

CORRESPONDENCE, containing important news, solicited from any part of the county. No communications inserted unless accompanied by the real name of the writer.

We will have new moon again on Sunday next.

Mr. F. W. Crider spent Sunday last in Lock Haven.

The Roman Catholic church of Snow Shoe picniced on last Tuesday.

The picnic of the Lutheran Sunday-school, of this place, will take place next Thursday.

Job work is so brisk with us at present that it seems more like spring or fall than mid-summer.

Miss Irvin, of near Boalsburg, has been the guest of Miss Kate Green during the past week.

The Methodist Sunday-school has organized an orchestra with Professor Stradling as leader.

Snow Shoe was represented in Bellefonte one day last week by Maj. Wolfe and Dr. Thompson.

The Bellefonte Jubilee Singers concert this evening for the entertainment of the visitors and residents of Snow Shoe.

Squire Reifnyder, of Millheim, called at the DEMOCRAT office on Monday.

Squire, you are always welcome; come again.

The markets are large and the wealth of fruit and vegetables offered for sale is sufficient to delight the eye of the purchaser.

In another month the holidays will have closed, when young America will find it necessary to again settle down to his books.

The city of Williamsport had the pleasure of entertaining our townsman, Mr. H. K. Hicks, and his estimable lady, on last Sunday.

The spire on the Baptist church, Milesburg, has been taken down because of its great weight and a new and lighter one will take its place.

Extensive preparations are making in the lower end of the county to attend the grand Harvest Home picnic, at Lewisburg, on the 21st instant.

The Logan Hose Company will indulge in a hop in their hose house this evening. Prof. Stradling's Orchestra will furnish the music.

The porch before the residence of Mrs. Boal, on High street, has been torn down, and we suppose a few days will witness a stylish new one in its place.

That troublesome eye of Mr. Charles Ryan still seems to bother him, and he found it necessary to go to Pittsburg last week and have it examined.

Those genial Ferguson township gentlemen, Joseph Ard and Robert G. Brett, gave the DEMOCRAT a pleasant call Wednesday afternoon of last week.

It is thought that the venerable Nicholas Bressler, of Penn township, who died last Friday, was the oldest inhabitant of the county. His age was 98 years.

Our Agricultural Department weekly grows more valuable. Its equal, perhaps, is not to be found, and no farmer in the county can afford to miss reading it.

Gov. J. W. Pennington, of boot and shoe fame, was in town on Monday, calling upon his many friends and customers. He left on Tuesday morning for Tyrone.

The Lock Haven Daily Journal says that Mr. Joseph Baker, Esq., and his daughter Lizzie F., of Lemont, are in attendance at Pine Station camp-meeting.

A small band of colored musicians from this place attended a camp-meeting in progress at Lewisburg last Sunday. They went over in Spangler's "Mountain Echo" wagon.

Mr. George Hillbish, foreman of the Bradford Daily Era, is at home on a visit. All the members of the staff of which George is such a brilliant representative are glad to see him.

Rev. S. L. Stiver, of St. Louis, is at home on a visit to his mother, in Potter township. He came to Bellefonte on Monday last, and paid his respects to the DEMOCRAT.

The Bush House hop which took place on Friday night last was another of those pleasant affairs for which that hotel is famous. We return thanks for an invitation to be present.

We were glad to meet our friend, Mr. Harry E. Davis, of Sunbury, on our streets a few days ago. Mr. Davis is largely engaged in the coal trade at Sunbury, and it was business that called him to Bellefonte. He is an affable, pleasant gentleman, and we hope he will come this way often.

The following well known gentlemen registered at the Brockerhoff House this week: Isaac P. Turner, Troy, N. Y.; J. W. Farrell, Pittsburg; Samuel Wolf, N. Y.; R. H. McMahon, Binghamton, N. Y.; Hon. Geo. F. Miller, Lewisburg; S. Liveright and R. Liggett, Jr., Philadelphia; S. D. Shattuck, Harrisburg; and H. E. Davis and J. W. Zeigler, Sunbury.

Dr. J. W. Rhone, of this place, was honored with the appointment of Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Dental Association which met recently at Delaware Water Gap.

The Bellefonte Band now practices in the room in the Bush Arcade formerly occupied by the United Order of American Mechanics. They played there for the first time last Tuesday night.

