About all the weather-wise prophets predict a cold winter, which is about the most conclusive evidence we can have that it will be warm.

One thousand men and boys can be given employment at the Philadelphia Branch in purchasing from their large stock of clothing.

The passenger train from Lock Haven, yesterday afternoon, was delayed for several hours by a wreck near Howard. We believe that no one was injured.

Services will be held in the Presbyterian church to-morrow evening, some minister preaching there whose name we have not learned, but whom all the Presbyterians desire to hear.

House plants seem to be growing luxuriantly. In almost every window may be seen a beautiful lily, cactus or other plant which displays a wealth of blossoms and a profusion of foliage.

Some rascal entered the store of Mr. Henry Eckenroth, at Pleasant Gap, on Thursday night of last week and carried off about $30 worth of goods, including tobacco, cigars, hose, handkerchiefs, &c.

An exchange says that "the true way to advance another's virtue is to follow it, and the best way to cry down another's vice is to decline it." Just so; and the best way to get good groceries is to buy them of S. A. Brew & Son.

Venor predicts a terrible snow storm to begin December 22 and continue seventeen hours, during which an average depth of eleven feet and a half of snow will fall. From which we judge that sleighs will be a profitable investment this winter.

The death of Mr. Wm. Askey occurred at his home in Moshannon on Tuesday of last week. The deceased was a gentleman of excellent character, and had been an elder in the Presbyterian church for several years. He was 77 years of age.

The boys who have been engaged in stealing away the boards in front of the Presbyterian church are ordered to return them immediately or a policeman will be sent after them. The young rascals are well known, as two of them were discovered in the act on Saturday last.

Miss Ada Tonner, the graceful and accomplished daughter of the late Rev. Jno. Tonner, of this place, and sister of Mrs. Henry P. Harris, died at Canton, Ohio, on Tuesday night of last week, after a long illness. Her disease was consumption of the bowels. It will be remembered she visited her sister in this place about one year ago. Her death will be lamented.

The Tyrone Times says James Attie, fireman on the Bald Eagle Valley branch, met with an accident at Julian last week which may cost him his life. While his train was stopping at that place he for some cause got on top of a box car, from which he fell to the ground head foremost, injuring his head and breast, and straining his wrist. His condition is very precarious at this writing.

The meetings to be held in the Young Men's Christian Association rooms next week, incident to the observance of the week of prayer for Young Men's Christian Associations throughout the world, promise to be of much interest. They will begin with a public meeting on Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, and will continue each evening of the week, except Wednesday, at 7 o'clock. Capable leaders will be secured for each service. The presence, prayers and co-operation of all Christian people are desired.

Business is more brisk than ever before at the Philadelphia Branch.

If you want the very best smoke you ever had in your life try one of Harry Green's cigars.

He who neglects to use Day's Kidney Pad, for any disease of the kidneys, bladder, or urinary organs, courts suffering and invites death.

A glance from the High street bridge these frosty mornings in the direction of the spring reveals a scene of considerable industry. The smoke is ascending from at least three large smoke stacks, and as it rolls up into the air the rising sun throws over it a white and billowy light. It is a cheerful scene, and we wish that instead of only three such places of industry, the number could be increased to an hundred.

The marriage of William E. Wallace, son of Senator Wallace, to Miss Yeakley, niece of George B. Goodlander, of the Clearfield Republican, which took place at Clearfield last Thursday, is described as a very elegant affair. Only the immediate friends of the contracting pair were present. Miss Yeakley is a very beautiful young lady. She was attired in white satin. Of course, the presents received were numerous, costly and elegant.

At the meeting of the Congressional return judges held at the court house on Tuesday, Clearfield county was represented by Mr. A. J. Goodfellow, of Clearfield; Clinton, by Mr. J. H. Laverty, of Lock Haven; Elk, by Mr. George Reuser, of St. Marys; Millin, by Mr. George Bates, of Milroy; Union, by Mr. A. J. Angstadt, of Lewisburg, and Centre by Gen. Wm. H. Blair, of Bellefonte. The clerk to the board was C. L. Bullington, of Milesburg. The meeting was a pleasant one.

