Strictly one price, honest dealing, no overcharging, at Lyon & Co.'s. Dress goods, silks, velvets, plushes and tinsel plaids and stripes in all shades and effects at the Bee Hive.

We tender our thanks to Hon. William A. Wallace and Hon. Seth H. Yocum for valuable public documents.

We don't ask you $10 for an article when it is worth only $5, but we give you our lowest price at once. Lyon & Co.

Ladies', misses' and children's dresses, coats and coats in endless variety and very cheap at the Bee Hive.

Call at the Philadelphia Branch and see the new stock just now offered to the public at prices that defy competition.

It is not necessary to dicker and bargain two hours when you wish to buy anything of us. We ask just what the goods are worth and no more. Lyon & Co.

Lewin is determined to be ahead. He is just opening a new supply of winter clothing that in quality, style and price have never been equalled in Bellefonte.

Mr. Lewin, of the Philadelphia Branch has lately been east and made extensive purchases. He will be prepared to show his customers the finest lot of clothing ever seen in Bellefonte.

They restore the appetite, remove heart-burn, purify and enrich the blood, invigorate the system, relieve sick headache and preserve the general health—we refer to Green's No. 1 and 2 Liver Pills.

The Cincinnati Weekly Times advertised in another column is a household favorite the country over, and has been for fifty years. At $1 a year it is one of the cheapest, as well as the best paper published.

Gregg Post, G. A. R., will hold its annual election for officers of the Post for the ensuing year on next Saturday evening, December 3. There should be a full attendance of the members of the Post on that evening.

Our talented and popular young friend, Mr. Lou. Shaffer, son of ex-Sheriff B. F. Shaffer, of Nitany Valley, has entered the office of J. L. Spangler, Esq., as a law student. He will prove an able and worthy follower of Blackstone.

Mr. A. J. Greer, late editor of the Altoona Daily Sun, has joined the editorial force of the Evening Call, of the same place. Mr. Greer is an able writer and an experienced journalist, and will prove a valuable acquisition to the Call.

The Bellefonte Building and Loan Association will offer a number of valuable properties at public sale at the Court House, on Saturday next, December 2. There are bargains in these properties and persons desiring to purchase should not fail to be present.

You will shortly be compelled to buy your winter clothing. Before deciding on what you will buy see what the celebrated Rochester manufacturers, Messrs. Stein, Adler & Co., have turned out this season equal in fit, workmanship and trimming to any custom made goods. Prices very reasonable. To be had only at S. & A. Loeb's who by their square dealing have done much to build up the large demand of this very superior grade of clothing.

Buy your holiday groceries from the well known and popular firm of Sechler & Co., in the Bush House block. They keep constantly on hand the most complete stock of the finest and freshest goods to be found in Bellefonte, and sell them at fair and reasonable prices. People who visit the store see every line of stock so full that they never find it necessary to go anywhere else for what they want. Make a note of this when you come to town do not fail to call upon Sechler & Co.

Captain Amos Mullen, requests notice to be given to the members of the Bellefonte Fencibles—Company B, fifth regiment National Guard of Pennsylvania—that he has received the funds to pay the officers and men of the company the amounts due them for their service at Camp Vincent last fall. The Captain will be prepared to disburse the money on Saturday next, the regular drill day of the company and requests a full turn out of the members.

We learned only lately of the death of Curt M. Krebs, a son of Mr. John F. Krebs, of Ferguson township, which sad event occurred at his father's residence on the first day of November last. He was in his 19th year and died of typhoid fever. He was a very exemplary and promising young man and was greatly beloved by his family to whom his death, just as he was approaching the bounds of manhood, was a most grievous blow. He had apparently overcome the disease and was supposed to be in a fair way to convalescence—having been up for three weeks—when a relapse took place which, in his weak condition, he was unable to withstand, and he quietly went to try the unknown realities of the other world. To our sorrow-stricken friend and his family we offer our sincere sympathy in this hour of affliction and bereavement. In this connection we may say that we also learned that Mr. John F. Krebs has been down with the same disease, but was gratified to hear at the same time that he is now consid red out of danger and likely to regain his usual health.

DEATH OF JOHN M. FUREY.—It is with feelings of deep sorrow that the DEMOCRAT is compelled this week to announce the death of John Marshal Furey. After an illness of one week his earthly career ended on last Monday night at twelve o'clock. The deceased was the son of the late William and Rachel Furey, and was the youngest of five children—three sons and two daughters—with which his parents were blessed. His parents and one brother have preceded him to the other world.

