The rule fixing the time and place for electing delegates, taken from the call published in the Watchman last year, reads as follows:

lst. The election for delegates to represent the different districts in the annual Democratic county convention, shall be held at the usual place of holding the general elections for each district, on the Saturday preceding the third Tuesday in September, in each and every year, beginning at two o'clock p. m., on said day, continuing until six o'clock, p. m.

This year the third Tuesday of September comes on the 16th, and there can be no doubt that the Watchman fixes the time just one week too early. The Chairman of the County Committee, Mr. Fortney, undoubtedly states the proper time in his call for the convention, which appeared in the DEMO-CRAT last week. Had our neighbor carefully read this call, with the rules accompanying it, copied from its own columns of a year ago, and then evinc. ed even the slightest intention to treat Mr. Fortney with that commendable trait in deportment expressed by the word "courtesy," the blunder of "What Does it Mean?" would, in all probability, have been avoided.

Casanave and his Fraudulency. This duskey member of the famous returning board of Louisiana, the only one whom the fraudulent President and John Sherman had not compensated with an office for services rendered in the electoral count, recently appeared in Washington to demand recognition. He is an undertaker and the keeper of a livery stable in New Orleans, possessed of some property. In company with his returning board pals, he was indicted some time ago in the Courts of Louisiana for frauds and perjuries committed. Able attorneys were employed, who by a technical defence ingeniously contrived, kept the scoundrels out of the penitentiary, and saved the administration from immediate and lasting disgrace. For this service the attorneys were to receive $5,000. The other rascals having no property that could be attached, refused to pay, and the attorneys seized the property of Casanave. He, not content to be thus made a beggar while his associates in the Presidential villiany, and forty of their family connections, as Casanave testifies, are occupying positions under pay of the adand demands of Mr. Hayes and Secretary Sherman, who are the beneficiaries of the crimes of this board, perpetrated under the management and inspiration of Sherman himself, the funds to pay the claim and save his property from execution. A small part of the necessary sum was contributed by Republican officials, and the Collector of the Port of New Orleans was directed from the Treasury Department to pay another part, in all $500. This was Sherman's contribution, but it being only a small moiety of the amount required, would not save Casanave's property, who was at this time informed by dispatch from New Orleans, that more must be paid or the sale would take place in three days. With this information, Cassathat something must be done, "I can't der. wait any longer. The money must be raised." Judge Shellabarger, after a short consultation with Mr. Sherman told Casanave, says the Washington Post, that it "would be all right;" that the money would be sent to his office national bank notes, saying his father had sent it and that it was all that could be raised just then. It was too late in the day to transact any business involmatter would be arranged, and his property saved early next day. This was early on the morning of the 13th, and as Casanave was waiting upon Shellabarger to see what the latter would do, he was called in, after Webb had left, and informed of what the latter had about ten minutes there steamed rapid told. He denied most emphatically that there was any collusion or fraud she was in constant fear of some sudden

He so reported to John Sherman, who then directed him to send the $1,000 to New Orleans. In order to have a distinct understanding in regard to the payment, Shellabarger then sent the following telegram to Cullom, the leading attorney who had defended the returning Immediately upon receipt of Cullom's reply, Shellabarger saw Sherman again and got $250 additional and sent it to Badger, the collector of customs, along with the $1,000 Hayes ministration, repairs to Washington had contributed the day before. Mrs. Sprague's Escape.

FLYING FROM HER HUSBAND'S HOUSE.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., August 31. There is considerable excitement at arragansett Pier over the escape from anonchet, of Mrs. Sprague last night. Mrs. Sprague claims that ever since she returned to Canonchet with her Webb Hayes entered Judge Shellabar-children she has been subjected to many annoyances by the Governor, ger's office and gave him $1,000 in many annoyances by the Governor, which culminated on Saturday in an acsay that the Governor, coming home on Friday morning in an intoxicated con-dition, suddenly went into the room where the nurses were dressing the chilving the payment or transmission of dren and seeing Mrs. Sprague there said: "I'll show you who is master here," and without any further words to go home and sleep soundly, as the took hold of her arm and shoulder, dragged her around the room and at-tempted to throw her out of the winproperty saved early next day. For the purpose of attending to this busi-ness Judge Shellaharger arrived at his ness, Judge Shellabarger arrived at his office early next morning, (the 13th), and found Webb Hayes there waiting him. At once he accorded We departure, accompanied by her three private interview, and the latter said that his father wanted that $1,000 held the Governor and his nephew, Arthur were keeping a vigilant further that this "detective" had discovered the whole plot, and had vol-untarily informed his father of it. Finding none he turned back, and Casanave was in conspiracy with the attorneys to raise the amount named ($5,000), which was an exorbitant and started at a break-neck speed for Kingston Junction, about eight miles the old pier met the Governor,

It is thought that Mrs. Sprague escapthat there was any collusion or fraud in the affair, and said that the amount of the fee was agreed upon before the attorneys went into the acase; it was not an exorbitant fee, as there were three lawyers engaged in the defense.