Our friend Judge Orvis, in addition to his great legal attainments, has long enjoyed a high reputation as one of our most successful piscatorial sportsmen. He now appears in a new roll—that of a Nimrod, in which skill and good luck are equally balanced in his favor. He went to the woods a few days since in search of wild game. He found it, and returned home with two very fine deer as the result of his prowess with the rifle. The meat was of superior flavor. We speak of it advisedly and have not been indebted to our friend for the same and remembrance.

The following, which we clip from an exchange, if confirmed by actual experience, would seem to be of value to farmers in every community: Corn loses one-fifth in drying and wheat one-fourteenth. From this the estimate is made that it is more profitable for farmers to sell unshelled corn in the fall at 75 cents than at $1.00 a bushel in the following summer, and wheat at $1.25 in December is equal to $1.50 in the succeeding June. In the case of potatoes—taking those that rot and are otherwise lost, together with the shrinkage, there is but little doubt that between October and June the loss to the one who holds them is not less than 33 per cent.

A remarkably strong gale of wind passed over this place on Saturday night, continuing until noon on Sunday. It blew down signboards, chimneys and spouting. It covered the pavements with twigs and leaves from the trees. It saved the Democrats the trouble of removing the portraits of Hancock and English from the transparency in front of their headquarters, by lifting them gently on a passing zephyr and conveying them below. It brought the color to pedestrians' cheeks and tried to take away their breath as they battled with it on their way to church on Sunday morning. It was succeeded by a lovely Sabbath afternoon and night, and the temperature ever since has been exceedingly pure and bracing.

We believe that Bellefonte young ladies have very elegant and well-shaped hands and they will hail with delight the new idea just come into vogue of taking a model of the hands to secure a perfectly shaped glove. A Broadway glover takes an impression of the members in wax, and then makes their counterparts in plaster-of-paris. These hands he uses in making gloves to order, just as shoemakers conform lasts to suit your peculiar corns, and thereby get perfect fits. The fancy pleases those who have small and shapely hands and are proud to see them reproduced in plaster. Then a young lady can have her exceptionally pretty hand done in marble and give it for a Christmas present to her affianced husband for a paper weight. Do you see the beauty of the idea? The hand that is soon to be his is before him as he toils at his desk, and he can congratulate himself that it won't be so hard when his wife comes to conjugally cuff him.

On Wednesday evening of last week at about 8 o'clock a wreck of an extensive character occurred on the Tyrone and Clearfield railroad, resulting in the death of one man. A long train of freight cars was running along the big fill, near Summit station, when the engine left the track and rolled down the bank. It was followed by eighteen freight cars which together with the engine were very badly broken. Fireman A. Halligan, a resident of Tyrone, was instantly killed. The body lay under the wreck all night, and was not discovered until some time yesterday morning. The injuries were very bad, the body being ground up, a large hole made through the breast and the head mashed. It was removed to Tyrone. The engineer, Yank Latham, and a brakeman named Silinger were both badly injured, but they are doing as well as could be expected, and it is thought they will recover. The conductor was also slightly injured. The spreading of the rails is thought to have caused the accident.

PERSONAL MENTION.—A wedding took place at Julian on Wednesday of last week, it being the nuptials of Mr. Irwin Craig and Miss Georgiana Duke, both of that place. The pleasant ceremony occurred at the residence of the bride's parents, Rev. J. F. Tallhelm officiating.

Mr. Charles Fenstermacher, formerly of this place, but now at Fort Wayne, Ind., was recently married to Miss Kate Kahl, of Altoona. Charles is a first-rate fellow, an excellent printer and deserves a pleasant married life.

Rev. S. E. Furst, of the Lutheran church, preached at State College on Sunday, in place of Rev. Wm. Laurie, of the Presbyterian church, who was prevented by illness from filling that engagement.