The most enjoyable picnic of the season thus far was that of the Episcopal Sunday-school yesterday. They departed on the 10.14 A. M. train for Snow Shoe Intersection. It was largely attended.

Mrs. Oliver Rhon, of Williamsport, visited her parents in this place last week. Of course, everyone was rejoiced to see her, resurrected as it seemed from the dead, after the distressing reports of Monday week.

Mr. Frank Montgomery has been viewing the ebb and flow of the tide, the gay population and the pretty young ladies at Atlantic City, for a couple of weeks past. The latter proved especially satisfactory.

The following names were added to the large list of summer guests at the Brockerhoff House, last week: Mrs. W. A. S. Taylor and daughter, Mr. Horace Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Jones and son, all of Norfolk, Va.

Rev. James Wilson, of New York city, son of Peter Wilson, Esq., of Spring Mills, is now visiting his father and has improved the time by preaching in various places throughout the county, to the great edification and delight of his audiences.

The crowds still continue to throng to the grocery store of S. A. Brew & Son. Prices there are found the lowest, groceries the freshest and sweetest, and everything gives satisfaction. Indeed, it is sufficient to give one an appetite to but enter the store.

We were glad to see and speak with Mr. H. G. Cronister, of Martha Furnace, who favored Bellefonte with his presence last week. He looks prosperous, and reports that Martha Furnace is rejoicing under the gent's influence of abundant rains and sunshine.

It is a mistake to suppose that all the world is at the sea shore just now. Get up a dog fight, and see what a crowd will gather around, and then go down to Newman, Jr.'s, store where you will find another crowd of men buying from his large stock of clothes.

The place to buy the best of ready-made men's and boys' clothing is now, as it has been for years, at the Eagle Clothing Hall, on Allegheny street. Everybody who buys there expresses themselves as well satisfied, and consider Newman, Jr., really the King of Clothiers.

Miss Emma and Miss Clara Barrett, sisters of Mrs. Dr. Kirk, of this place, have been visiting her during this summer. Miss Clara returned to her home last week, but Miss Emma, being in delicate health, has been ordered by her physician to remain here until her health is restored.

We regret to hear that Miss Laura Graham, the competent teacher of the 4th grade in our public schools, has resigned the position which she has so long filled so well. Miss Nannie McGinley has been promoted to this vacant school, and her place will in turn be filled by Miss Lizzie Campbell.

It is probable that a festival will be held in the rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association on Monday and Tuesday evenings, August 24 and 25, the first two days of Court week. If it should be held, it will be a grand affair, and much superior to the ordinary festival; but we will perhaps have some more to say about it in our next.

The Misses Lyon, who have been visiting their brother, Mr. William Lyon, in this place, departed on Monday morning last. From the hearty adieux and energetic hand-shakings which took place at the depot we imagine that they formed many earnest friendships during their brief stay. How many hearts they carried away with them none can tell.

A new and novel mode of enjoyment was inaugurated last Friday evening by a few of our young folks, who enjoyed an evening picnic in the woods near Valentines' Forges. The darkness was chased away by numerous brilliant lights, and those who participated in it profess to have drawn therefrom much enjoyment.

A bold but unsuccessful attempt was made on Monday night to burglarize the residence of Isaac Guggenheimer, Esq., on Linn street. The burglars effected an entrance, but in doing so awakened the occupants of the house, who frightened the intruders and made them leave the premises before they had secured anything to repay them for their trouble.

The Star of Hope, a temperance paper published in Williamsport, says of Mr. Thomas I. Taylor, proprietor of the Unionville hotel: "Thos. I. Taylor, Esq., of Fleming, Centre county, Pa., has our thanks for a copy of 'The Drufkard's Lament,' written and photographed by himself. It is a handsome photograph, and the language is beautiful and impressive. Mr. Taylor is a fine writer, as our readers can testify, as he often graces our columns with articles of his production."

