

Returned His Commission.

The People of Virginia Make it too Warm for a Readjuster Postmaster.

WASHINGTON, November 14.—James A. Galder having on the recommendation of Senator Mahone been appointed postmaster last August for the small office at Shalkford's, in King and Queen county, Virginia, has returned his commission to the department with the statement that on account of his being a readjuster the property holders of Shalkford's have combined to prevent his procuring accommodations for a postoffice; that he has, therefore, been unable either to rent a suitable room or obtain a suitable site upon which to build, and that he is consequently obliged to resign the appointment. The assistant postmaster general to-day, in view of the reported state of affairs, issued an order discontinuing the postoffice and directing its papers and business to be transferred to West Point, the nearest office in the neighboring county of King William.

The Weather for November.

A correspondent of the New York Sun makes the following prediction: "The weather of November will be eventful and phenomenal. The first half of the month will give a continuous succession of storms. The most stormy days will be the 1st, 2d, 5th, 6th, 19th, 21st and 23d. The month will open balmy but serene. The oscillations in temperature will be short and marked, ending with Arctic waves. Following the 12th the snowfall will be general. After the 24th there will be more quiet days. There will be gales of wind on the 1st, 7th and 19th. Brilliant auroras will be visible where the sky is clear, and earthquakes will occur at unusual places. There will be volcanic activity near the 1st, 7th, 16th, 19th and 21st. The earth's atmosphere will be subject to a trying ordeal, the result of distant disturbance in space in circular and vibratory forms, but there will be no widespread devastation. Damage will result principally from winds, floods, snows and tidal waves.

Good Bye, John.

From the Evening Telegraph, November 10. Wrecked within sight of the landing was the late of "Judge" Cessna and his canal boat, and great is the rejoicing among the hardy yeomen of Somerset and Bedford. The Sixteenth Judicial district is soundly Republican, but they couldn't stand the prospect of John Cessna for Judge, and so they either took to the woods on election day or voted for Mr. Baer, the Democratic candidate. In Somerset Daily's majority is 1,400 and Cessna's only 300—figures that eloquently portray the "popularity" of the casual boat statesman; while in Bedford, where he lived, Republican and Democratic neighbors kindly pushed him within sight of the Judicial haven, and then—left him sticking in the mud up to his neck. Brother Cessna's canvass was altogether unique. He claimed to have quite retired from "party politics," but entered with great detail into a personal appeal for votes. He sent out hundreds of taffy-covered postal cards to his "old friends" at his birth-place and other peculiarly hallowed places, just to remind them, you know, that he was a candid date for the Bench and would be very grateful, etc., etc. He also mounted the stump and talked, and visited the schools and smiled upon the little folks. Oh! "Judge" Cessna's campaign was just too sweet for anything. But the cold-hearted voter went up to the polls and put in his ballot for the "other fellow." It's too bad; but there's one consolation—"Judge" Cessna will still remain in the political arena to amuse the spectators. For instance, it wouldn't be any kind of a State Convention at all without Cessna.

The charge so often made against ex-Senator Wallace that he owed his election to the Senate, to Simon Cameron and his son, having been repeated by Charles S. Wolfe, in one or perhaps more of his public speeches, Mr. Wallace disposes of the matter by publishing the following denial of the charge in the Harrisburg Patriot:

CLEARFIELD, PA., November 7.—The statement made by Mr. Wolfe that I owed my election to the Senate to the Camerons is untrue. The reverse is the fact. The Democracy had a majority of eight in the Legislature. I was nominated in the Democratic caucus by one hundred and six votes out of one hundred and twenty-two. An effort was then made to unite the Republicans and a few Democrats on another candidate. Senator Rutan was the Cameron leader in this movement and negotiated with my enemies for two days to defeat me and elect a bolter or a Republican. This movement failed because Senator Strang and fifteen other anti-Cameron Republicans preferred my election to that of a bolter and boldly said so. WILLIAM A. WALLACE.

It has been flippantly said by a Republican newspaper, that "Colonel Ingersoll may be relied on to fight the Bible (revised or otherwise) and the Democratic party."

This statement has the merit of frankness, to say the least. If the enemies of the Bible are the enemies of the Democratic party, an alliance between the Radical and the Atheist is quite natural. According to the doctrine laid down by a prominent Republican Senator, such a conjunction of forces is eminently politic and proper. "Anything," says that distinguished and trusted leader, "that will beat down that party, and build up our own, is justifiable in morals and in law." Under this elastic code of political ethics, the Republican leaders would be justified in making war on Christianity, and fighting the Bible, under the banner of the atheists, if there is no easier way "to beat down the Democratic party."

But we are not complaining of this fellowship of partisan leaders with the ungodly, as a dernier resort. If they choose to league themselves with all who can be relied on "to fight the Bible and the Democratic party," we see no cause for alarm.—American Register.