John Marshal Furey was born in Bellefonte, January 22, 1851, and was therefore 30 years, 10 months and 6 days old at the time of his death. His early boyhood days were spent with the family in his native town where he had only such facilities for acquiring an education as were afforded by the public schools of the town. At the age of fifteen he entered the Watchman office and became an excellent compositor in a short time, and since that period until the day of his death was connected with the press of the State, generally as a local editor and writer.

From Bellefonte he first went to Lock Haven, where he was employed by his cousin, the late William P. Furey, and his brother, Joseph W. Furey, who were the editors and publishers of the Clinton Democrat. As he grew in years he became an excellent journalist,—was an easy and graceful writer, and always active and energetic in the pursuit of items of news that would give interest and variety to the newspaper with which he was connected. From Lock Haven he gravitated first, to Williamsport, where he held a situation on the Gazette & Bulletin, and thence to Philadelphia, where for a time he did excellent work on the Inquirer and also upon the Day. Severing his connections in Philadelphia he became the local editor of the Pottsville Transcript, then under the management of William P. Furey. He was next for a short time engaged upon the Shenandoah Herald, also in Schuylkill county, and from Shenandoah he went to Sunbury, where he worked for a few months as a compositor. In the year 1877 he appeared in Altoona as the local editor of the Globe, then published in that city. From the Globe he went to the Morning Tribune, upon which journal he filled the position of city editor with marked ability and success until falling health induced him to change to the Daily Sun, an afternoon paper upon which he thought his labor would not be so severe. He continued upon the Sun until he completely broke down in health and was obliged to relinquish all work. Recovering somewhat from his enfeebled condition he came to Bellefonte this fall, and desiring to remain here through the winter, was exceedingly anxious to do something in the way of self support. Accordingly a few weeks ago he went to work upon this journal; thinking that he would thus be able to get through the winter, and be in a condition to seek a better and more remunerative field of labor in the spring. But, alas, his fond hopes could not be realized! The labor was too severe a strain for his broken body and mind to stand. The last work he did in the office was on Saturday the 26th day of November. On the following Monday he was not in a condition to resume work, and from that time he grew rapidly worse until his spirit took its flight on last Monday night. On the first day of January, 1875, the deceased was united in matrimony to Miss Ida F. Welch, of Pottsville, and the fruit of this marriage is one child, a little girl now about three years old. A stricken and disconsolate widow mourns over the loss of a kind and affectionate husband and the little one will never know a fond father's tender love. During the short period that Mr. Furey was in the employ of this office, his kind, amiable ways and gentle demeanor had drawn every one connected with it to regard him with feelings of sincere friendship, and all feel a profound sorrow for his untimely death. To-day his mortal remains will find sepulture in the Bellefonte cemetery. May he rest in peace!

The Altoona Tribune, of yesterday morning alludes to his connection with that journal, and pays a just tribute to his memory, in the following words: "Mr. John M. Furey died at a late hour on Monday night at Bellefonte. In a brief telegram to Mrs. M. E. Furey, of the Sunday Morning, announcing his death, the cause was not stated, but it is probable that the serious affection of the mind, from which he has suffered for the past year, developed into softening of the brain. Mr. Furey was the first city editor on the Morning Tribune on its second appearance, after having been suspended for a couple of years, and he proved a very capable and efficient journalist, being possessed of excellent qualities as a news-gatherer, a rapid and graceful writer, and a man of sound judgment. He did good work for the Tribune and received the entire approbation of his employers during his connection with it, but when the Daily Sun was projected, following the bent of his political inclinations, he accepted the position of city editor on that paper, and worked zealously for its success until his mind gave way, and he was incapacitated for further work. He spent a short time in the state asylum for the insane, but never altogether recovered his faculties. His last newspaper work was for the Centre Democrat, of Bellefonte, on which paper he was engaged when he was stricken down with his final illness."

"The deceased was a brother of Mr. Joe Furey, of the Bellefonte Watchman, and a cousin of the late William P. Furey, of the Altoona Sun. He was universally respected and esteemed by all with whom he was acquainted, but more especially by those who were associated with him in the newspaper business, who had an opportunity to discover and admire his numerous excellent qualities of head and heart. He was aged about 32 years, and leaves a wife and one child to mourn his early death."

COURT PROCEEDINGS.—Court was called on Monday morning at 10 o'clock, Judge Orvis and Associate Judges Frank and Diven on the bench.