A SPLENDID ENTERTAINMENT.—Mr. George Hoppes has been proprietor of the Bush House for one whole year. His residence here has been so pleasant, operations about the hotel have been marked with so much energy and enterprise, that it has seemed but a few short months since first he assumed control. Such a succession of changes, surprises and pleasures for the guests and for the citizens of the town have followed one upon another that the year has flown as if it were but a day. But for all that, figures, which cannot deceive, pointed unerringly to the fact that Friday last was the anniversary of his first entrance into and assuming control of the Bush House, and he resolved to make it a notable day in the history of the hotel, and one which would be remembered with pleasure by its numerous friends. It would have been impossible to accommodate all the friends of the hotel, which includes everybody, but we verily believe that if every man, woman and child in the county had been present the amount provided for the great feast would have been sufficient to supply all.

The invited guests assembled from all parts of the town at the usual dinner hour. Many of the prominent gentlemen came accompanied by their ladies. Persons from every occupation and from every station in life were present, all eager to enjoy this generous hospitality. Including the many permanent boarders, there must have been over one hundred guests in all who seated themselves at the elaborately ornamented tables and were soon occupied in scanning their bills of fare. These at once displayed how sumptuous the collation was to be. Fifty or more separate and distinct dishes were upon the bills of fare, any or all of which could be called for and served as swiftly as the nimble feet and skillful hands of the trained waiters could execute the order. There were soups, meats, vegetables, side-dishes, cakes, ices, nuts, fruit, tea and coffee; all of superior excellence and in unlimited quantities. The dinner lasted over an hour and was richly enjoyed by all. Many thanks are due to Mr. Hoppes for his royal hospitality, which is thoroughly appreciated by the many who had the good fortune to partake of it, and who all hope that he will meet with such liberal encouragement as will induce him to repeat the occurrence on many succeeding anniversaries.

POMONA GRANGE.—This large organization met Tuesday last week at Centre Hall and was the most successful and interesting gathering ever held by the Grange. Dr. James Calder and Brothers J. A. Hunter, G. Dale and Col. Weaver were present and took active parts in all the discussions. Worthy Master Leonard Rhone read his opening address, and excelled himself in the interest and general information which he succeeded in working into this production. Of course the Grangers are an eminently social organization, and a picnic was arranged for, to be held on the top of Nittany Mountain, six miles south of Bellefonte, on the grounds of Brother Henry Keller, on the 25th of September. Two of the most appropriate and timely resolutions contained in the report of the committee on the Worthy Master's address were those pertaining to the State College, viz:

Resolved, That we have heard with a very great deal of astonishment, the report presented to the last session of the State Legislature concerning the Pennsylvania State College; that from our knowledge of the purposes and work of the institution, the ability of its instructors and students we denounce said report as untruthful and malicious in intent.

Resolved, That with a desire to benefit the agricultural community, we heartily commend the College to the patronage of all who have sons and daughters to educate.

After a pleasing address by Dr. Calder in which he said that the Grangers were endowed by nature and education with good appetites and that the Sisters should always prepare a variety of edibles for each meal, Brother B. O. Deininger, who is identical with the famous editor of the Millheim Journal, with the generosity which is inherent in the members of the profession, presented the Grange with a large engraving of the "Lord's Supper." Then the happy Grangers looked around at the elegant carpet, the fine lace curtains and the general luxuriansness with which they were surrounded in their commodious hall, they soon dispersed, each thoroughly impressed with the idea that this had been the most successful year that ever crowned the efforts of the Grange organization.

With commendable enterprise the proprietors of the Brockerhoff House have made arrangements with Howard Spangler, to run his "Mountain Echo" coach, from the hotel to different points of interest in the surrounding country, three times each week for the pleasure and enjoyment of the guests of the House. This is the first attempt to approach the "Tally Ho" business that has been made in Bellefonte, and it will no doubt be fully appreciated by the many "birds of passage" who are sojourning with Messrs. Houseal & Teller.

CURIOS.—There are now residing in Bellefonte two brothers who were born in different years of the Christian era, in different months of the year, in different weeks of the month and on different days of the week. About twenty years since these two brothers both took the fever south of "Mason and Dixon's line" and the oldest was several days longer in recovering than his younger brother, and ever since the birthday of the two brothers has universally come on the same day of the week. Curious, isn't it? Will some of our High School scholars give us a satisfactory explanation of this phenomenon.

