miles from this place, where he resided until about the year 1871. During this time he purchased the interest which his brother George held in the homestead, and throughout his life was a prosperous agriculturist. In 1871 he removed into the residence on Howard street, where his family at present reside. Mr. Weaver was married three times. His first wife was Miss Susan Hettinger. His last two were sisters—the first, Miss Sarah, and the present widow, Miss Susan Bridge, all most estimable ladies. Ten children gathered around him by these unions. Eight are living and two have preceded him to his eternal home. Four of his children are married. The deceased was a consistent Christian and a member of the Presbyterian church, to which he was devotedly attached. None attended the services more regularly, or took a more active part in all the church affairs than David Weaver. His memory will be cherished and tears mingled with those of his family over his loss by all who had the good fortune to know him. The funeral of Mr. Weaver took place at 2 P. M. on Tuesday, and was largely attended. ITEMS FROM COLLEGE TOWNSHIP.—Mr. Joseph Mitchell is now moving from his former home at Oak Hall into the commodious residence which he lately purchased of Mr. Jackson at State College. The distance is considerable and progress will be correspondingly slow. On Sunday last Mr. Daniel Sauer, of State College, was taken suddenly ill. In walking from the house to the porch he fell heavily. The frightened family gathered around him and endeavored, by nursing and the application of restoratives, to bring him back to consciousness. All efforts were in vain and in a few minutes he died. The funeral took place on Tuesday, his remains being interred in the cemetery at The Forks. A grand walking match came off on Saturday afternoon in the Gymnasium at State College. The prizes were three in number, and to the first was added the championship belt of the College. In interest it was scarcely exceeded by the grand walk at Gilmore's Garden, New York. The match commenced at 3 and closed at 5 o'clock P. M., the miniature Gilmore's Garden in the meantime being crowded with excited spectators. Mr. William Potter carried off the first prize amid the deafening applause of those present. Mr. Edward Elder took the second prize, and pressed the victor so closely that but one lap lay between them at the close. To Mr. J. Fulton belongs the credit of getting up the match, and nothing has attracted as much interest since the base ball season closed. A FOX CHASE.—For some time past the foxes have been committing sad depredations on the poultry yards of Taylor township, so at last war was declared and on the morning of the 18th an army of five men started on the war-path. They soon struck a trail which led them to a large rock on the side of the Allegheny mountain, under which the retreat of Reynard was discovered. The operation of unearthing was commenced, and after digging three or four hours, they came so near the animals as to be able to hear them, but night coming on, they were obliged to desist. Returning to the siege in the morning and digging several hours more, they came so near the den, that one of the dogs rushed in and disabled two of the foxes. Four more were captured. Henry Crain gave the coup de grace to five of them while Joe Merryman carried home the sixth alive. The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Bellefonte Library Association will be held at their rooms on Monday, April 7, at 7 o'clock P. M., at which time an election will take place for seven managers to serve the ensuing year. Paragraph 5, section 2, of Constitution: "No member shall have a right to vote or be eligible to any office under this Association who shall be in any arrearage in the payment of, or assessments on capital stock." By order of Board of Managers. JACOB V. THOMAS, Secretary. Centre county people generally should subscribe for a home newspaper, and especially for the Centre Democrat.

AMONG THE GIRLS AND BOYS AT SCHOOL.—We are about to direct the attention of parents and all interested in the welfare and instruction of children to accompany us along Allegheny street into the interior of that great stone building to which a large number of the children of our town go every day, in which they spend six or seven hours of each twenty-four, and receive a training, which, be it good or evil, must tend largely towards forming the character and shaping the morals which will mark their future lives. The building itself, though admirably arranged with communicating apartments, is not so well ventilated as might be. The rooms are delightful places for study. They are all abundantly lighted and well furnished, which accessories so much aid the student, and contribute materially to cheerfulness and habits of application. It would seem impossible to select more competent instructors than are the brilliant corps of teachers now in charge of the various departments. The Principal, Mr. David Leib, and his Assistant, John Mason Duncan, are young men but just entering the full powers of their manhood. They are fresh from thorough and excellent courses of study, which has made them fine students, and at the same time they have the advantage of the most modern methods and ideas of imparting instruction to the children under their care. We do not wish to convey the impression that they follow that mistaken line of modern instruction which would cram the children with the higher branches before a fair foundation of primary instruction has been laid. Mr. Leib, the Principal, exerts the strictest and most exact surveillance over every department and is particularly emphatic that the little ones shall be drilled in the most thorough manner. In each school the order maintained is perfect, and we are sure would be a model for any place of instruction. The Principal and his Assistant have the larger pupils in the two commodious front rooms on the first floor. The young ladies and gentlemen are exceptionally intelligent-looking. They make rapid progress in their studies. At the time we were there a drill in History was in progress, while a few Latin sentences outlined on the blackboard suggested that other studies received their due share of attention. In the front room on the second floor of the north wing Miss Mollie Nesbitt holds sway over the little girls and boys who have reached the four great rules of Arithmetic and are just getting an insight into what this life really has for them to learn. An exercise of a simple example in Multiplication on the blackboard was coming to a close. Each girl and