The first business before Court was the case in equity of Samuel H. Stover and William H. Stover against Michael Hess, Newton Hess, Samuel Reed and Abraham Werts, a brief account of which was given in the DEMOCRAT of last week. Affidavits to sustain the facts alleged on both sides were read which occupied the time of the court until the hour of adjournment at noon.

Court opened at two o'clock and the list of grand Jurors were called and B. Rich, Esq., of Unionville was appointed foreman. Constables made their returns and the list of Traverse Jurors was called.

The hearing of the Equity case was then resumed. After argument by Messrs. Keller and Furst on behalf of the plaintiffs and Fortney and Spangler for the defendants the Court dissolved the preliminary injunction and appointed a Master in Chancery to take further evidence and report. C. M. Bower, Esq., was appointed Master in the case.

Grand Jury reported the following bills: Commonwealth vs. James Toben, Fornication and bastardy, Nancy Casker, prosecutrix. True bill.

REPORT OF THE GRAND JURY. To the Honorable the Judges of the Court of Centre County:

We the Grand Inquest of Centre county respectfully report that we have passed on all the bills and indictments laid before us, and under your instructions we have examined the public buildings and find the roof of the court house in a bad and leaky condition. The office are in a dilapidated condition, walls and ceilings broken, and should be repaired and so kept. The prothonotary's office needs new furniture. In the jail we find the cell on the first floor to the right, known as the iron clad cell, has not been repaired by the Commissioners since being broken by some prisoner. Otherwise we find the jail in good condition, except as to a great want of ventilation.

We report the privy in the rear of the court house as a great nuisance. We also recommend that the space at and between the rear of court house and jail should be enclosed with a good iron fence and planted with shade trees. We recommend, if there is law and the court has the authority, that they compel the Commissioners to perform these recommendations.

BENJAMIN RICH, Foreman.

WINTON, FORBETH Co., N. C. Gents—I desire to express to you my thanks for your wonderful Hop Bitters. I was troubled with dyspepsia for five years previous to commencing the use of your Hop Bitters some six months ago. My cure has been wonderful. I am pastor of the First Methodist Church of this place and my whole congregation can testify to the great virtues of your Bitters.

Very respectfully, REV. H. FRANKS.

A PLEASANT SURPRISE.—At an early hour on last Monday morning Mr. Andrew Brockerhoff was surprised at the residence of his mother, corner of Bishop and Spring streets, by a call from a number of friends who had been guests of the Brockerhoff House, at various times since that excellent hotel has been under the management of the Brockerhoff Brothers. The object of the early morning visit was soon explained by the gentlemen; who, without formality or ceremony, presented Mr. Brockerhoff with several beautiful and appropriate presents as a slight appreciation of the kindness and courtesy they had in the past received at his hands. These tokens of regard and friendship consisted of a very fine gold pen and holder, a beautiful cut glass ink stand and a pair of elegant agate cuff buttons. The gentlemen comprising the party were, Mr. B. H. Cohen, Mr. Ben Ebnor and Mr. Isaac Houser, all of Philadelphia, and Mr. William Brill, Mr. Isaac Heyman and Mr. Al. Mack, of New York. The cuff buttons, were the special gift of Mr. Houser. Andrew was too much astonished and confused in mind to make a set speech of thanks at the time, but took the first leisure moments of the day to forward to his kind friends the following letter:

BELLEFONTE, Nov. 28, 1881. GENTLEMEN:—It is with deep appreciation that I accept the handsome token of your "best wishes," and, although regretting that it will not record the thoughts of a genius, statesman or poet, such as it deserves to do, it will, itself, be a record of the pleasant relations that have always existed between us.

Life has no truer enjoyment than the assurance of the sincerity and the steadfastness of those we wish to name as friends. Therefore I hope the future of our intercourse may be as undimmed as the crystal I hold in my hand; that, as it stood the cut of the tool, so our friendship may stand the cut of adversity. With repeated acknowledgements of appreciation, I am, Very sincerely, your friend,

A. BROCKERHOFF.

DEATH OF AN AGED LADY.—On Friday last Mrs. Elizabeth Motz, relict of the late Jacob Motz, of Haines township, died at the residence of her son Samuel Motz, at the good old age of 80 years, 1 month and 7 days. The venerable lady was well known in the lower end of the county, being a descendant of one of the oldest families of Penns Valley. She was a daughter of Michael Hess who settled in the valley at an early day and left many descendants in the county to bring the family name down to the present time. Mrs. Motz was highly esteemed in the neighborhood in which her long life was passed, and on last Sabbath her remains were followed to their last resting place in the cemetery belonging to St. Paul's church, in Haines township, by a large concourse of sorrowing relatives and our friends. She was the grandmother of our townsman, C. M. Bower, Esq.