We had a pleasant call on Tuesday from our esteemed friend, Maj. J. B. Fisher, of Gregg township. Centre county has few better citizens than Maj. Fisher, and his presence is always welcome at the DEMOCRAT office.

MOULTING CANARIES.—The bird moulting season is coming on. When your canaries are moulting and cease to sing, do this: Put a little oxide of iron (rust from the drug store,) or put a couple of lath nails in the water they drink, taking away their bath so they can't get any drink but their medicine. In another cup immerse a little saffron. The latter gives color to their incoming feathers. The iron braces their system while moulting. In a little while they will sing loud enough to cause a headache.

SURE CURE FOR DIPHTHERIA.—It is given out that onions are an unfailing cure for diphtheria. They must be placed in a bandage, in their raw state, and then beaten into a pulp, and the cloth containing them, juice and all, bound about the throat and well up under the ears. Renewals must be made as often as they begin to get dry. In cases noticed the result has been almost magical, deadly pain yielding in a short time to sleepy comfort. We trust the remedy, which is quite simple, may have a wide enough trial to fully test its usefulness.

INFORMATION WANTED.—Mrs. Dr. Elcoate left Lloydsville six weeks ago and has not been heard from since. Her height is about five feet six inches, fair complexion, black eyes and black hair, wearing gray dress, white sacque, black hat and linen duster. Any person knowing of her whereabouts will please address the same to Mrs. H. G. Gardner, Altoona, Pa. Papers in the neighborhood please copy.

In Centre county some of the farmers are burning their corn, it being cheaper than to pay freight on coal.—Williamsport Chronicle.

Ah, indeed! We do not think that "local brevity" is true, Mr. Chronicle; at least we have heard of no such remarkable proceeding. Coal is dear enough in all conscience. The best hard coal brings $5.50 delivered in this market; but corn on the cob brings 40 cents per bushel, and 13½ bushels of corn—the equivalent in price to a ton of coal—would hardly furnish its equivalent in heat. So we think Centre county farmers sell their corn and buy their coal.

Lives of grocery men remind us, They can make their starch half lime, And with sugar wholly blind us, Putting sand in all the time. The above stanza may be true in regard to some grocery men, but the firm of Sechler & Co., of this place, is an honorable exception. Everything they sell is first-class.

In our report last week of the extensive illumination made by our Democratic citizens on the occasion of the mass meeting, on Friday, the 29th ult., we inadvertently omitted to mention the especially brilliant illuminations made at the residences of Judge John H. Orvis and Mr. Cowdrick, on Linn street. Mrs. Judge Orvis gave personal attention to the illumination of her residence and is justified in being quite proud at its success.

The girl who wears bangs hair often makes the wife who bangs her husband, and he richly deserves the treatment if he does not adopt a uniform rule to purchase all his groceries of Sechler & Co.

Where sneaks the bee now? Summer is flying, Leaves on the grass plot faded are lying; Violets are gone from the grassy dell; With the cowslip-cups where the fairies dwell; The rose from the garden hath passed away.—Mrs. Hemans.

A PRINCELY ABODE.—MR. GEORGE VALENTINE TAKES POSSESSION OF HIS NEW RESIDENCE.—For fifteen years—since Mr. and Mrs. George Valentine, of this place, were wedded—they have resided in the old stone residence near Valentines' forge, where their life has been one of almost unalloyed happiness. It is a fine old place, with extensive grounds and quite spacious within; but as it is the property of the company, the occupants determined to have the sole ownership of one in town. Accordingly the present elegant brown stone residence on Allegheny street has been erected, and within a month will be entirely completed. On Monday the family began moving into it, and in a few days they will be able to call it "home." By their removal they are brought into the immediate neighborhood of their relatives, Messrs. Robert and Abram Valentine and their families, but are compelled to separate themselves further from Mrs. V.'s sister, Mrs. Reuben Valentine, who still occupies that other elegant residence south of the forge, which is so picturesquely located amid luxurious shrubbery, weeping willows and every variety of charming scenery.

