Death of Colonel Forney.

Philadelphia Times.

The death of John W. Forney severs another of the links which connect our political struggles with the great politipolitical struggles with the great politi-cal conflicts of a preceding generation. Although he had lived a little more than three score years, he had made himself an important factor in politics as early as 1844. Bogn in Lancaster, with neither fortune nor fortuitous cir-cumstances to aid him, he started at the printing case, and was his own careful teacher until he ranked among the ablest teachers of men.

teacher until he ranked among the ablest teachers of men.

Colonel Forney's great forte was as a paragraphist. Excepting only Horace Greeley, he was the ablest paragraphist of his day, and no man in this or any other State more fully met the early requirements of a general political editor than did Colonel Forney. The Pennsylvanian, under his direction, was the only great Democratic organ the party ever had in this city: and he was equally successful, according to the standard of journalistic success of that time, as editor of the Washington Union when it was the national organ of the Pierce was the national organ of the Pierce administration. The journalism of that day was greatest in party organs, and Colonel Forney, in the fervent vigor of his manhood, was the model partisan editor.

In 1857 Colonel Forney made a new departure in journalism. The Press was the first bold attempt at the independence of the party newspaper, and the resistance it encountered from power aroused Forney to the grandest effort of his life. His battle against Buchanan and the Kansas policy of his administration, is one of the memorable landmarks of our modern political history. It made Forney one of the most potential elements of political power, and he wielded his power with such rare discretion and consummate ability, that when sectional disruption came in 1861, he rendered an incalculable service to the country by his patriotic support of Previous and the service to the country by his patriotic support of Previous the first such as the service to the country by his patriotic support of Previous the first such as the service to the country by his patriotic support of Previous the first such as the service to the country by his patriotic support of Previous the first such as the service to the country by his patriotic support of Previous the first such as the service to the country to the service to the country by his patriotic support of Previous the service to the country to the service to country by his patriotic support of Pre-sident Lincoln.

Soon after the close of the war, Colonel Forney was among the foremost to grapple with the defection of President Johnson, and his last great national battle was made to rescue Republicanism from the fatal policy of the accidental President. He subsequently voluntarily retired from the Secretaryship of the Senate, and thenceforth his active varticipation in national politics gradparticipation in national politics grad-ually ceased; but he was in the fore front, with his commanding newspaper, in the desperate struggle to attain con

Vindicating Buchanan.

A RAY OF LIGHT FROM THE WORKSHOP 'OF BIOGRAPHER CURTIS, The New York Sun contains the following letter:

lowing letter:
In the correspondence published by Mr. Horatio King in the December number of Century, it appears that in November, 1860, he called the attention of President Buchanan to the secession tendencies of the Constitution, a paper published at that time in Washington and popularly suppossed to be Mr. Buchanan's organ. For this supposition I do not know that there was any foundation, excepting that the paposition I do not know that there was any foundation, excepting that the paper enjoyed some of the advertising patronage of the government. It might be inferred from Mr. King's letter to his correspondent that he spoke to the President repeatedly about this paper and that the President did nothing. Mr. King does not appear to have known that the President rebuked this editor for his course in regard to secesknown that the President rebuked this editor for his course in regard to secession. I have in my posession, on President Buchanan's files, a copy of his letter to the editor of the Constitution, written after that paper had taken ground against the President on the subject of secession:

[PRIVATE.]

"Washington, Dec. 25, 1860.—My Dear Sir: I have read with deep morning, in which you take open ground against my message on the right of secession. I have defended you as I can against numerous complaints. You have a perfect right to be in favor of secession, and for this I have no just reason to complain. The difficulty is that the Constitution is considered my organ, and its articles subject me to the charge of insincerity and double dealing. I am deeply Foreign as, except on yearly contracts, when half-yearly parments in advance will be required. Fourieat Nortics, 15 cents per line each insertion. Nothing inserted for less than 50 cents. Besizes Nortes, in the editorial columns, 15 cents per line, each insertion.

Your friend, very respectfully, "JAMES BUGHNANN."

Respect 1. Re cerity and double dealing. I am deeply sorry to say that I must in some authen-tic form declare that the Constitution is

"WILLIAM M. BROWNE, Esq."
In the mulliplicity of matters of the gravest concern which, in the month of November, 1860, demanded the President's attention—of which, as well as of all his conduct down to the 4th of March all his conduct down to the 4th of March 1861, I expect ere long to give to the public a full account—he may have not done everything that his anxious friends desired, before his annual message of December 3, 1860, to relieve their minds December 3, 1860, to relieve their minds of the apprehension that his adminis-tration was suffering injury from this newspaper and on other similar signs that it harbored secessionists among its officers or the objects of its patronage. But I take it upon me to affirm, after the most thorough study of Mr. Buch-anan's course and a full exemination of the very abundant materials contained the very abundant materials contained the very abundant materials contained in his private papers, that from the time of Mr. Lincoln's inauguration, Mr. Buchanan never did any important act which any patriot or any friend of his would now wish that he had not done, or refrained from doing an important act that any patriot or friend of his would, upon close consideration of the facts say he ought to have performed.

facts, say he ought to have performed.

