How THE PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY PICNICED.—The Grange Society deserves the most hearty congratulations for the pleasant manner in which its picnic was conducted last Thursday. Nature lent its aid in spreading before the upturned, expectant faces of its members a clear, blue sky, and as the cool wind fanned their faces and the sun beamed forth his loveliest, all knew that a day of enjoyment was in store for them. The only possible exception to a perfect picnic day could be found in the fact that the early approach of Jack Frost had rendered the air too cool for entire comfort in the woods for those at ail sensitive to his icy touch.

The Patrons employ and understand the best way of entertaining their guests, in that they do not bid them join in listening to long-drawn-out, burdensome speeches, or compel them to submit to a set form of exercises, but after reaching the place of enjoyment each one is allowed, as in this instance, to follow the inclination of his own sweet will, as if the picnic were his own, always provided he confine himself within the bounds of propriety. The day was one of pure enjoyment to the hundreds who were present-such recreation as weary mind and body seeks. Social intercourse, happy meetings of friends separated perhaps for months, exchanges of views on gricultural and domestic topics, occupied rs of those present. "Cupid" was the Roccer is where young men present, as he could, and many couples and maidens assemble effects of his well ffects of his well-hed ventlemen infelt for the first time th aimed darts. Many of the pitching quoits, &c., to the entertainment of pleased audiences.

We linger with peculiar pleasure on the important feature of all picnics and the doubly important one in this-the dinner. Patrons of Husbandry have gained by long experience a capacity to stow away an unusual quantity of the rich provision for the inner man which they raise on their own rich farms, and the fresh air of Thursday last did not serve to decrease their natural appetites. The wonder was how so much as was spread before them could have been conveyed to the mountain top. The day throughout was pleasant and every provision was made for the entertaiment and comfort of those who were present. But at last the declining sun warned all to return home, and amidst clattering wheels | tions and flying dust the picnicers passed down the mountain side, separated in various directions, and the picnic was numbered among the pleasant occurrences of the past.

We print in this connection an address of welcome delivered to the Patrons by District Master Leonard Rhone:

FELLOW PATRONS AND CITIZENS: I can but feel grateful for the high honor conferred upon me in being se-lected to make the opening address at this sixth great annual gathering of Patrons of Husbandry of Centre

I appreciate this expression of regard I appreciate this expression of regard the more highly from the fact that it comes from the farming class of our county. I am glad that there are so many present on this re-union occasion of the Patrons of Husbandry. I am of the Patrons of Instandry. I am glad of the opportunity to meet once more face to face with the Patrons of Centre, Mifflin and Clinton counties, and to express my gratitude for the unvarying kindness and generous feel-ings they have ever manifested toward

It is with sincere pleasure that I perform the duty that has been assigned no on this occasion as Master of the Centre County Pomona Grange; to tender to you all, Patrons, farmers, mechanics, laborers, and those of every calling and pursuit who have the magnanimity of heart and nobleness of mind to say, God speed to our beloved order, a hearty greeting, and cordelly bid you welcome to our sixth annual gathering, which has been cast upon this grand and pleasant summit of Nittany mountain, a spur at the base of the Alleghenies, from where, as if in forgetfulness, they lingered in fascination, taking a long and final look as it were at the grand and beautiful Penn's Valley which spreads out so charmingly below, from where the Alleghenies It is with sincere pleasure that I per

We have met together to-day from all parts of our county and from ad-joining counties for the purpose of ex-tending to one another friendly greet-ings, and if possible to more firmly unite and fraternize the elements of agricultural life; to foster and cement more strongly by a mutual understand-ing the great principles of the order of ing the great principles of the order of Patrons of Husbandry.

