Rise Up, Mr. Blaine.

It is now Senator Blaine's time to rise and explain! Heretofore he has been quite free in charging bull-dozing, and other election irregularities to the Democracy, particularly to those residing south of Mason and Dixon's line. It is now the bloody shirt Senator's time to explain how he conducts elections in Maine. We have already had some very interesting specimens of the manner in which things are managed by Republicans in Mas-cratic. It is now claimed that at the late municipal election Lewiston's city sachusetts and Rhode Island to control the ballot and secure Federal supremacy, furnished by the investigations of the Wallace committee. And now the Boston Globe has been making very extensive inquiries throughout the State of Maine to ascertain how far honesty in politics prevails in that far-down region, and is now giving the results of the inquiries, which certainly do not pan out very creditably to Mr. Blaine and his party. It unearths a state of affairs that will throw in the back-ground the worst features that the Senator's brilliant fancy has been able to give to the terlessed from confinement and his fine leaved from confinement and his party. fancy has been able to give to the terrible state of society existing in the Southern States, and so graphically detailed in his bloody-shirt speeches. That the Senator is capable of drawing very largely upon his imagination for material to attack the Southern Democracy and fire up the smoldering embers of Northern fanaticism and hate, we have had many illustrations. He will now be called upon to meet realities in the testimony, verbal and documentary, collected by the Globe from all sources in Maine, and which show a state of society that for fair elections and the rights of the people, is discreditable in the extreme.

The evidence in possession of the of the State College, belonging in other parts tyranny and a reckless disregard of The evidence in possession of the of the State, and, in some cases, of Globe consists of records of the elections, official documents of the Courts, and that a considerable number of nonsworn statements of the citizens and written instructions of Republican leaders and committees, and they show that the late boasted Republican victory in Maine was obtained at a fearful cost of political infamy. Indeed, nothing so subversive of the rights of the citizen, and so disastrous to good the citizen, and so disastrous to good to come the committee of the cases burn Alderman Miller was seen to add two names to the check list. But a great many of the small traders of the wrongdoing they had witnessed, saying that the result would be to ruin their business. To be a Democratic lawyer was to lose nine-tenths of the cases brought before the municipal and county Courts. It is alleged that at least government, has been brought to the attention of the people since the history of the Presidential steal was given to the world, as will be furnished in the details which the Globe is now giving to the public in proof of the bribery, intimidation, direct purchase, and the forced participation of the Courts in these efforts of the stalwarts to maintain their political ascendency

MORE OF REPUBLICAN METHODS AT THE LAST ELECTION.

THE FREE USE OF MONEY ACKNOWLEDGED BY BLAINE'S STRIKERS—BUYING A CRIM-INAL'S RELEASE WITH VOTES.

rom Special Dispatch to Philadelphia Record Boston, November 2.—The Globe con tinues its exposures of Republican methods in Maine at the last election, and much comment is caused by the revelations made. Blaine and other leaders are said to be very much exercised to know how much the investiga tion in their State has really develope One of the most important points made public is the story of an interview with E. K. Hall, Representative elect from the New Castle district, who having been convinced that the interviewer was a good Republican, freely confessed that he and other men in the district openly bought votes at prices ranging from fifty cents to fifteen dollars apiece. The following letter from Jas. G. Blaine, which Mr. Hull confessed to having received, is also published:

Letters similar to this and signed by Mr. Blaine appear to have been sent to confidential workers all over the State. Another interesting interview was had with a man by the name of Her-bert. He said that it took hard work and a great deal of money to carry the last election in Maine, but that it had been done in a thoroughly business-like manner. Continuing he said: "Out of our town there were a good many that had to be bought, but ours cost us a od deal less than most anywhere else why, I didn't pay over $2 apiece for some of the worst of them, and a good many I got for a day's work." HIS LIFELESS BODY FOUND IN HIS BED IN A CHICAGO HOTEL.