PENNS VALLEY ITEMS.—One day last week the employees of the Penns Valley Mining Co. received the unwelcome news that after the 20th inst. work would be suspended indefinitely. For some-time the company have been running their wash water into a large sink hole close beside Sinking Creek. This sink hole together with several others which, during the summer season absorb all the water of the creek, connects by a subterranean passage with the big spring beside the Spring Mill's Hotel. During the summer the muddy wash water settled and became clear before it reached the spring, but as soon as the fall rains increased the volume of the under ground current, the muddy water was carried through to the spring rendering it unfit for use. Having no other place to run their wash water the company is compelled to suspend washing operations and consequently to discharge nearly all their hands. The only way in which the company can overcome this serious obstacle is to rent more ground, and build a pond so large that the water will settle before it runs out. This the company do not seem disposed to do at present. What their future course may be I cannot say but it is hoped that they may resume operations soon again, as their suspension of work has thrown out of employment a number of men, many of whom are unprepared for a winter of idleness. This company has been laboring under several disadvantages ever since they commenced operations. In many places the veins of ore were cut off by ledges of rocks requiring a great deal of digging and blasting, and, lately, the ore has been dipping towards the hill, requiring from ten to fifteen feet of stripping. Lately they undertook to drift under the hill but soon encountered a cave with nine feet of water in it. They then commenced to strip the surface of the ore to a point beyond the cave—and had just commenced taking out the mineral when they were compelled to stop.

Duncan & Son have moved into their new store room. They have the nicest room in the village.

Mr. Dale, who during the past year, has been operating on the land of the Durst Brothers, has secured the timber leave of a tract of land near the R. R. Station, and is making preparations to move his mill on to it. The land belongs to R. H. Duncan.

MAGAZINE. The December number of THE CENTURY MAGAZINE, (late Scribner's), is the second one under its new title, and is a highly meritorious example of modern magazine work. It is richly illustrated by the leading draughtsmen and engravers of the country, and its letter-press is of the most varied and interesting character. It contains, appropriately, material in memory of the late Editor-in-chief, Dr. J. G. Holland. A faithful portrait by Wyatt Easton, engraved by Cole, is the frontispiece, and well reflects his kindly face and kind bearing. A sketch of his life by Edward Eggleston takes the first place, usually occupied by an illustrated paper; it is of an anecdotal character, and includes, among other topics, his early poverty, his influence as a journalist, his religious character, and his personal qualities. One of his own poems is printed in autograph fac-simile, and two "Topics of the Time," "The Lesson of the Year," and "Poverty as a Discipline" (the latter unfinished, and written the afternoon before his death), are printed as his last contribution to that department. There is also an editorial tribute to him, and an abstract of the memorial service at Springfield. Other papers of a decided personal interest are one upon the "Characteristics of President Garfield," by his personal friend Mr. E. V. Smalley. "The Early Writings of Robert Browning," by Edmund W. Gosse, and "The Life-Mask of Lincoln and how it was Made," by the sculptor L. W. Volk. These are all illustrated by portraits. In addition to these there are four fully illustrated articles, of which the one that will probably prove most interesting to the average reader is "A Cruise in a Pilot-boat," by S. G. W. Benjamin, with illustrations by Burns, prepared on a special commission from THE CENTURY. The life of a New York pilot it is believed has never before been the subject of a magazine paper. The cruise undertaken in the preparation of this paper has revealed a life of adventure and hazard beyond the expectation of those not familiar with the sea. In that part of the magazine devoted to fiction, the second installment of Mrs. Burnet's "Through One Administration" gives pleasing glimpses of Washington life which are particularly interesting now, at the opening of a new administration, and the first session of a new Congress; and "Mr. Jack's Promotion" will cast a new light upon the much-talked of "Spoils System," to many readers. Taking it all in all, this is one of the best numbers ever issued of this wonderfully successful and popular magazine, and it may be accepted as an earnest that so far from being allowed to suffer in any way from either the recent change in name, or the death of its great editor, Dr. Holland, its managers have determined that its progress toward magazine perfection shall be yet more rapid in the future than it has been in the past.

We don't bait you on one thing—give you one article less than cost and charge you double for the next. You can buy with confidence of us. All goods marked in plain figures. Lyon & Co.