A more fitting time for the Patrons' re-union could not have been chosen, it being at the closing days of summer, days of comparative leisure to the farmer, and it is but natural for him to join his fellow-laborers with their fami lies for a day of festivities and general enjoyment. A rural gathering for pleasure like this, away from the decorations of artistic splendor in the city hall, or the artistic splendor in the city hall, or the fashionable places of the rich, sheltered only by the green foliage of the forests of the surrounding hills which are turning into the sear leaf; the fresh odors of an entire landscape coming to us on every passing breeze, and above all as far as the eye can reach, well built homes and cultivated fields, the rewards of rural industry; such plainness, such natural and unfeigned simplicity—such gushing impulses of rural plicity—such gushing impulses of rural friendship while partaking of their bounteous repast are in harmony with the best impulses of our nature; who could here refrain from participating or sharing in the refreshing influences of such a gathering or re-union of the people of the rural districts.

What scene more dignified or delightful than to see as we have here hundreds of happy, intelligent farmers collected from all parts of our county and adjoining counties, not to engage in political and party strife, but to meet together for their country's good, con-sulting how best to promote and fraternize in bonds of union the once dis tracted and divided agricultural class of our country, with no warring ele-ments, no heart-burnings of any sort, but peace and good will animating every bosom; bringing into social and profitable intercourse those who would otherwise have remained strangers and estranged to one another. Mr. President, should not such scenes be well calculated to saddles the saddles the calculated to gladden the heart of every wise and good citizen of our govern-ment? But if you please go back with me only twelve years to the time be-fore the establishment of the order of Patrons of Husbandry in the county what a contrast you will find between the agricultural class then and now; the farmers were divided and indiffer ent to one another, and had no such gatherings as the Patrons have held in our county for the last five or six years our county for the last five or six years and as we find here to-day; they were then divided and under the entire control of politacians and demagogues who periodicall tramp-like traveled the country in the interest of political parties to stir up strife in the rural districts upon issues that were merely partisan in character and ruinous to the agricultural clais and to the country.

It was partisan politics that plunged our country into a givil war; it is partisan

You can continue to trot out all the hoodlums of the drinking saloons and gambling hells to the primary elecout the intelligent farmers, mechanics and laborers; but, sirs, you cannot bind us by your actions at the polls. We give you fair warning that the intellient farmer will not vote with any party gent farmer will not recognize and honor the farming class, which forms one-half of our country. We ask no special favers excepting those that our numbers and intelligences entitle us to. We want the agricultural class, that composes 25,000,000 of the people of our country, represented; we want an economical and just administration of the laws; we peace and prosperity for

The National Grange of the Patron The National Grange of the Latter of Husbandry has met in southern and northern cities, welcomed alike and un-molested in the expression of our opin-ions, the farmers receiving one another in fraternal greetings as brothers and sisters, pledging each other, at the Altar of our beloved Order, fidelity and friend ship as long as time shall last.

I welcome these aged men and women before me, who have journeyed up hith-er, as it were, to make their last offering er, as it were, to make their last offering upon the Altar of our Order, and to perform the last great rites of honor and blessing upon those of us who are younger in years. I feel just like going down there among you and learning lessons of wisdom from your trials and tribulations, and to pledge to you our fidelity and devotion to our beloved Order. O! we appreciate your solicitude and nobleness of character, of yet in your old age having the opportunity. in your old age having the opportunity of witnessing the consummation of your long wished for alliance and union of our people. Poets may sing and histo-rians write of deeds of valor and heroism, but yours will out-live them all and will be appreciated by future pos-terity and will permeate all the ramifications of society down to the last cycle cations of society down to the last cycle of time. I welcome the young people—the boys and girls who are the hope of our Order. The places of those aged people that I just spoke of, in the Grange, you will soon be called on to occupy. If we get the young people into the Grange we will soon have all the old people—don't you see it? they will be the old people after a little while. We have forms and ceremonies entirely suited to your tastes and you entirely suited to your tastes, and would be delighted with them. T the Grange also opens the way for you to honor, to positions and to usefulness in society. The destiny of our Order and our country is soon to be placed in your hands. This material must be had up and to perpetuate the Grange edifice. In the language of the Master of the National Grange "let us firmly resolve that all geographical discriminations be forever ignored; that there be no Mason and Dixon's line; no sectional or spe-cial privileges within our doors or within our country. Devoted to the interests of a common cause, let us meet upon a common level and act in perpetual unity, ever striving, through the education of the masses, for the perma-nent establishment of our Order and the perpetuity of a common govern-ment, to the end that we may become a united, prosperous, free and happy people, down to the latest syllable of orded time.'

