—Mrs. Barbara Rarick, formerly a resident of Pleasant Gap, died a few days ago in Cass county, Mich., aged about 52 years. She was a daughter of the venerable John Letterman, well known in Spring township, who a year ago last March went to Michigan to live with his son, dying in a few months after reaching his destination. Mrs. Rarick was a member of the Methodist Church, and will be remembered by our older citizens for the vigor and earnestness of her public prayers.

—Wilbur T. Twitmore, of the stove and tinware store on High street, was spouting the roof of a house adjoining the State College on Friday last, felt the scaffolding sinking under him and understood that he would have to jump if he didn't wish to fall, so he chose the latter alternative. The jump was from a height of twenty feet, and though he experienced no injury that day his ankle and heel were the source of pain the day following and compelled the use of a cane. It was a narrow escape from what might have been severe hurts.

—Miss Ada Ienhub, of Millheim, while returning home from church a couple of weeks since, was the victim of a distressing accident. When the vehicle in which she was riding stopped near her residence there were offers to her from some young men standing by of assistance in alighting. Declining their polite proffers she made an attempt to get out of the wagon without help, and in so doing her skirts caught on the "lock" and she was thrown out upon her head and quite seriously hurt. She was picked up and carried into her house, and she has been since recovering slowly.

—The death of the devoted Miss Mollie Ray, which occurred early on the morning of Tuesday last, was a particularly affecting event and an exceedingly heavy blow to her loving family and hosts of friends. She contracted typhoid fever, the disease which ended her life, while assiduously attending her brother Harry, who expired a few weeks since. Everything possible was done to save her, but all efforts were painfully fruitless. The friends and relatives of the family will meet at the residence of the parents this afternoon at 2 o'clock to attend the funeral. The remains will be conveyed to the Methodist Church, where the funeral services will be performed at 2:15 P. M.

—The train to Bellefonte over the Snow Shoe railroad that is due here at half-past 7 A. M. met with an accident on Wednesday morning, caused by a broken rail, when near the residence of Benjamin Walker on top of the mountain. A couple of coal cars and the passenger car were thrown off the track, it is stated, the coach lodging in the "yard" of Mr. Walker's house. The cars not off the track were uncoupled from those that were, the latter being left where they lay for the time being. The balance of the train arrived at Bellefonte not very much behind time. No one on the train was hurt.

—Robert J. Doak, aged about 40 years, who had been ill with a dropsical affection for a couple of months and confined to his residence for three or four weeks past, died on last Saturday morning about 5 o'clock. Mr. Doak was a well-known citizen and a painter and paper-hanger by trade. He had resided here for a number of years, being born and raised at or near Pittsburgh. He served in the United States navy during the war, was a member of Gregg Post, was president of the Centennial Temperance Club for a couple of terms, and was a delegate from the West ward to the last Democratic County Convention. He was likewise a member of the Presbyterian Church, and Rev. Mr. Laurie officiated at the funeral services. A delegation from Gregg Post were the pallbearers at the funeral, which took place on Sunday afternoon, the remains being laid to rest in the Union cemetery. Poor Bob! he was a first-rate fellow. About the last words he uttered were that he was ready and willing to die and be out of his misery, having suffered much and severely before death claimed him. Mr. Doak left a wife and four children, one of whom—a bright and interesting boy—was terribly burned not long ago by his clothes taking fire. The condition of the family is such that the charitably inclined people of Bellefonte could employ their means in a very appropriate manner.

—Three men who gave their names as Bowers, Brown and Stover, but which are believed to be assumed, were brought to Bellefonte from Taylor township a couple of weeks ago and lodged in jail for the crime of larceny in that township. Since that time it is learned that they have been concerned in other criminal work. A Huntington detective named Brooks had been on the trail of some men who broke jail at Huntington after having been sent to prison for stoning a freight train and the employes on the Pennsylvania railroad near that town. At Tyrone the detective was informed of the arrest of the men in Taylor township, and obtaining descriptions of them he concluded they were the parties he was looking for and resolved to visit the jail here for the purpose of identifying the men. He came on and his belief was verified. They are to be tried here first, and if by any improbable chance they should escape conviction they will be taken to Huntington for trial on the charges preferred against them there.

—Leander D. Williams, of Millinburg, Union county, was found dead in a cell in the Lock Haven jail one morning last week, where he had been placed for safety after being found intoxicated on a baggage truck at the depot. The turnkey on the evening of his arrest found Mr. Williams asleep in the cell and tried to arouse him, but no intelligible answer could be gotten from the prisoner. The next morning as the turnkey once more endeavored to wake him it was discovered that he was dead. Mr. Williams was on his way to visit a brother at St. Mary's, Elk county, and report has it that domestic troubles induced him to leave home. A watch and $2.32 were found on his person. His son is the telegraph operator at Montgomery station and the deceased was acquainted in Bellefonte. He had at one time been a citizen of New York. Tidings of the calamity were sent to Millinburg. Coroner Mader held an inquest and the verdict was death from heart disease.

