LETTER FROM WASHINGTON.

From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 24, 1880. That great obstruction to progress in the House-the refunding bill-being out of the way for a time, two appropriation bills have been passed this week. As the time approaches for going into joint convention to declare the result of the Presidential election, both Houses are giving better attention to business. Mr. Atkins, chairman of the appropriation committee, has been unwell, but is better, and says the committee will have bills ready as fast as the House desires them. He repeats what he said sometime since, that all the appropriation bills will be presented in such shape as to prevent partisan discussion, unless the Republicans are even more unreasonable than usual. As to the payment of election marshals, he says he is personally in favor of including the amounts due them in the proper bill, but that the committee has not yet acted on the subject. There is no doubt, however, that the marshals will be paid, as, though the committee may possibly fail to provide for them, there are Democrats in both Houses who will vote for an amendment for that purpose. In short, there is a determination, if any delays during this session make an extra session necessary, that the fault shall be with the Republicans.

While on this subject I can not help stating that Mr. Atkins, in the very responsible position of head of the appropriation committee, has shown rare good judgment; has done much to protect the public treasury; has been so industrious in discharging his duties as to injure his health, and, above all, has shown a capacity and willingness to learn that are highly creditable. Almost every Democrat and Republican in the House regrets that this is his last Congressional term for the present.

The Senate will probably give the generation. Secretary authority to pay 3 per cent. interest on the bonds to be issued under the funding bill just passed by the FIVE MEN BURNED TO DEATH IN A RAILROAD House if such rate appears necessary. This it will do instead of placing the interest arbitrarily at 31 per cent. This most interest, and they are both hopeful of getting favorable action during certainly fail. The principle for which he labors is gaining supporters constantly, but it is one of too much importance to be hastily endorsed by legislation. Mr. Cox will push his reapportionment through unless the Radicals in Congress, already said to be distrustful of Gen. Garfield, shall use the bill for the double purpose of "firing the Northern heart" on the subject of Southern suppression of the negro vote, and as a means of forcing an extra session. The immediate cause of Radical anger against Gen. Garfield is the supposed fact that he intends to exalt Senators Blaine and Sherman, and neglect Gen. Grant and his friends, including Senator Conkling, and to pay more attention to the real interest of the country than to the real interest of the country than to the sectional questions which have kept that Hop Bitters would not cure? Ask the Republican party alive and the ultra Radicals within it on top for years past.

An earthquake, lasting about ten seconds, was distinctly felt in the vicinity of Bath, Maine, on Thursday evening. At first there was a loud report, followed by a rumbling sound as of a heavy tesm going over frozen ground. The windows rattled and distinct oscilations were felt.

"THE MAN IN THE DOME."

THE CHECKERED CAREER, OF SAMUEL DOUG LASS WYETH.

Washington, January 23.—"The Man in the Dome" is dead. He had a national reputation, and thousands of people throughout the United States who have stopped at his stand, just below the large picture in the dome of the Capitel, will remember him. Samuel low the large picture in the dome of the Capitol, will remember him. Samuel Douglass Wyeth was no ordinary man. Few of his visitors knew his name, and fewer still were aware of his checkered Wyeth came from Harrisburg, where his father had a printing office, in which General Simon Cameron learned how to "set" type and become a printer. Samuel and his brothers found their way to Philadelphia, where he set up a stereotyping establishment on Pear street, near Third; but soon failed, and was ruined financially. About this time his domestic relations became inhar-monious, and the result was that his wife left him, went to her home in Cumberiand county, Pennsylvania, and there she still remains. From 1862 up to the time of his death this peculiar man never saw his wife, although was visited at times by his children.