boy had the correct answer placed under his work, and understood exactly the difference between the "multiplicand," "multiplier" and "product." Although it was not the regular time for speaking exercises, "Little Walter Rankin" was allowed to deliver two recitations, which he did in a very pleasing manner. He spoke entirely from memory in a loud, clear voice. The corresponding front apartment on the east wing is occupied by Miss Bella Rankin, who has under her charge a large number of pleasant-looking girls and boys. She was just giving them instruction in that very difficult yet pleasant study, Mental Arithmetic. They showed themselves to be commendably quick in stating and answering the questions after one reading by the teacher. After this was concluded, two little Misses, whose first names we have forgotten, and can only remember them as Miss Landis and Miss Strickland, each recited verses of some pleasant rhyme in a commendable manner. Although we forget their names, we shall always remember that the owners of them accomplished their tasks well. The communicating apartment just back of this is where Miss Anna McAffery exerts her gentle yet firm authority. That the children in this room are well drilled it requires but a glance to discover. They repeated the Multiplication Table in concert up to "twelves" without making an error. By this time they have no doubt mastered it all. The Principal himself was so surprised at the progress made since his last visit that it drew from him some pleasant remarks in which he conveyed to the children a large amount of general and useful information. Farther south from this room is a long narrow apartment in which are gathered a large number of wee little ones, who are introduced into the mysteries of A B C and led on up the first ascent to the hill of knowledge to the long words of two syllables, under the supervision of Miss Nannie McGinley. This room is altogether too much crowded, in some cases the little ones being forced to sit four in one seat. We commend this to the attention of the Board. It is a difficult and trying task to teach these little ones, and the order maintained under these circumstances was marvelous. Here the children during the past winter have made great progress in their studies. At the beginning of the term they were just entering their A B C's. Now they can read easily in the first reader. In the western wing of the second floor Miss Lizzie Campbell leads between thirty and forty little ones on in the acquisition of still further information. They had just been dismissed when we entered, and so we saw none of their performances. Their teacher gave a good report, and indeed it could not be otherwise, as Miss Campbell is one of the most proficient of all the lady instructors.

The young folks in the room just below this, occupied by Miss Laura Graham, were just being dismissed for the day. It was a pleasure to see the attention given in this leave-taking to the proprieties and correct manners. At the tap of the bell all the pupils rise from their seats, the teacher and pupils then bid each other "good night," and with one more tap they pass quietly out. Last, but not one of the most attractive rooms both in regard to teacher and pupils, is that of Miss Rosa Woods. Miss Rosa is quite proud of the bright young ladies and gentlemen who come to her. Handsome and extremely convenient new furniture adorns this room, which is having a good effect on all who attend. The seats are constructed with regard to the health of the pupils, and it would be pleasant if the same style of furniture could be provided for all the rooms throughout the building. It is the desire of the teachers to encourage a proper position in sitting, which cannot be done on seats that are constructed in straight lines for the ill-shaped form of some school director, instead of for the plump, rosy-cheeked lads and lassies who daily occupy them. In consequence of several weeks being omitted during the winter because of cold weather and from other causes, the term of school will be prolonged this year until about the second week in May. There are many other things of interest that might be written in regard to the school and which we may have occasion to refer to at a future day. CURTIN TOWNSHIP CORRESPONDENCE.—We were delighted this week to receive the following racy correspondence from a friend in Curtin township, who we hope will favor us with items frequently:—All rejoice that the long, hard winter is drawing to a close. During the winter work was scarce, which was severe upon some of our people of limited means. There is now a prospect of abundance of labor and consequent cheerfulness. Among our enterprising business men who have taken an aggressive step towards making things lively, we may mention William, Robert and James Mann, each of whom have contracted for large amounts of wood, which will give employment to those who wish work. Hiram Young, it is also reported, intends to cook about one thousand cords of wood. It is to be hoped the report is true, as the coal made by Hiram is exceptionally good. It is so hard that it can be pounded with all the might of an average man without breaking. A new house will soon be erected here as a residence for Hiram Young, the one he now occupies being too small for his rapidly growing family. You know Hiram accepts all the rules of the Bible, laying especial stress on the one which commands us to "provide for his own." Our neighbor Harmon Prince had occasion some time ago to hire a clerk to keep his books. One of the applicants loved cards so well that Mr. Prince did not care to trust him. The card-player is now looking elsewhere for a position. An honest, industrious man has been given the position, and has already moved into a vacant house of Mr. Prince's. He will now probably be hiring a little girl to sharpen his pencil and keep his pen bright. The Chief of Police now receives one hundred and sixty dollars per year and his assistants one hundred and forty dollars, and they will hereafter assume the burdensome duty of lighting and extinguishing the street lamps. All this needed reform was brought about at the last meeting of council, and the parties concerned and the inhabitants of the town generally have reason to rejoice. A change and improvement is now being made in the interior of the Bush House. The office is to receive a fresh coat of paint and be re-papered. The large room on the north-east corner will be converted into two rooms by a partition through the centre, the front apartment to be used as a sample room and the other as a reading room. MARRIAGES.
