THE PRINCESS DAGMAR.

Sketch of the New Empress of Russia.

HER POPULARITY IN THE LITTLE KINGDOM

The Princess Dagmar, as the empress was still called in the land of her birth grew up with her sister Alexandra now the princess of Wales, at the Danish court with very modest surroundings

The princess was an excellent mother and sought to develop in her daughters the woman in preference to the princess

It used to be said at the capital that the princesses were made to help in making their own dresses and that the furniture in their common bedroom was covered with inexpensive calico

A story of the naive admiration expressed by Princess Dagmar on being shown the wedding trousseau of one of the noble ladies at court and her longing wonder whether she would ever herself own "such handsome things," was told with a touch of sympathetic pride by the people of Copenhagen, with whom the two princesses were great favorites

Dagmar had won her way deepest into the people's heart

Royal Marriages in Germany.

OLD-TIME CEREMONIES THAT ARE STILL PERFORMED IN THE FATHERLAND.

From the London Standard.

In plain-going England a prince has to be married very much like anybody else

He must meet the exact requirements of the law just as must the successful financier who often approaches him closely in the splendor of his marital surroundings

But in Prussia the court still lives in an old-fashioned world which lower mortals have not yet presumed to enter

A king's marriage is a ceremonial of itself and a prince must submit to a wearisome ordeal of forms

A TEXAS VIRGINIUS.

A Dallas (Texas) letter says: A tragic death has just occurred in our neighboring county of Hill, worth relating and worthy of Virginus or any other Roman father. One year ago George Arnold came to Dallas on private business, and while walking the streets was bitten by a worthless cur which was frothing at the mouth and showing other symptoms of hydrophobia. Mr. Arnold became alarmed and very much excited when convinced

On! where is the spring, That mysterious thing? Now do not all answer together.

THE man who goes into business with the devil soon finds that his partner is soul proprietor.
