From our regular Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 5, 1880.

The House is in a sad pickle. It established a new code of rules, after weeks of wrestling and effort, only to find itself pretty much in the predicament of the frogs who, getting weary of King Log, got King Stork, in answer to their prayers, for a new ruler. The revised rules are so provocative of confusion and interminable wrangling, which consumes so much precious time. that it is not at all unlikely that the House will abolish them by unanimous consent, and return to the old. Just on the same principle that a negro farm hand or raw Irish laborer cannot be taught to use an improved implement, but must rather be left the heavy club-hoe or pick, simply because he is in-capable of the mental effort involved in learning something new, the average Congressman finds himself stranded on the new rules. He has a knowledge of the old, and the direct necessities of the nation could not force the new into if he knew all about the subject matter. One member sent up a bill, with a re-quest to have it entered on the Calen-dar. To the inquiry, "Which Calen-dar?" he said, indignantly, "The House Calendar, of course." He stupidly pre-sumed that the new rules put all bills on the Calendar, and dispensed with the usual reference to the proper commitusual reference to the proper commit-tee. As the shortest method of secur-ing relief from the muddle, we look for a return to the old code, much as such an unwise course is to be depreciated. an unwise course is to be depreciated. It contains so much that is obsolete and objectionable, that a new order of things can not but prove beneficial if persistently followed up and improved under the ordeal of debate. The Senate has been discussing the bill permitting the National Centennial Exhibition at New York City in 1883

Exhibition at New York City in 1883. The great Constitutional stickler, Mr. Edmunds, of course interposed with his amendments upon all sections of the bill, and, at times, had the whole Senate after him in an endeavor to remove his after him in an endeavor to remove his objections to certain provisions. Sena-ter Edmunds takes nothing for granted, and accepts few statements for facts. He acts upon a bill precisely as he would in a petty trial in the courts, by demanding evidence in support of demanding evidence in support of every statement, and in requiring the record or clause which seems imperfect to him to be amended and perfected in ed by President Hayes. Three of the best the minutest particular, hence he is a and bravest of the general officers of great thorn in everyone's side. Mr. the army have been ordered to sit as Voorhees gave him a good scolding, and judges. The Government has assigned characterized him as an obstructionist, its most capable judge advocate to the but the lecture did not ruffle the equanimity of the objector in the slightest. He is absolutely impervious to any such attack, for no cucumber equals him in coolness on all occasions in debate. coolness on all occasions in debate. At one time, when raising an objection, Mr. Kernan asked him to write the amendment himself, but he declined, saying it was not his place to write anything. No one doubts the propriety of having every interest of the Govern-ment perfectly protected in all meas-ures acted upon by Congress; but Sena-tors naturally regard their individual pet schemes as already perfected, hence they get greatly disturbed and ruffled whenever Mr. Edmunds sticks one or more pins into some vital point of the more pins into some vital point of the bill under consideration. In one of the bill under consideration. In one of the discussions, Senator Thurman became suddenly ill, and was unable to proceed with his remarks. There are few per-sons here who would not regret the permanent absence of Mr. Thurman from the Senate, for he has the esteem and affection of all who know his intel-lectual towar and great personal worth lectual power and great personal worth, and the wish is general that his conval-escence may have no relapse. There is one peculiarity in Mr. Thurman's speeches which should attract attention, and that is, the purity of his English or rather choice of Saxon in preference to words of other languages. So much so is he inclined to our mother tongue, that often he will use a common colothat often he will use a common colo-quial phrase to express some desired shade of meaning in a deep, logical legal argument. Instead of a high-sounding Latin quotation, which several of his brother Senators interject into their speeches, it matters little whether apt or not, he calls a spade a spade, so that the most ignorant listener or read-er cannot mistake his meaning. The deficiency appropriation bill, with the House rider, which vests in the United States Courts, instead of the the United States Courts, instead of the marshals, the appointment of deputy marshals, has been passed by the Senate and will, of course, provoke a veto from the President. Mr. Edmunds made an adverse argument, to which Mr. Eaton responded in a three minutes' speech, and these were the only remarks which preceded a final vote, which was taken by vears and pays.

by years and nays. We have a pleasant custom here of devoting Easter Monday to the children, devoting Easter Monday to the children, who spend the day in rolling eggs with each other. In former years the Capi-tol grounds were given up to them, and thousands would gather on the terraces which slope down from the base of the Capitol building, using these as the in-clines on which to roll their colored eggs. But finally, so great became the numbers as to destroy the sodding with their shoes, and to require the whole of the succeeding year to restore the grass. the succeeding year to restore the grass. This led to a sweeping prohibition from the grounds, under which the children sought the "White House Lot," and this year its beautiful knools were covered with the little fellows, as intent on rolling their eggs as ever at the Capitol. The staid gravity which ever seems to surround the White House, and which even Monday's bright, glad sunshine would not have warmed or penetrated, was sadly disturbed by the troops of laughing, shouting Arabs, who, from early morn to nightfall, piled their fun with their eggs. The schools were clos-ed, as usual, and the whole city sent its delegates, until their numbers fairly crowded the grounds. FELIX.