THE SPRANKLE FAMILY.—The Sprankle family are a numerous connection and abound in Centre, Huntingdon and Blair counties, with a branch in Colorado. The father has been dead for many years, but the mother, at the age of 77, still lives in Huntingdon county, about one mile from Spruce Creek. The Centre county Sprankles are represented by Mr. Jacob Sprankle, of Coleville, near Bellefonte, the eldest of the family, who will be 55 years old on next Christmas day. On Thursday and Friday of last week the family, consisting of five brothers and five sisters, including the sister and her husband from Colorado, met at the mother's residence near Spruce Creek for the purpose of having a couple of days' intercourse with each other. Presents were given and received, the old lady being made the recipient of a pair of gold spectacles worth $8, besides many other articles. In return she gave each of the children some memento of their father, besides money enough to bear their expenses to and from the reunion. Two days were spent most pleasantly, the time being passed in feasting and rejoicing and in talking over old times. Altogether there were forty-two persons present, and the occasion will long be remembered as one of the most remarkable and interesting that ever occurred in that section. Mr. Jacob Sprankle and family returned home on Saturday last much pleased with their trip and more than gratified at having once more beheld the faces of those so dear to them all. May they live to have many more such reunions is the best wish we can make for them.

MARRIAGE OF MRS. SUSSMAN.—The marriage of Mrs. Dora Sussman, widow of Abraham Sussman, with Mr. Abraham Hirsch, of Lancaster, took place on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of Isaac Guggenheimer. This social event was quite a grand and recherche one in Hebrew circles, and the attendance though unusually small was particularly select. The only guests present outside the immediate family were Mr. and Mrs. Asch and Major Reynolds, of Bellefonte, and Miss Martha Lyon, of Philadelphia, niece of Mr. Guggenheimer. The rabbi who officiated at the ceremony was Mr. Weil, of Lancaster. The bride was costumed in seal-brown silk trimmed with plush, beautiful flowers, white gloves and pearl jewelry, and looked very charming, while the groom was dressed in black, wore a white Eton tie, white gloves and pretty buttonhole bouquet. Some very beautiful flowers were sent from Lancaster; the wedding dinner was sumptuous and luxurious, and there were a number of congratulatory telegrams from friends of the bride and groom in different sections of the country, including one from Montreal, Canada, and one from Wheeling, W. Va. The wedding gifts were presented by only the closest relatives of the bridal parties because they did not desire them generally. Mrs. Asch, however, was excepted, and the bride received a handsome present from that lady. A somewhat remarkable specimen of art indicating genius—a crayon picture—was presented to Mrs. Hirsch by her nephew, Louis Guggenheimer, 11 years old, which was executed by the little lad himself. The bride and groom departed on the evening train for their home in Lancaster, followed by the best wishes of their many friends and admirers here. This office is under obligations for some very palatable fruit and cake from the wedding dinner table.

The class is under the instruction of Mr. Francis Speer. Mr. Speer is an able-minded young man and is doing all in his power to make it a success. The class now consists of about twenty-five members and is to be known as the 'Excelsior Bible Class of Pleasant Gap,' and meets every Wednesday evening in the Lutheran church, of this place. A. M."

"HOW TO STUDY THE WORD OF GOD."—The following is the paper entitled "How to Study the Word of God," read by the author, Rev. S. E. Furst, of Bellefonte, at the meeting of the Northern Conference of the Evangelical Lutheran Synod of Central Pennsylvania, which convened at Centre Hall, this county, on November 2, 1881. In commencing his reading of the paper Mr. Furst said:

The topic assigned for discussion in this paper is stated in the programme thus—"How to Study the Word of God." It will not be expected that even an outline for a complete discussion of so important a subject can be furnished within the limits. It has become the fashion of late years to suggest and advocate many new methods for the study of the Word of God, most of which are more novel than commendable. We hear much of Bible readings—typical, historical, biographical, chronological, &c.—but we question whether any who have pursued a course of this kind have gained much accurate Biblical knowledge in such shape as to be of practical and permanent value. These plans are too fragmentary and disconnected to yield substantial results of such breadth and height and depth as may be realized by a more systematic and rational manner of application. In all the numerous latter-day addresses, lectures and sermons delivered or in the multitude of articles written on this subject I have not once heard or read a reference to what seems to me to be the plan of plans, the very foundation, the only proper starting point for an intelligent, connected and successful study of the Word of God. That is to commence with the central figure of all earthly history—the character which is the beginning, the middle, the end, the all of Scripture—CHRIST.