Wyeth was known by all the old printers of Philadelphia, and when he came here he sought out A. J. Donald son, now in the Government Printing Office, and secured a position in the stereotyping rooms, where he remained but a short time, and his restless dispos-ition took him into the devious path of journalism. He became a correspond-ent of the Sunday Dispatch. Then he wrote a book on the "Ins and Outs of Washington," and latterly took to sell ing photographs in the Capitol. Along in '65 Congress cleared all the booths out of the building, but Wyeth, singularly enough, was not included in exodus, and was given a stand up in the dome. Here it was that he became famous and earned the title of "The Man in the Dome." Wyeth was of ex-cellent education, naturally bright, of retentive memory and an inquiring turn of mind. He wrote a book on the bronze doors, and had studied closely all the features of the Capitol building and of the city. He was a human directory and encyclopædia. His stand proved a lucrative one, and he cleared as high as $1500 to $2000 per year from the sales of photographs and knick knacks.

comes the strange part of s life. He developed a taste for Now comes the strange part of Wyeth's life. He developed a taste for oddities and entered upon a career of extravagance. A suite of rooms only satisfied him, and receptions twice a week were his hobby. Here gathered the choice spirits among the men and women of culture about Washington, and wit and wisdom marked the mo ments of their mingling. His earning were spent in rare pictures, articles of vertu, and bric-a-brac. A few years ago owever, he found that he was beyond his income, and then forsook his expensive habits, distributed his tro phies among friends to save storage, and betook himself to a quiet abode. weeks ago he was afflicted with pneu-monia, and after a week's illness the earthly career of "The Man in the Dome" had ended, and he had been called up higher. He left no will, but had prepared a statement of his effects, Among the many articles is an "Italian". Among the many articles is an allego ical picture named "Catholicity," which is valued at $1000. Innumerable bills have appeared against his estate, and will be required to adjust the differences. At the present time he has a book in press entitled "The Federal City," which may never see the light of Samuel D. Wyeth was a brother of John Wyeth, the well-known Philadelphia druggist, on Walnut street near Broad, and a close friend of the Camer on family. It has always been believed that the influence of General Simon Cameron placed him in the dome, as the Camerons never forget a friend.

There was a scramble for Wyeth's stand soon after his death and one man had the signatures of ten Senators to his petition, but it did not avail. A widow named Barnes has become "The Woman in the Dome" for the present generation. J. S. C.

The New Supreme Judge.

A PLEASANT PERSONAL SKETCH OF HIM BY Hon. S. S. Cox in the Independent

There is no man living who knows Judge Woods as I do. Our mothers, when girls, seventy years ago, were playmates. Our boyhood associations were very close and genial. When he ceturned from Yale, before ten years had elapsed, we were thrown together in social and political friendship. I lived in Columbus, and ran for Congress in the district which included his home at the district which included his home at Newark, Ohio. It was in 1856, and politics were in a wild transition state. He had a Whig bias; my inclinations were otherwise. At that time appre-hension of civil war filled the air. All the gifts of oratory young Woods pos-sessed—aud they were many, fluent, and full of energy and fire—came to my aid at candidate. We rescued the dis-We rescued the disaid as candidate. trict from the new and growing party. Again and again, in following and throughout every township and in every school-house, we harangued to-gether for territorial sovereignty, peace, compromise, and Union. He was imbued then with the spirit of the canons and traditions of the Democracy.

When a portion of that party in his country ran a Prockennidae ticket in country ran a Breckenridge ticket, in 1860, and nominated a Congressman for my special discomfiture, Judge Woods was staunch by my side for Douglas and Union, and against the doctrine of the "constitutional vigor" to c slavery to the Territories. When to carry red storm broke, having served in the Legislature and been chosen Speaker, he raised his regiment and went to the war. He was physically courageous and morally fearless. His theories of Government may not have changed an iota while he served in the Army; but his partisanship had veered around to Republicans. The war ended. He re-mained South. His appointment as circuit judge followed. With great ad-dress, industry, ability and probity he has worn the ermine in the Gulf States. managing his personal relations such grace as to disarm prejudice, ingratiate himself with the bar, and give authority to decisions upon matters of great pith and moment.