The mansion in which Mr. and Mrs. George Valentine hope to pass the remainder of their days is certainly one of the most complete and elegant establishments in this place. The grounds in front of the house, though not extensive, have been beautifully graded, and the art of man has already caused them to assume a finished and home-like appearance. A broad, capacious piazza extends the entire length of the front of the house. The entrance from this piazza leads into a wide and beautiful hall. At the rear of the hall is a niche which will soon be the receptacle for some ornamental piece of statuary. At the left of the hall is the parlor, the woodwork of which is walnut, superbly finished, and in the centre is suspended an elegant chandelier. Communicating with this by sliding doors is a smaller parlor. The two apartments may be converted into one by throwing open the sliding doors, making a room both spacious and elegant. At the right of the hall is a library, which is almost equally beautiful; further back is a hall extending to the southern side of the house where there is another door leading without. From this side hall and also from the main hall there are entrances to the dining room, the most noticeable feature of which is its polished and beautiful floor inlaid to imitate different varieties of wood. The butler's pantry is conveniently located at the left of the dining room. In it are closets for all kinds of silver, glass and china ware, and also a marble basin, water faucets and every needed apparatus for keeping the ware clean. A hall leads from the dining room into the kitchen, to the right of which is a dumb waiter, by means of which articles may be mechanically conveyed to all portions of the house. The kitchen is finished in hard wood and is supplied with a Boston range of improved pattern. Here is another convenient closet containing compartments for flour, meal, vegetables and other things desired for immediate use. A small dark frame case against the wall is covered with glass on which are inscribed such mysterious symbols as "N. E. room," "S. E. room," &c. This is the machinery of an electric bell. It is connected by wire with every room in the house, and when a bell is sounded a glance at its mirror-like surface will indicate from whence the summons proceeds. This seems to be the acme of human convenience. From the kitchen there are, of course, entrances to the rear grounds, and from it is also a stairway leading to the basement below, which is in two compartments—the larger for culinary purposes during extremely warm weather and the smaller apartment intended for a milk closet, in which the temperature is always quite low, and through which a continuous stream of cold water is flowing. The second floor is gained by a wide and elegant stairway from the main hall and also by a rear stairway from the kitchen. Both of these stairways extend to the extreme top of the house. The front stairs are of white ash with walnut balustrades. At the head of this stairway on the second floor is a wide hall from which the first door leads into the southeast room—the sleeping apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Valentine. Communicating with this room and also with the hall are two other rooms, designed for the occupation of the Misses Valentine. The adjoining room on the north side of the house is devoted to the exclusive possession of the children's governess. On the east side of the house is the school room, where the bright rays of the sun will penetrate while teacher and scholars are devoting the golden hours to study. Then there is another pleasant apartment designed for a guest chamber, and an elegant and very complete bath room. On the third floor there are several cozy apartments intended for servants, and a very large apartment the use for which has not yet been demonstrated even in the minds of those who planned it. Communicating with this large room is a meat closet. A stairway ascends from the third floor to the tower, from which an extended view can be obtained in every direction. The family have already enjoyed the pleasures of this observatory by sojourning to it to witness the brilliant torchlight parades which have been so frequent of late.

A very charming feature about the house is that while every apartment can be entered from the halls, they also all communicate with each other. Of course, the house throughout is heated from the large furnace in the cellar, and all the principal apartments are also furnished with elegant fire-place heaters. The house is illuminated with gas from basement to tower, many of the chandeliers being ornate and costly. Speaking tubes in the halls communicate with the servants' apartments and with the kitchen.

Mr. Charles McCafferty is the contractor and has carried the work through quite successfully, but the plan of the house was, in every particular, the work of Mr. and Mrs. Valentine, who spent all of last winter in perfecting their arrangements. The next few weeks will develop whether or not their plans were well conceived. Mr. Isaac Miller contracted for the carpenter work, and has fulfilled his contract quite faithfully. Perhaps the work which demanded the most care and skill is the elegant walnut finish executed by Mr. Cal. Brachbill. All the woodwork has a surface as smooth and hard as marble. Mr. Brachbill has been constantly employed for two months and will probably be engaged for another month in adding the finishing touches. Messrs. Fasic & Son and the Williams Bros. have also been employed at different times in contributing their art to the beauty of the whole. All who have been employed in the construction of the house have given great satisfaction, and it stands to-day one of the grandest monuments to their skill that can be erected.