We live in deeds, not years; in thoughts, not breaths; in feelings, not in figures on a dial; No should count time by heart throbs when they heat; for diod, for man, for duty, ie most lives who thinks most—feels noblest—acts the best.

Cruel Attempt at Abduction.

HEARTLESS YOUNG VILLAIN BROUGHT

Buffalo, Sept. 25.—One of the boldest attempts at abduction was made here on Tuesday afternoon, the facts of which have but just come to light. A young man named Charles E. Schuyler, of Little Falls, N. Y., a telegraph oper-ator, called on the sixteen-year-old daughter of one of our prominent citizens on the afternoon of Tuesday, while she was attending school, repre-senting that he was employed in her father's office; that her father been injured by the falle her to him. She accompanied Schuy-ler to the place where it was represented that her father was lying. On en-tering a room Schuyler locked the door, seized the young lady, and, telling door, seized the young lady, and, telling her of his purpose to keep her a prisoner until a certain sum of money had been paid, forced her to copy the following part of a letter to her father which he had written:

"Dear Papa: I ask you to give this man $500, for unless he raises that sum within a week he is ruined. He pledges you his word and honor that it shall be returned to you in 60 days. For this loan he has no security to offer you except myself, whom he has in keeping. He must have it immediately, within a week. So long as I think you intend week. So long as I think you intend to pay this sum just so long shall I be kindly dealt with, but at the first indi-

At this point she stopped writing and begged to be released, promising to raise the required sum and bring it to him. On her swearing to never disclose what had happened she was released Yesterday she told her father what had taken place. Schuyler was arrested last night at a late hour, and this morning he confessed his crime. On his per son was found a letter to the father o the young lady saying in substance that he had his son Willie, aged six years, in custody, and would release him on the payment of $5,000. If the sum was not forthcoming the child would be drowned. The names of a number of children of wealthy resiwith their homes, were also

There is neither purity, propriety nor precision in this sentence, but whatever may be remembered and whoever may be forgotten, we should not fail to remember that we shall not forget that His Fraudulency uttered it at Aurora, Illinois. Other gems of thought and jewels of expression are scattered along the railroad route brightened by the "elegant and refined tows" of the estimable ladies who are aiding and abetting the regular autumnal go as-you-please to-the-pumpkinshow progress of Mr. Hayes.

THE DEMOCRATIC PICNIC.

Five Thousand People in Attendance at Pine Grove.

ADDRESSES BY HON, WILLIAM A. WALLACI HON, SAMUEL J. RANDALL AND OTHERS. GOOD ORDER AND GOOD FEELING. rom Harrisburg Patriot.