CITIZENS OF MILTON AT BELLEFONTE.—On Thursday, of last week, a number of the most prominent and enterprising citizens of Milton, Northumberland county, Pa., arrived in Bellefonte, on a business mission of importance to themselves, and that enlisted considerable interest on the part of many of their friends here. The party consisted of Mr. Robert M. Frick, Col. John McCleery, Mr. B. F. Wilson, Mr. A. Cadwallader, Mr. D. G. Marsh, Mr. S. W. Murray, Mr. H. J. Heinen, Dr. U. Q. Davis and Capt. William P. Dougal.

The object of the visit of these gentlemen to Centre county was to witness the working of Mr. Harrison Levy's machine for making horse shoes, in the success of which they are interested. Arriving here in the afternoon, they took up quarters at the Bush House, and the balance of the day was spent in viewing the town and its beautiful surroundings, and, by some of the party, in making calls upon friends and acquaintances. Many of our citizens called at the Bush House during the evening, and until bed time the fleeting hours were passed in pleasant social conversation and amusement, into which all present entered with zest and heartiness, receiving in return a full measure of enjoyment and pleasure.

On Friday morning the party, accompanied by Hon. John B. Linn, Mr. John P. Harris, Mr. William Jenkins, Mr. William P. Humes, Mr. J. W. Zeigler and one of the editors of the DEMOCRAT, proceeded in carriages to Milesburg, where Mr. Levy has his machine in operation.

The building in which the machine is set up is located at the end of the Bald Eagle Valley railroad bridge, and the arrival of the party there seems to have been anticipated, for the engine was puffing, and the furnace was glowing with a fervent heat. The huge piece of machinery was an object of curiosity and was closely scrutinized by every one before it was set in motion. After a short delay, necessary for the adjustment of some of the parts, Mr. Levy was ready for business, and the operation of converting the straight iron bars into horse shoes began. The first bar that passed through the machine was secured by Mr. Wilson and it proved to be as perfect a horse shoe as ever was made by a machine. Others followed in quick succession, and all were highly elated at the apparent success of the trial. The shoes that came from the machine were speedily cooled, and a comparison with specimens from other machines was made, and it was unanimously voted that those produced by the Levy machine were in all respects equal to any with which they were tested.

An adjournment to Judge Proudfoot's "Curtin House" then took place, and the next thing in order was dinner. The general old Judge was prepared for his guests and set before them a substantial and well prepared dinner. The exercise of the morning had induced sharp appetites, and all ate with a hearty relish of the good things set before them. After dinner the party reassembled at the works to witness a further trial in the afternoon. Unfortunately, however, it was discovered that there was a slight derangement in some part of the machine that would require too much time for adjustment that day, and the operations were suspended. The gentlemen interested in the machine were convinced from the morning's trial that it is constructed on correct principles, and that with the proper adjustment of a few minor details it will prove in all respects a success. It does its work thoroughly well, and produces a shoe as perfect in every particular as those made either by Burden or Perkins, whose shoes are now generally preferred by blacksmiths.

The party then returned to Bellefonte. On the way back the carriage that contained Dr. Davis and Col. McCleery stopped at McCoy's iron works where those gentlemen were permitted to quench their thirst with a refreshing draught from the famous iron spring. The rolling mill of the works was in operation, and, while there, they witnessed with considerable interest the process of drawing wire for which these works are celebrated. On the return to Bellefonte, a consultation was held with Mr. Levy, and we are informed that the company immediately voted an additional assessment of money to invest in their project, and authorized Mr. Levy to make certain contemplated improvements in his machine to insure reliability and certain results from it. They also agreed to furnish him with a quantity of iron to work into shoes that will be thrown into the market by one of the gentlemen connected with the company who is largely engaged in the hardware business in Philadelphia. For the skill, energy and perseverance with which Mr. Levy has pursued his idea of constructing a new machine for making horse shoes, he deserves all the success that can possibly come to him, and it will be a delight to all his friends to hear that he finally achieves it.