FOR THE CENTRE DEMOCRAT.

ATTENTION! Ho! for Salt River!

Give ear to the call, all ye passengers for the elysian fields up Salt river. You will please assemble in the Diamond in Bellefonte and forget it not—on Saturday the 15th instant, at 1 o'clock sharp, all ready and equipped for the passage. Our corps will be under the command of the following officers:

Generalissimo—the late Chairman, J. L. Spangler. Chief Cook and Bottle Washer—next Chairman, P. Gray Meek. Aid-de-camp—C. L. Buffington. Brigadier General—F. P. Blair. Colonel—Charles C. Heisler. Lieutenant Colonel—C. M. Bower. Major—M. Dolan. Captains—John Noll and R. J. Doak. Sergeants and Corporals will be duly appointed and announced.

Quarter Master General—C. T. Alexander. Commissary General—W. H. Blair. Inspector General—R. H. Forster. Sutter—Geo. R. Barrett. Master of Schnapps—Arthur Brown. Driver in of Stragglers and Loose Ducks—District Attorney elect W. C. Heinle.

Ex-Gov. A. G. Curtin cannot go with us because he goes to Congress. He will, however, deliver a farewell address, give us good counsel and point out the finger boards by the way, after which Lawyer Hoy will speak a piece and explain how we lost Indiana. Then the procession will move, singing the "Sweet by and by," to be led by Quarter Master General C. T. Alexander. When we arrive at Station Rankin we will halt, and receive from the late Chairman Rankin one of Cessna's largest and finest canal boats, and a pair of Garfield's mules to carry us up the river. Rankin has also agreed to roll up his pants and drive the mules. From Station Rankin we will sail, drawn by the mules to Station Milliken, when the magnificent Jimmy will speak a speech on the importance of sticking to a lie when once told, and tell us how to get "out of the way before those niggabs come up." He will also supply us with all the perfumery needed on the way. Thence we will sail to Station Hastings, when the Colonel will deliver an address on the evils of intemperance, and what a naughty thing it is for a man to forsake his father and mother. The Murphys must be watched here lest they get a little on the sly.

Then we go, singing the "Days of Auld Lang Syne"—music to be led by Fortney—to Beaver Landing. The General will put on a pious look and offer prayer, giving thanks that he is not as bad as we wicked Democrats. He will also give us an exhortation, telling us how wicked and demoralizing a thing it is for a Democrat to bulldoze a negro voter, and how elevating, highly moral and religious the influence exerted by a Republican manufacturer to bulldoze his employes; how corrupting Democratic repeating is, and how highly moral and religious it is when the whole official power and patronage of a Republican civil service reform government is used for the same end. This may seem paradoxical, but don't be alarmed, the General will be equal to the occasion. From Beaver Landing we will go singing the "Girl We Left Behind Us"—to be led by District Attorney elect Heinle—to the First Dock, where you will see A. O. standing on the shore weeping over the Democratic soldiers who were "all shot in the back." After he gets through and has wiped the tears away he will tell his favorite dog story in his most eloquent style; and as we sail away he will sing "Little Mary had a Lamb."

When we reach Rhoads Station, Daniel and Postmaster Johnson will give us a shindig, and show us how the victors can dance. Thence we will sail on up the briny river; Bower will tell his ground hog story; and what else will occur as we sail, and how we get along, and how we fare when we have settled above the swamps, I will write you. A. PASSENGER.

It is said that the rattle and whirl of machinery at the car works will not be heard for three months yet.—Monday's Daily News.

We have the finest stock of suits in black diagonal, blue check and other dark good, heavy winter suits. We can show you the largest and best stock in the county and guarantee them 20 per cent. cheaper than any other house. LYON & Co.