There is not a more remarkable instance in all history of the misconception and misrepresentation with which a great public man may be pursued than this case of Mr. Buchanan. It is somewhat encouraging that the revela-tions recently made by the surviving members of his Cabinet, Messrs. Black, Holt, Thompson and King, have tended to show the people of this country how mistaken many of them have been in regard to them. But it must be remem-bered that General Dix and Mr. Stanto show the people of this country how mistaken many of them have been in regard to them. But it must be remembered that General Dix and Mr. Stanton are no longer living. From them, and from Mr. Holt will come in due time the most indubitable proofs, put option administration and when far were recent, that their authority is not to be used to disparage any part of his gonduct, his firmness, his fidelity to the constitution and the Union, the wisdom of his measures, and the propriety of his acts. The time has come when Mr. Buchanan himself, when the truth as it is, should have a hearing; and although I do not mean, in writing his life and times, to constitute myself his special eulogist, I intend that he and his cause shall be "read aright to the unsatisfied."

usily ceased; but he was in the fore front, with his commanding newspaper, in the desperate struggle to attain constitutional reform in Pennsylvania, and he saw it triumph as the people seconded his efforts by the largest popular majority for the new Constitution ever cast in the State.

But the time comes in every life when the rude shock of perpetual battle becomes distasteful, and Colonel Forney retired to Europe to accept the then more congenial work of promoting the Centennial Exhibition. Since then he has been sluggish in partisan conflicts, and his growing taste for rest and freedom from a degenerating political domination, culminated finally in his sale of the Prezs several years ago, and his absolute release from all partisan obligations. He founded Pregress, ostensibly to found a first-class weekly journal of the standard of the successful English weeklies, but in fact to recall himself and his many friends who had passed or were passing away, and keep their memories and their achievements green.

Few men have passed away from among the living of to-day for whom so much heartfelt grief has been felt as if for John W. Forney. He was achivalrous fee; the most genial of friends, and in all things generous to a fault. Had he been cunning and uscribulous as were others who wrestled with him at the threshold of the temple of fame, he would have commanded. Senates and Cabinets and even Presidents; but he was moulded to battle for others and seldom won battles for himself. He was made the subordinate of Senate and House when his abilities and devotion to principle and friends should have made him master of his masters; and his political fortunes were only the keen disappointments which, in the end, made him retire to live is the greateful memories of past achieve ments and friendships. His great work was done, and he lawned with commanded the process of past achieve ments and friendships. which is just as good as that in some of the most prosperous cotton plantations in the South, but we would rather conin the South, out we would rather confine ourselves to our native State and let it get the credit. The fact is, said the speaker, in conclusion, "sooner or later, if any trade in raw cotton is to be done away from the South our people must awaken to the necessity of increased cultivation. Down in Dixie's Land ed cultivation. Down in Dixie's Land they are erecting mills and manufactories on a large scale in order to utilize their own produce, and if this policy is continued it will only be a question of time when shipments of cotton East will be largely curtailed, even if they are not susper ded altogether."

The "Water Fuel" Locomotive.

The new locomotive to be run by "water fuel" is nearly completed at the Giant locomotive works at Paterson, N. J. The fire box is specially adapted to the purpose desired of burning the naptha and water. The disassociation of the oxygen and hydrogen, in the presence of naptha gas heated to a temperature of four hundred degrees c., is followed by the combustion of the hy-drogen, at a temperature of eight thousand degrees c., a degree of heat never before applied to the purpose of making steam. It will occur to the theoretical mind that an agent so effective must destroy the material with which it is brought in contact. Time and test will. brought in contact. Time and test will, however, soon settle the matter. In the meantime we learn from the Railway World that a railroad company has offered $1,000,000 for the right to use the new fuel, provided that the engine adapted to its use will draw a train of four Pullman cars from New York to Chicago and return on schedule time.

Justice Overtakes a Snyder County Murderer After Fifteen Years.

At Middleburg, Snyder county, Detec-tive Lyon and Officer Smith arrested Joseph Moyer for a murder committed Joseph Moyer for a murder committed fifteen years ago. The accused was committed for trial on the strength of an affidavit made by a citizen of Snyder county. The affidavit sets forth that fifteen years ago two peddlers mysteriously disappeared from the locality in which Israel Erb, Jonathan Moyer and Emanuel Ettinger, convicted of the murder of the aged Kintzlers, resided and that a confession made by one of these men implicated Joseph Moyer in the murder of one peddler, who was the murder of one peddler, who was found in the bed of a creek. In the affidavit it is also alleged that the ac-cused has followed Detective Lyon with the avowed intention of shooting him in retaliation for his connection with the arrest and conviction of the mur-derers of John Kintzler and wife. The affidavit further declares that Ulrich Moyer, recently arrested for complicity in the Kintzler crime, participated in the murder of the other peddler.