For a complete and accurate description of Mr. Levy's machine we are indebted to the kindness of that skillful machinist, Mr. William Jenkins, of our well-known and popular firm of Wm. P. Duncan & Co. For it we return him our sincere thanks; it is as follows: "The machine is rather difficult to describe, but consists of a main frame of a peculiar form which supports the gearing and machinery that gives the shoe the proper shape. It consists essentially of two parts, the 'crusher' and 'former,' the first swedging the blank, and the second bending and giving the shoe the desired shape. The movements of the different parts are controlled by a series of cams, each one necessarily performing its part with precision and absolute regularity. The operation of making shoes is as follows: The iron is first cut into proper lengths and is then heated in a furnace to a bright red heat. Then it is entered vertically into a groove in the crusher; when the proper time comes it drops of its own weight into position to be swedged, which is done by means of a roll having at its periphery a steel swedge or serrated cutter which travels lengthwise of the blank and forms the groove and countersink indentations for receiving the heads of the nails. After being swedged, the crank and gauge which holds the blank in position is automatically removed and the now swedged iron falls into position for being bent and shaped. This is done by means of a set of traveling rollers or 'crimpers' which travel backwards and forwards over a set of stationary guides so that the path of the rollers is of the general form of the outside of the shoe. The shape of the inside is given by means of a stationary die held securely against the vertical portion of the main frame. Immediately after being bent the shoe is subject to a heavy pressure from a die, which gives the required thickness and general concave shape flatwise to the now finished shoe. This last motion is obtained by means of a heavy crosshead operated by a strong crank of six inches stroke. After this operation the shoe is 'thrown off,' a device that is operated by means of a small cam in the rear part of the machine. The shoe is now finished with the exception of punching the nail holes, which is done on separate machinery. The entire operation after the blank is first entered into the machine is automatic. The shoes produced by this machine are pronounced by judges to be superior in finish and general proportions to any now in the market. The total weight of the machine is about ten tons and is the invention of Mr. Harrison Levy, of Milesburg, and was built by W. P. Duncan & Co., of this place."

By the train of Friday evening the gentlemen from Milton took their departure for home. They made a fine impression upon all with whom they came in contact while here, and we have since heard many of our citizens say that as representative business men of the town in which they live they are an honor to it, and comprise a combination of enterprise, business energy and sterling personal worth which any community might be proud to possess.

STATE FAIR AT PHILADELPHIA.—On Monday, September 8th, the Twenty-sixth Annual Exhibition of the Pennsylvania State Agricultural Society will open at the Main Building, Centennial Grounds, Fairmount Park, Philadelphia, and continue twelve days, closing on Saturday, September 20th.

From present indications this exhibition of the Society will be the largest, grandest, and most varied that has ever been held by any State Society, and will be second in numbers and merit only to the ever-memorable International Exhibition, held at the same place during the Centennial Year. The premium list, which can be obtained from the officers of the Society, at their office, North-west corner Tenth and Chestnut streets, Philadelphia, is the most complete and thorough that has ever been presented by any similar organization, and offers for competition in the Live Stock Class alone the handsome sum of $9,000. In the Dairy, Fruit, Vegetable, and Floral Departments the further sum of $4,200 is added, besides a large number of elegant and valuable gold, silver and bronze medals, whose intrinsic value will aggregate the entire sum of more than $15,000 in actual cash.

The display will include a large number of Imported, Thoroughbred, Fine Bred, and Draught Horses, herds of Short Horn, Devon, Holstein, Jersey, and Guernsey Cattle, the choicest breeds of Sheep, Swine, &c., together with a Mechanical, Vegetable, and Manufacturing Collection seldom, if ever, brought together in any community. Excellent and commodious stabling has been prepared within the building for Horses and Horned Cattle, and a suitable space assigned on the grounds adjacent for the accommodation of Sheep and Swine. The Machinery, Dairy, Fruit, Floral, and Domestic Departments are all provided under cover, and will undoubtedly prove attractive and instructive features of the Fair. A space has also been assigned for the exercise and display of all the entries in the Live Stock Classes. Green food will be supplied all the Milk Cows on exhibition, and hay and straw furnished all entries gratis.

Excursion tickets will be furnished by all the railroads centering at Philadelphia, and all articles intended for exhibition carried on liberal terms.

BALD EAGLE VALLEY ITEMS.—The Iron bridge at Milesburg progresses slowly.

Howard has a flourishing Normal School conducted by Miss Morgan, a graduate of the Central State Normal School.