CHICAGO, November 2. - Senator Zach-CHICAGO, November 2.—Senator Adon-drain Chandler, of Michigan, was found dead in his bed at the Grand Pacific Hotel yesterday morning. He had been speaking in Wisconsin, and on been speaking in Wisconsin, and on Friday night addressed an immense au-dience at McCormick's Hall, in this city, and spoke with his usual earnest-ness. After the meeting, when he and Senator Logan and Jesse Spaulding were sitting in his room engaged in con-versation, Senator Chandler complained of indigestion. As he had complained of the same distressing feeling en route to the city with these gentlemen it was suggested that he should remain in the city until Saturday, but he said business affairs would require his attention at home. In the morning when the office boy called him there was no response, and when finally an entrance was effect ed Senator Chandler was found dead. The body was not quite cold and the physician who was present decided that death occurred about three hours pre-vious to the discovery. The expression of the face indicated that death had been painless. He lay upon his back, with several pillows propped up behind his head. His coat was wrapped around his shoulders, as if having felt cold, he his shoulders, as if having felt cold, he had arisen and put it half on and then gone back to bed, and his hands rested on his pillow, one on each side of his head, as if he had been holding the coat about his neck. His feet, however, were partly upon the floor, giving him the aspect of half sitting. The verdict of the coroner's jury was that death resulted from cerebal hemorrhage. The friends and relatives of the deceased objected to a complete post-mortem examination and the body was embalmed

General Hooker had been in his usual health until an hour before his death. and purposed going to New York to-morrow to attend to business matters. He entertained a large party at dinner at the Garden City hotel on the 26th and has seemed to be in the best of spirits and to enjoy social intercourse with his many friends as fully as at any time of his life. His intellect was un-clouded, and but for his unfortunate lameness he would seem to have been as active as ever. He took his accus-tomed walk in the Park during the afternoon and did not complain of feeling ill till about four o'clock, when he retired to his own apartment on the second floor and summoned his valet, Thomas Lawler, who assisted him to arrange a position upon a couch. After an hour he arose and busied himself about his room till 5.45. His valet hear ing the General struggling for breath stened to his side and assisted him to lie down upon his bed, at the st time ringing the bell for help. Mr. C. Kerson, the hotel superintendent, hurried to the room, but when he ar-rived the General was dead.

Opposed to the Telegraph.

The strongest opposition to a tele-graph line from uncivilized races is alays met when it is first erected. Fear of the strange thing and jealousy of ter ritorial encroachment naturally excite the sayage mind to resent the innovaand most construction parties wild countries have to be protected by an escort of troops. The great trans-Australian overland line, recently com-pleted, was carried for hundreds of miles through desert solitudes, unharmed by the blacks; but on the Macdon-ald range a band of hostile natives were encountered, and the electricians gained a bloodless victory over them by connecting the poles of a powerful battery to the wire, and administering shocks unawares to those of the native who were prowling curiously around. The mysterious power, which seemed to them like a thunder stroke, inspired them with a wholesome terror of the wire, and they gave it a wide berth after that. Both in Australia and New Zealand several erecting parties have been attacked by the Aborigines and massacred. Of late, however, in New Zealand, the Maoris have shown a different spir-it, probably because of a better manent on the part of There is sworn evidence that at Auburn Alderman Miller was seen to add two names to the check list. # The President's Favorites.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28 .- Quite a scandal has been created in army and navy circles by two or three cases of interfer-ence by the President with the routine of business in the departments to grati-fy favorites. The case of Parker, the nephew of Devens, has been already referred to. He had been found deficient at his examination in this city. Devens made an urgent appeal to the President in his behalf, and he was given another chance before a board ordered at West Point. But before standing his examin-ston before the board, it is claimed the ation before the board, it is claimed, the President took the responsibility of waiving the examination, and concluded to appoint him on a letter written him by Parker from New York. Worse yet, there was one vacancy to be filled in the cavalry regiments which was eagerly sought by several of the young men who had excelled at the examinations, and one of these had been selected by the Adjutant-General for the pla ed by the Adjutant-General for the place when a peremptory order came from the President directing it to be given to Parker, the most notoriously deficient in capacity of all the appointees. Another instance is given of an order from the President peremptorily directing the Secretary of the Navy to detach from a ship in commission a versual. from a ship in commission a young lieu-tenant who was dissatisfied with his captain. We must carry our beautiful baby to town
Some day when the weather is fair." we said,
We must dress him up in his prettiest gown,
And wave his hair on the top of his head;
For all his cousins, and all his annts,
And both his grandmothers proud and dear
beclare it is shameful and every way blameful,
To have lad no picture of him this year."

He was three months old when we took him before, And he lay like a lamb on his mamma's lap, And the darling now has a twelve-month more Of bewildering graces from sock to cap, Just look at his dear little laughing face, At the rosebud mouth, at the violet eyes— Why the protograph-taker, that vanity shaker, Will think this time we have brought him a prize!