Taking our stand by Him we are within and look outward, backward, forward, all around. Our feeble sight is aided by the halo of glory shining from his perfect character, which illuminates and causes to stand out in a clearer light the figures and shadows of the ceremonial law, and which brightens and vivifies the dark prophecies as well as makes real, edifying and practical all biblical history. The student who pursues any other method only creeps around on the outside, groping in the dark and resting on merely human props. He may at times obtain a slight glimpse inward, or may occasionally enjoy a momentary flash of light that reaches out to him in his insecure position, in constant danger of falling. But the devout Christian within has the advantage of being fixed on the Rock that cannot be shaken—the sure foundation—with the fulness of the light of Heaven streaming through every passage, bringing forth in letters of living light all parts of the revealed Word, opening with indescribable brilliancy the temple of divine truth, in the very midst of which he gloriously reveals close by his Savior's side.

But, to be less figurative and more specific, let each student remember and devoutly practice the following three distinct ways of reading and studying the Word of God: First—Slowly read short portions in connection with private devotions and family worship at least two or three times a day. Second—Read rapidly at least half a dozen pages every day in order to obtain and extend a fresher or general acquaintance with Bible history, precepts, language, &c. Third—Spend some time daily upon the special study of some particular book or other portion of Scripture, using commentaries and other good helps, and going as thoroughly as possible into the connection and exact meaning of all the sentences examined. Never forget that the best commentary on the Old Testament ever written is the New Testament.

And while thus engaged observe the following directions in reading, hearing and studying God's Word and in doing Christian work. (I include the doing because none can so clearly comprehend God's revealed truth as the devout Christian who daily, hourly, habitually, conscientiously, submissively, lovingly, practices the holy precepts.) First—Study diligently, i. e., bring all the natural faculties, concentrated and consecrated attention, intelligence, memory, in short all the God-given mental powers, to bear upon the work; press them into the service of a close, busy, searching investigation of God's truth for the purpose of understanding aright and of being impressed aright with that truth. Second—Study earnestly, with the burning desire of a conscience-stricken sinner longing to be right with God; the simple and serious desire to become wise unto salvation; a deepfelt desire for the good of the soul grounded on a full sense of the exceeding worthlessness of personal merit, and at the same time of the exceeding worth of the soul's eternity.

Third—Study with constant and special application to self so far as warranted by Scripture language. The Scriptures do warrant such specific application throughout a very wide range of their statements, calls and promises. Who can refuse the warrant when the Bible makes use of terms so universal as "every one," "whoever," "all," &c.—Study as if personally and particularly having intercourse with God in His Word—as if that Word were sent as a special message to each individual student. Fourth—Study distrustfully of self, but depending on the promised spirit from on high to guide into all truth. It is a grievous obstacle in the way of spiritual illumination to have confidence in our own natural powers of discernment, for "the natural man discourseth not the things of the Spirit," and we read "God resisteth the proud." It is well to have a deep sense of our own natural insufficiency and blindness, for we are told "God giveth grace to the humble." We are to study with all our might, using all our powers as though everything depended upon ourselves, and then, distrusting ourselves, we are to put all our confidence and trust in God, as though all depended upon Him. Fifth—Study prayerfully. Prayer is the vehicle of interchange between earth and Heaven—carrying up the desires of the heart, bringing down the dispensations of grace. If we are really determined on the spiritual and saving understanding of God's Word, then our will and God's will are at one and the spirit of illumination will be granted even to help us pray, as well as study, and He will guide and control us in searching out the deep things of God as He has revealed them, and He will present them to us clearly in the bright rays of the Sun of Righteousness.

Doing this from a Christian standpoint—from the very centre of the citadel of truth, i. e., from Christ—with Christ, in Christ, the learner advances; grows and glows with heavenly knowledge; becomes wise in Christ's wisdom; foretastes Heaven upon earth; the heart opens, expands, throbs with implanted Divine love; becomes a "fit temple for the indwelling of the Holy Spirit," "meet for the inheritance of the saints in light."

GREGG TOWNSHIP ITEMS.—The village of Spring Mills has bright prospects for the future. I. J. Grenoble reports five or six new houses for next summer on lots he sold this year, and R. H. Duncan has put sixty-eight lots on the market.

The new hotel is about ready for the plasterer. Duncan & Son will move into their new storeroom next week.

The election passed off quietly, so quietly, indeed, that some persons did not find out that it was election day.