Geo. W. Minsker, of Eagleville, has eight and one-half acres of tobacco, said to be the finest in the valley. He has also thirty-five acres of corn that can't be beat. He measured a stalk last Wednesday which had reached an altitude of thirteen feet seven inches and was still growing.

It is said that Bellefonte will shortly have a German.—Bellefonte Republican. Bellefonte has several Germans already. There's Beck, our tonorial friend, for instance.

MARRIAGES.

SHOWERS.—EKLLEY.—At the Lutheran parsonage in Bellefonte, by Rev. S. E. Furst, Mr. Samuel E. Eklley, of Gettysburg, Pa., to Miss Tamara E. Eklley, of Buffalo Run, Centre county.

DEATHS.

FOOTE.—At Millheim, on August 11, Mrs. Amelia Foote, wife of John D. Foote, aged 42 years.

ERENSLER.—On Friday, the 8th instant, in Penn township, Mr. Nicholas Erenslar, aged 98 years. Probably the oldest inhabitant of Centre county.

KRETTETTEL.—On the 4th instant, in Millheim Arthur Franklin Krettettel, son of John Krettettel, Jr., aged 9 years, 9 months and 7 days.

HOY.—In Boggs township, Centre county, Pa., on the 3d day of August, 1879, Mrs. Kate Elizabeth Hoy.

The funeral took place from her father's residence on the 5th instant, attended by a large concourse of sympathizing friends and neighbors. The subject of this notice was born on the 3d of January, 1865, and was 23 years and 7 months old. She was married to Mr. H. K. Hoy, February 9, 1876. The fruit of this union is a dear little daughter, who is left in this transient world without the loving and tender attentions of a mother. Mrs. Hoy was very amiable, kind, courteous and pleasant in the society of all who had the pleasure of her acquaintance. Her husband furnished the writer of this notice with some of her utterances near the close of her earthly life, a few of which we give: "Farewell, Harvey, I am going to Jesus, and you will follow me soon, won't you?" "We have lived peacefully together; you have been kind to me, and we have spent many happy hours together. I feel that you have been true to me in every respect. I wish you success in your undertakings." "There are Christians in all churches and out of the church. I belong to Christ's church, and there is no quarreling nor fault finding here." "I am not suffering now; but it cannot be told what I have endured." "Write to my brothers that are away and tell them to be good boys." "You must all be kind to that little angel of mine." "I want rest; to-night we will all have rest." "I will drink sweet wine—drink purely, sweetly. I shall meet the loved ones gone before—dear old grandfather and grandmother. Shall I know them as I know them here on earth? How will they receive me? Who will be the first to welcome me?"

The foregoing utterances were made some few weeks ago, when she thought she was about to depart. She afterwards rallied and remained a little longer, and with gentle patience awaited the final stroke of the hand of death. A short time before her demise she said to her mother: "Do you think I shall have to suffer much in dying? How nice it would be if I could just go to sleep and awaken in the other world. I thought for the past few days I might linger for a week, but I think now I'll go to-morrow."

After this she remained, sinking rapidly, for one hour and thirty-eight minutes; peacefully, gentle life ebbed away. The immortal spirit forsook the house of clay and winged its way to climes and scenes more congenial.

Rev. King, of Milesburg, and Nathan J. Mitchell, of Howard, officiated at the funeral. Mr. King conducted the service with singing and prayer. Rev. Mitchell delivered a discourse, founded on the words of the Apostle Paul, 1 Cor. xv: 53-58.

The following was handed me, written by a friend—a relation of the deceased: "Here we have the ashes of a daughter who from her infancy was taught that liberal sentiment which develops the three Christian graces—Faith, Hope and Charity—around which cluster all the precepts of her Saviour's teaching. The blessed Word—the Bible—tells us that 'God is love.' What greater tribute can be paid to her noble mother than that she implanted those principles which burst forth, blossomed and bore the fruits of so beautiful a life, almost too lovely for this world. Her death was as serene as the gentle close of a summer's day, and speeded into that golden, bright sunshine of which she so often spoke."

She died of consumption of the lungs. The attack dates back nearly two years and eight months. During this period there was a slow but unyielding advance of the fell destroyer, which defied all medical skill that was brought to bear against it. During her sickness she never murmured nor complained, but said, "All is right, God's will be done."