We carried our child to the town one day, The skies were soft, and the air was cool, We robed him richly in fine array— Ribbons and laces, and Swiss and tulle. He looked like a prince in the artist's chair, Sitting erect, and brave and grand, With a big, red apple, he scarce could grapple, Held close in the palm of one dimpled hand,

"He is taking it now!" We held our breath!
He furtively peoped from behind the screen!
"What a pose!" we whispered; then, still as death,
Waited—and baby was all serene
"Ill the critical moment, when, behold,
The sun was catching that lovely look,
Such a terrible roar it shook the floor!
And that was the picture the swift sun took:

a wrinkled face, and close shut eyes, And a mouth that's opened so very wide that our dear little sister, sibyl-wise, Declares she can see the cry inside, units and cousins and grandmothers dear Haven't got over their anger yet; lut we thought it was funny, and paid our money For that strange phase of our precious pet.

Ah! children older than baby, think Dear little children, blithe and sw Dear little children, blithe and sweet,
With your curls of gold and your cheeks of pink
And your naughty tempers sudden and fleet,
What an awful thing it would be for you
If an artist should happen along some day,
And, observing the pouting, the frown, or the flouting,
Should take a picture of you that way!

How the Captives Were Freed.

Mrs. Meeker's Statement in the New York Herald. "We owe much to the wife of Johnson. She is Ouray's sister, and like him, she has a kind heart. Ouray had ordered us to be well treated and that we should be allowed to go home. The council was a stormy one. Various opinions prevailed. The war party wanted us held until peace should be made between the Indians and the Government. They wanted to set us against the guilty murders so set us against the guilty murderers so as to save them through us. After a few hours of violent speeches, Mrs. Johnson burst into the lodge in a magnificent wrap and demanded that the captives be set free, war or no war. Her brothr Ouray had so ordered, and she took the assembly by storm. She told the pathetic story of the captives, and advised the Indians to do as Ouray reuested, and trust to the mercy of the covernment. General Adams said he must have a decision at once or he would leave. That settled it, and we were set free. Next morning, when we were about to start for the wagon, which was a day's journey to the South, Chief Johnson, who was slightly cool toward us, threw out a poor saddle for me to ride upon. His wife Susan caught sight of it and was furious. She flung it away and went to a pile of saddles and picked out the best one in the lot. She found a good blanket and gave both to me. Then she turned to her chief and poured out her contempt with such effect that he was glad to sneak away. So which long as I remember the tears this good woman shed over the children the words of sympathy which she gave, the kindness that she continually showed to us. I shall never cease to respect her and to bless the goodness of her brother, Ouray, the Spanish-speaking chief of the South. I trust all the good people will remember them.

Thurman's Monument.

rom the Boston Transcript.

Senator Thurman is having his obituary written on all hands-and not without some generous and genuine regrets among Republican newspapers of the sort that another of the good old fashioned kind of statesmen is gone from the public service. Almost simul-taneously with his political demise the taneously with his political demise the United States Supreme Court erects his monument in a decision confirming the constitutionality of the Pacific Railroad Act. This noble piece of constructive legislation is known as the Thurman any statesman. Considering the hith-erto invincible strength and resources of the combined Courts act, and is a sufficient achievement for the combined Central and Union lobby at Washington, Mr. Thurman's triumph reflected no less credit on his effectiveness as a legislator than on his moral soundness, legal knowledge and farsighted statesman-ship. As the Chief Justice's opinion recounts, in less than twenty years from the present time, there will become due from the Union Pacific Company about $80,000,000, secured by first and subsidy port, on the capital stock representing $36,000,000 more, with the exception of land grants. Little if anything except the earnings of the Company can be depended on to meet these obligations, when they mature. These earnings the Company, after paying the interest of it's own bonds, has been dividing from time to time among its stockholders, without laying by any-thing to meet the enormous debt which is soon to become due. The Thurman Act has compelled them to lay by a just Act has compelled them to lay by a just contribution out of current earnings to meet these future obligations, and the Supreme Court (with Justices Strong Bradley and Field dissenting) says that that act shall stand. It should not be forgojten, in awarding Senator Thurman his due credit for his important legisla-tion, but Senator Edmunds stood by him through the bitter struggle and gave him most powerful support.