Since my last letter old Father Time has been garnering quite a number of sheaves. Mr. Karstetter, of Coburn; Mr. Reeder, of George's valley; Mrs. H. Love, of Centre Hill; Mrs. James Tyson, Mrs. John Dunkle and Mrs. George Armbruster, of near Spring Mills, have all passed the confines of time and launched into the endless realm of eternity. Three of the females died of typhoid fever. They were all in the prime of life. Mrs. Love, daughter of Mr. James McClintick, had only been married a little over a year to a son of the late Judge Love. Mrs. Armbruster was a daughter of John Rishel, Esq., who died about two years ago, and a sister of Luther M. Rishel, our worthy Justice of the Peace. Mrs. Tyson was a daughter of Daniel Benner, and with her husband farmed for Hon. H. N. McAllister, near Bellefonte, several years ago. Mrs. Truster died on the 5th inst. and Mrs. Armbruster on the 12th inst., both aged 35 years. Mrs. Dunkle, wife of John Dunkle, died on Monday, the 7th inst., of heart disease. Mrs. William Weaver, of Brush valley, a sister of Mrs. Armbruster, is lying ill with typhoid fever, and Mr. Daniel Bartness, of near Penn Hall, has been quite ill for several months.

The Spring Mills grammar school has at last been supplied with a teacher. Professor Reiter, of Franklin and Marshall College, is in charge of it.

Superintendent D. M. Wolf and Mr. Jas. Evans will put up a brick house in place of the wooden building burned down. So report says.

PLEASANT GAP JOTTINGS.—Spring township gave a Democratic majority for the first time in many years. Good for Spring.

That old barrel and cart standing in front of a certain plasterer's house should be removed as it frightens a good many horses.

Judge L. looks pleasanter than ever since he has a handle to his name. We congratulate you on your success.

W. S. Tate is laying foundation for a cabinet shop. He is also going to do undertaking. Just what the people of the Gap need, especially some of our leading politicians.

Many of our neighbors are butchering, the hogs though not so fat as they have been in former years. Sausages and protracted meetings are the topics of the day.

Our schools are all open and in good running order. May the little ones that attend be well cared for by our kind teachers of whom we may be justly proud, for they are all citizens of the Gap.

Our friend Haag is doing a good lot of grinding in his new mill. If he would only throttle the whistle on his engine many of us would not be roused up so early in the morning. Please don't blow so long and loud, for we like to sleep so well in the morning. SHINBONE.

—ASHBURNHAM, Mass., Jan. 14, 1880. —I have been very sick over two years. They all gave me up as past cure. I tried the most skillful physicians, but they did not reach the worst part. The lungs and my heart would fill up every night and distress me and my throat was very bad. I told my children I never should die in peace until I had tried Hop Bitters. I have taken two bottles. They have helped me very much indeed. I am now well. There was a lot of sick folks here who have seen how they helped me, and they used them and are cured, and feel as thankful as I do that there is so valuable a medicine made.

MRS. JULIA G. CUSHING.

—Strictly one price, honest dealing, no overcharging, at Lyon & Co.'s.

For the CENTRE DEMOCRAT. OBITUARY.—On the 8th of November, in Spring township, of an overdose of dissatisfied candidates of both parties, the Republican party, which stood so famous for a long term of years, died—gave up the ghost. The struggles were heartrending, but it had to yield to the enemy at last, although everything that could be done or thought of was resorted to. Even men who heretofore thought it disgraceful to vote anything but a straight Democratic ticket took the field early on Tuesday morning of election day and fought manfully all day long against the regular nominees of the party. Some of those men made heavy boasts—they even went so far as to take fifty votes from the Democratic side of the house and add the same to the Republican side; they resorted to the deception of those who could not read what was printed on their tickets; they engaged men to electioneer against a portion of the ticket who were never known to bolt before. Some of our voters have in bygone days made themselves conspicuous and useful to some extent in local politics. In their minds they could do as they pleased with the voters of the township. Some have held offices of honor, others at this time hold positions that they shamefully disgrace on election day. At the sacrifice of honor, trust, or at any cost they underlook to defeat a part of the ticket. They worked in with a few of the leaders of the opposite party, who took them for what they were worth, as they thought; but even they now say they made a mess of it, as they made more votes for the Democrats than they took away. We deeply feel for you; we hope you will see the folly of the course you have pursued. We know it is hard to stand two defeats so close together, but it is of little use to make a fuss about it. You had better take things as they come, for two or three of us cannot do much. The township has gone Democratic. You are politically dead now, and the only thing you have gained is a Democratic victory in Spring township, with all your combined efforts to defeat a portion of the ticket. You are only the laughing stock of both parties. The contract you undertook was too large and your influence too small to make anything out of it; so hereafter do not place so high an estimate on yourselves and you will get along much better. Again, we are sorry that you made such a mistake; but we are all prone to wander from the straight line of duty. Flying in the face of your party action, when fairly and honorably made, will not be a winning card at any time.