Saturday last was a red-letter day in the history of the Democracy of the Cumberland Valley. The trains on the Cumberland Valley and South Mountain railroads specially provided for the occasion were loaded down with human freight en route for the great Democratic picnic at Pine Grove. Two trains left this city, one at 7:30 A. M. and another at'8 A. M., with about two hundred Harrisburg Democrats on board. As they proceeded up the valley every station contributed its dozens and fifties and hundreds until finally at least 5,000 people were congregated at the grove. Cumberland, Adams, York, Dauphin and Franklin were represented in the gathering. The eight o'clock train had among its passengers Daniel O. Barr, Esq., the Democratic candidate for State Treasurer, Senator Wallace, Congressman Beltzhoover and other distinguished Democrats. There were bands of music everywhere and the votaries of Terpsichore tripped it on the light fantastic toe as if to show the Republicans how light-hearted people are whose consciences are clear of the great fraud by which the theft of the Presidency was accomplished. There was perfect order on the ground and not a drunken man was to be seen. Hundreds of ladies also graced the occasion with their presence. After an excellent dinner served under the auspices of that prince of caterers, Barney Wilder, of Carlisle, the meeting was or ganized and Senator Wallace was in-troduced as the first speaker. We have room for only a brief synopsis of the Senator's address, as follows: Senator Wallace said: The industries of the country are reviving, and prosperity is slowly returning. This is the result of the distribution of the forces of labor, and of the application of the surplus labor in the mines and or the surplus labor in the mines and manufactories to agricultural pursuits. It is not the fruit of legislation, but it is the result of the thrift, economy and productive energies of the people, aided by a large foreign demand for our staples. Is this renewed prosperity to be permanent? Will it continue when the countries we are now feeding shall again be blessed by abundant harvests? What would be the condition of this what would be the condition of this country, if there were no foreign demand for our products? How are we to insure a market for what we produce in the future? Can we do it by causing divisions among our own people, and by arraying one section of country against another, by flaunting the "bloody shirt" and crying down with the "Confederate brigadier?" Or shall we recognize the fact that the actual we recognize the fact that the actual market for our manufactures is in the South and aid to restore our market by restoring unity, peace and good government throughout the whole country. The only security for a continuance of the period of prosperity now about breaking upon our Pennsylvania industries is to be found in restoring the whole country to the condition of one prosperies and paid a posted result. Pennsylvania are more interested in this question than any other section of the Republic, for we are the workshop of the Republic. The true protection for Pennsylvania's industries is in the restoration of peace and good fellow. for Pennsylvania's industries is in the restoration of peace and good fellow ship to all. The Democratic party has had some divisions upon financial questions, but its tendency to day is to a common ground. That is the equalization of the dollar in every form to a common value. Gold and silver are the basis of our currency; all paper redeemable therein; and one leading thought upon which we and one leading thought upon which we shall rest ourselves is that the debt of the people is to be managed in the interests of the people, and not in the interest of syndicates and bankers. This debt is to be paid to its uttermost farthing, but to be paid with the least burden syndicates and the scene that the second of th den of oppression upon the people themselves. The power of money thro' the various ramifications of the Federal government is one of the curses of the present administration of Federal pow-er. Ninety thousand office helders, with their salaries paid by the Federal gov-ernment, amounting to many millions, are a source of corruption to the Repubare a source of corruption to the Repub-lican organization at every election. This fund and these office-holders con-stitute the anchor that keeps the Re-publican party in power. This fund is one of their great inducements to the centralization of the government. Corporate power, and every interest that feels its need to take privileges from the people, unite in the demand for cenpeople, unite in the demand for centralization and a strong government. We believe in governing from the bottom, not from the top. The individual is the unite in government. To him belong all rights, save those which are vital to social order, and those belong to the government for the safety of the whole. When they verge upon the whole. When they verge upon the rights of the people, they are to be jeal-ously watched. Governments in township organizations, in county control, and in State affairs, having the direct application of the individual thought to the affairs of the localities, are infinitely the affairs of the localities, are infinitely better in guarding and protecting against corruption and wrong than a syster which ramifies from one common hea at Washington, and attempts to control local affairs in the extremities, is justly and properly chargeable to the is justly and properly chargeable to the Republican organization. Any stain that has been placed upon the escutcheon of Pennsylvania lies at the door of the Republican party. Have we not had enough of shame and contumely from the conduct of Legislatures of our State? Has not the the time come to have gothern that a reason that the continue to State? Has not the time come to change this? Are we to continue to have the pollution that produces public prosecutions and corrupt alliances at every session of the Legislature? Are we to change this by changing the administration in the control of State afficies? Our candidate for State Trees. fairs? Our candidate for State Treas urer, a gentleman of character and pur ity, the nominee of the party, made without dictation, is before you for your suffrages. His opponent is the nominee of the men who control and dictate the be the men who control and dictate the legislation of your State, and upon whom rests the responsibility for the present disgraceful condition of affairs. Has not the time come to intrust our State affairs to different control and in safer hands?