The Case of Fitz John Porter.

From the New York Herald.

Our esteemed contemporary, the Sun, in its comments on the case of Fitz John Porter, should remember that the original trial was generally looked upon at the time by decent people, who knew the facts, as one of the very scurviest of all scurvy acts of military injustice of which the infamous Stanton and the not less infamous Holt had then been guilty. Holt was a narrow-minded, bitter and unscrupulous Kentucky partisan, driven out of office in Mississippi for his bloodthirstiness, who had been made the judge advocate-general of the War Office, and was about as fit to hold such an office as Scroggs or Jeffreys. Stanton was a flat-terer who tried to stand well with President Buchanan after the election of November, 1860, and so long as there were Executive drippings for his little pan. When Buchanan was at an end Stanton turned upon his former companions and allies. The accusation of Porter and his trial were political oper-ations throughout. The person really aimed at in the Porter prosecution was not Porter but McCiellan, whom Stan ton and Holt did not dare accuse and try. The trial took place when the rivalries, jealousies and animosities in the Union army were at their whitest heat, and when the time serving and truculent Stanton was the convenient the nation could not force the new into his thick head. But this opacity of un-derstanding does not, of course, dis-turb the balance of his tongue, for it will wag on every occasion as glibly as if he knew all about the subject matter. One member sent up a bill, with a re-quest to have it entered on the Calen-tar. To the incurrent Which Calen-tar. Hot thread the same time the official adviser of the court. Holt threw himself into the trial and the efforts to convict Porter with the ferocity of a French subaltern. Under the law and the rules of the War Office then in force the judge ad vocate general was required to present the facts of the case to the President when the proceedings were laid before him for his approval or disapproval. Holt's report of the facts, instead of be-Holt's report of the facts, instead of be-ing a judicial exposition, was more par-tisan than the speech before the court. President Lincoln, whom Stanton and Holt both despised and hated, had not time to carefully weigh the testimony piece by piece. He had to confide in somebody. Stanton and Holt harried and hullied him into an approval of the and bullied him into an approval of the sentence. Stanton threatened him with an exposure of his domestic diff culties an exposure of his domestic difficulties if he hesitated. The prosecution of Porter had been set afoot in order to get in a foul blow against McClellan, as we have said, under the form of milita-ry judicature. The wretched Stanton and the not less wretched Holt were both prosecutors and judges. Nearly a generation afterwards when new and generation afterwards, when new and complete evidence has been obtained, and when the War Office is in possession

A Fire in Bradford.

BRADFORD, Pa., April 2.-at 5.30 o'clock BRADFORD, Pa., April 2.—at 5.30 o'clock this morning a fire started in the rear up-stairs room of Sawyer's saloon, on Main street. It spread quickly, and before the fire could be stopped Applebee & Rogers' grocery, J. C. Holmes' whole-sale liquor store, Dilbert's barber shop, Wrights' wholesale grocery, the Titus-ville House, a very large structure; Academy of Music in which was Camp-bell & Irwin's restaurant and Michael's clothing store; William Edinburgh's bell & Irwin's restaurant and Michael's clothing store; William Edinburgh's house, Hanlan's Hotel, Falliwell & Wate's drug store, Sullivan's saloon, Jip-kin's meat market, the Carey House, Washington House and Travelers' Home were all totally consumed. The Parker House and Bean's large building were House and Bean's large building were seriously damaged. Owing to a lack of water at the out-start, the fire was not got under control until near 10 o'clock. It is impossible at present to get a de-tailed list of the losses, but a rough es-timate places them at $50,000. A man named James Wilson, who retired at the Sawyer House somewhat intoxicat-ed, is believed to have knocked a lamp over. from which the fire originated. over, from which the fire originated. The charred trunk of his remains was found in the debris shortly before noon. He was 28 years of age, and a native of Dunkirk, N. Y., where his mother and sister reside. A rumor is afloat that he was robbed in the Sawyer House, and in the scuffle which ensued the lamp was overthrown, when his assailant fled, after locking him in the room.

its most capable judge advocate to the prosecution. The trial has been a pa-tient, a thorough and a public trial. The court has found unanimously that the first sentence was unjust, and there-fore unlawful. The Republican leaders have thereupon decided that resistance to a congressional recognition of the military judgment of a military court is to be made a military measure. What do decent Republicans think of this? And how long are such things to be tolerated in a country calling itself Christian and civilized?

From the New York Sun No More "15" at the White House.

'Twas in the White House parlor, At the the godly hour of nine, That Mr. Hayes was trying The puzzle to divine

The olive branches clustered About his bended knee, And oft he sipped in silence A cocktail—made of tea.

With éager eyes they watched him As he slipped the blocks about, But vain were all his efforts To work the problem out.

From 1 to 6 the numbers Were in their places straight And so were all the others Except the 7 and 8.

"'Tis very odd," he murmured, "Key trips up on eleven, And Schurz on 3, but somehow I stick on 8 or 7!

"No matter how I move them, They're sure to come the same; How shall I get the working Of this pesky Fifteen Game.

Then out spoke little Scotty With gentle voice and low : "Why pa, just write a letter To Aliunde Joe !