The shores of the Susquehanna for hundreds of miles were lined with logs aggregating probably one hundred millions of feet. A late freshet brought these logs in close proximity to Lock Haven and Williamsport and about 50. 000,000 were got into the booms, but a cold snap closed the river, and addition-al expense has been incurred in securng these logs against a break up. The work has been accomplished, however, to a large extent. The stock on hands falls below that of previous years.

The stock being cut this winter will probably reach 250,000,000 feet. The veather has been quite favorable; the obbers commenced work easily, and have been pushing up their work rapid-ly; much of the stock is already banked and awaiting the spring floods. ich | tenths of the stock will be white pine.

She has been abroad and knows the land, and this country, although her of female acquaintances is evi-y circumscribed. The charm of her conversation is irresistible, especialy to gentlemen whose hair is thin on the top of their head. There is a sweet, sudued gayety in her speech, accent and gestures, which makes a venerable listener happy, and there is a vivacity about her conversation which is especially attractive. She always dresses in black, in which magnificence of apparel can be allied with purity of taste. In the day-time a long skirted ulster has a most decorous look, and at night, in her pleasant rooms, she always wears a rich black satin dress, with a scarf of BINGHAMPON, N. Y., January 23.—

What fiery young ladies there are in Baltimore! Last week Miss Kate Ricketts, the beautiful daughter of the wealthiest shipping merchant there, made a murderous assault on Mr. Rob't T. Baldwin, President of the Mechanics' National Bank of that City. It seems Mr. Wesley Ricketts had made depos-its at the bank subject to his own or daughter's check. One day recently Mr. Ricketts drew from the bank a large amount, of which his daughter knew nothing. The following day she drew a check for so large an amount that her check was dishonored. She visited the President in his private office and lared her family had been disgraced and demanded satisfaction, and fired a shot at him. After a desperate struggle, in which her elegant costume was torn into shreds, she was placed in a carriage and taken home. It is alleged that she has become insane over the matter.

Two Measures that will Pass

POLITICAL ALLIANCE ON THE ELECTORAL COUNT AND APPORTIONMENT BILL.

Washington, January 23.—Representative Hurd says the Democrats have made an alliance with the Greenback-ers, and they will endeavor to have a vote to morrow on the Morgan resolu tions to count the electoral vote. The alliance will give the Democrats a quorum and enable them to get this measure out of the way, and thus prepare for future action on the American description. for future action on the Appropriation and Apportionment bills. It was with this in view that they have recently been raising cries against the absentees, hoping to compel a full attendance and have enough members present to pass this measure and the Apportionment II. So far as the latter question is neerned there is a decided movement bill. in favor of a largely-increased repre-sentation in the House.

General Walker has sent to the Cenus Committee additional tables, show ing the basis of a representation for 306 to 327 members. It is expected that a report will be ready for the general committee on Tuesday. A Bold Robbery.

A CHICAGO OFFICE ROBBED OF OVER TEN

THOUSAND DOLLARS. January 24 .- One of the boldest and most successful burglaries ever planned and executed in this city occurred about 7 o'clock last evening in the office of the South Chicago iron and Thirteenth street, but was not reported by the police until 2 o'clock this morn-ing. It was then learned that three masked burglars had forced the office door, bound and gagged the janitor, Charles Brooks, and while one of them stood guard over him with a pistol the others drilled a hole in the safe, blowed open the combination, and, bidding the old watchman a cheerful good night, left, taking $1,000 in five-dollar gold pieces and $150 in coin, together with about $9,000 in hills, done, up in each about $9,000 in bills, done up in envel-opes ready for paying the help to day. The above facts are given by Mr. Brooks, but the police regard some things about the affair as sufficiently suspicious to implicate him and have accordingly arrested him and his son. He told arrested him and his son. He somewhat contradictory stories. unruffled clothing and unprepossessing appearance raised doubts of his accuracy and integrity.