Ex-Congressman W. S. Stenger followed Senator Wallace in an elaborate and forcible address which was listened to with rapt attention by the immense audience. W. U. Hensel, Esq., of Lancas dience. W. U. Hensel, Esq., of Lancas-ter, also addressed the meeting in an able and effective manner. The four o'clock train brought Speaker Randall to the ground who made the closing speech in his usual logical and convincing style. The best of feeling prevailed among the assembled Democrats and the affair way an optice success. the affair was an entire success. Guswiler, the chairman of the Demo cratic county committee of Cumberland county, received much praise for his management of the picnic, and the officers of the Cumberland Valley and South Mountain railroads deserv thanks of the Democrats in attendance the excellent management of the excursion trains.

Sherman and the South.

THE SOUTHERN REPUBLICANS PLEDGED TO THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY FOR PRESIDENT.

From the Washington Post. From the Washington Post.

The Southern Republicans met at Willard's Hotel Saturday night to perfect an organization and adopt resolutions expressive of their action in the coming political campaign. Messrs. Rayner, Rutherford, Torbell, Reynolds and others made speeches, wherein they spoke of the necessity of organizing the party and putting it in working order. The sentiment of the meeting was in favor of Secretary Sherman as the favor of Secretary Sherman as the Presidential candidate, and the Southern Republicans may be considered as pledged to him. Secretary Sherman himself was chiefly instrumental in having it called together. While the Southern Republican association may not affect, by the votes of its members, the election in any way, it may be able to influence some of the Southern dele gates to the Radical convention, and gates to the Radical convention, Sherman has thus taken time by forelock to anticipate the action of Grant men, who all along have t calculating on a "solid South" for their

PALSE CLAIMS PAID OUT FOR NINE YEARS ON FORGED PAPERS Form the Washington Post.

George Brown, who was indicted for perjury in connection with pensions, and whose implication in fresh frauds was first published in the Past, arrived here on Saturday night from New York arrested on a bench warrant issued on demand of his bail sureties against him. He had been released on $1,000 bail, but left the city on the discovery of his other rascalities. Alice Miller and Mollie Jarboe, two disreputable white women, were also arrested Saturday for complicity in the frauds. The Miller woman confessed to having personated Sophia Cuffner, Bridget Kearns, Eliza Mahoney, Mary Kelley and Emily A. Kennerson. The Jarboe woman's role was to swear to the other's identity The origin of the frauds was the theft nine years ago, of forty pension certifi-cates by a discharged clerk named Craig, who distributed them among half a dozen persons, among them Brown, who was a Pullman car conductor. They were all belonging to widows of invalid pensioners, and the Miller woman has, it appears, traveled between Baltimore and Philadelphia, personating the va-rious women on her list belonging to

Important to Voters.

The next election in Pennsylvania will be held on Fuesday, the 4th of November.

Voters must have paid a state or county tax oponth preceding the election, that is, on Saturday, October 4.

Members of Democratic state, county and city com nittees should see to it that every voter of our party has complied with the law.

Failure to pay tax in season deprives the voter of the privilege of suffrage. An elector can swear in his vote, though he be not assessed, but the neglect may cause him much trouble.

As This is the season when colds are most likely to be taken, a word of advice to our readers would be in season: First, then, keep your feet dry; wear fiannel next your skin; do not sit or stand in draughts of air, and upon the first symptom of a cold or a cough call at Green's Drug Store, in Bush House Block, and procure a bottle of his "Compound Syrup of Tar, Honey and Bloodroot," which will give you almost instant relief. It is a pleasant and effectual preparation, containing the virtues of Tar combined with some of the best expectorants and anodynes, allaying all those distressing symptoms which if not promptly arrested will too frequently result in that fatal disease, Consumption. Price, 50 cents a bottle, or six for $2.50. As THIS is the season when colds are