Judge Shellabarger asked to see again the dispatch Casanave had received in regard to the sale of his property. It was produced, and on the back of it the Judge wrote the separation, brought by either husband and father. The children are four in number—Willie, aged 13; father. The three little girls Mrs. Sprague took with her. Gov. Sprague will undoubtedly exhaust every means to discover the whereabouts of the children, and will as certainly use every legal effort to recover them. Editors of CENTRE DEMOCRAT : Please find enclosed a letter from Dr. William Campbell, of Grand Rapids, Michigan, formerly of this place, which may be interesting to some of the readers of the CENTRE DEMOCRAT.

Truly yours, J. H. HOLT.

A LETTER FROM THE NORTHWEST. GRAND RAPIDS, Aug. 25.

My Dear Friend :- Your welcome letter reached me some time since. I was sojourning at Petoskey, a town at the northern terminus of the Grand Rapids & Indiana Railroad, due north of this city, distant 198 miles, and situate at the head of Little Traverse Bay. It is the summer resort of this State. The Methodist State Camp-meeting grounds are one mile north of the town on the shore of the bay. They call the grounds "Bay View," and it is well named, as there is a delightful view of the bay, which is seven miles long The view extends out on Lake Michigan as far as the eye can reach. The scenery is grand, the air quite invigorating, and consequently a great many invalids go there every summer. The Methodist grounds contain 320 acres, covered principally with fine hard maple, beech and birch timber. On the first Sabbath of the camp-meeting the number of people were estimated at ten thousand, that is, in and about Petoskey, Bay View, &c. The the bay, four miles from Petoskey. This is only its second year, and and they did not have hotel room to accommodate more than half the number who applied. The way they arrange matters is this, viz: rated, elect officers, purchase the grounds have them laid out in small lots, and sell the lots at low rates to parties who erect summer cottages. The association builds a large boarding-house, where all who prefer to do so can take their meals and lodge in their cottages. They tax each lot for improving the grounds, clearing out The number here this year was at least double that of last year, and I think it will go on increasing year after year until name, the "Saratoga of the West.

I spent most of my time about eight miles east of Petoskey, on the inland lakes, fishing. I had grand sport, and enjoyed myself as much as it was possible to do. The lakes are well stocked with black bass. rock bass, and pickerel, (the latter called pike in Pennsylvania.) There are two ways of taking them: still fishing with live minnows for bait, and trolling with artificial bait. The latter is the best way for sport. The trolling line is let out from the boat from sixty to two hundred feet. The boat is rowed slowly, the artificial bait, or as we call it, the" spoon hook," revolves on a swivel, and as it passes the hiding place of the pickerel or bass they dash out and seize it. When the fishermen feel the jerk, or "strike," as they call it, they bring them into the boat hand over hand. I tell you it is decidedly exciting sport to get a big fellow on at the end of eighty to one hundred and sixty feet of line, struggling, and alternately plunging into deep water and then to the surface, to try to shake the hook out of his mouth. I will conclude my fish story by telling you that I caught one pickerel thirty-seven inches long and weighing eleven and a half pounds, another of eight pounds, another of six pounds, and I cannot tell you how many ranging from two and a half to five pounds, for I did not pretend to keep an account of all I caught. The largest bass that I caught weighed five and I went north July 12th and remained five weeks. I was compelled to quit busihealth. I was failing very fast, and began to feel as I did two years ago when I went to Pennsylvania; so I thought 1 would try what the climate of northern Michigan would do for me. It proved decidedly beneficial for me in one way only, the change of air and getting out of the malarial region improved my general health; my appetite got better and I could sleep well at night and get up in the morning feeling rested and refreshed by sleep; but when I remained for a day or two on the bay, the air being so damp, I would feel my lung trouble growing worse, hence I spent most of the five weeks that I remained eight miles inland, east of the coast range of hills. The air at that distance from the lake was quite different, being warmer, and not loaded with moisture. If I could have remained one month longer the improvement would have been more decided and permanent, but you know that when a physician stops work everything stops but the outlay, and I could not afford to remain any longer. For pure, invigorating air give me the Alleghenies yet to all others.

Jim McClain wrote me about the Pennsylvania Railroad negotiating for the B. & S. R. R., and he said he would write me when it was consummated. It would be good for the people of Snow Shoe who own coal lands, as it would give them an opportunity of shipping out their coal at sonable rates.

We have been looking anxiously for Mrs. M. H. to put in an appearance, but so far we have looked in vain. I received a postal from S., saying that she would be here about the middle of August; we still hope to see her, although we sometimes fear that she has gone home without calling this way.

Well, I have written you a long letter. and probably little in it that will be of interest to you. Mrs. C. and M. are enjoying their usual health, and I hope to be able to stand another winter here. C. and M. join me in kind regards for all your family and our dear friends. I will be glad to hear from you whenever you may be inclined to write.

I am, yours truly,

WILLIAM CAMPBELL.
