

DEEDS OF KIDNAPPERS.

Famous Cases of Recent Times. ITALIAN BRIGANDAGE FOR THE PURPOSE OF EXTORTING RANSOM MONEY—THE STORY ON CHARLEY ROSS.

The London Standard says: We are able to announce the recovery of the little boy Marcuard, who had been so cruelly kidnapped at Berne. He was a mere child of some seven years, and was, we are told, the son of a private gentleman of considerable position in the Canton. He attended one of the schools in the Federal capital, and a woman of respectable appearance presented herself at the school, stating that she had been sent by the child's mother, who was waiting for him in the Waisenhausplatz, to take him for a drive. No suspicion suggesting itself the boy was allowed to leave, but, as he did not return home at the usual hour, inquiries were made and the suggestion that he had been kidnapped was confirmed by a letter which arrived a few hours later, informing Herr Marcuard that his son was in safe custody, but that he would most certainly be murdered unless a ransom of two thousand pounds were, within a given time, safely lodged in an indicated place. Herr Marcuard had the courage to at once put the matter in the hands of the police, and the child was found in an isolated house near the city, where he had, our Geneva correspondent informs us, been hidden by a family of three persons of very bad reputation, all of whom have been arrested and are now in custody. So far, then, everything has ended well, and it only remains for the Swiss tribunals to award these miscreants the severest penalty which the law of the Canton allows. But it is quite possible that the child would have been murdered had the ransom not been forthcoming, and had the criminals been aware that they were being run to earth. Some years ago the majority of Swiss states, trusting a little too rashly to the peaceable and law-abiding character of their inhabitants, were induced to sanction the abolition of capital punishment—a fact upon which the present offenders may, perhaps, have reckoned. Within a few years, however, there broke out almost an epidemic of murder, the crime being usually instigated by motives of the most sordid kind; and so intolerable at last did the evil become that a movement was set on foot to re-instate the old penalty of death in extreme cases. The present is the third instance of kidnapping that has taken place within the last few years. Every one will remember the case of Charley Ross, who, in 1874, was stolen from the house of his parents in the suburbs of Philadelphia. For his ransom the sum of $20,000 was demanded. Every effort was made to discover the abductors; their plans, however, had been deeply laid. The matter excited the very keenest interest throughout the states. But the police were utterly baffled, and after a time the letters demanding the ransom ceased to arrive. It is now generally believed that little Ross was stolen by a couple of New York burglars, named Douglas and Mosher, who were both shot in an attempt to break into the house of Judge Van Brunt on Long Island. Mosher was shot dead on the spot, and Douglas, while dying, declared that he and Mosher had stolen the boy, but that Mosher alone knew where he was hidden. But from that day to this Charley Ross has never been heard of; and it is difficult to avoid the painful conclusion that he is dead.

PUBLISHERS of newspapers are more poorly rewarded than any other class of men in the United States, who invest an equal amount of labor, capital and thought. They are expected to do more service for less pay, to stand more sponging and dead heading, to puff and defend more people without any fee or hope of reward than any other class. They credit wider and longer; get oftener cheated; suffer more pecuniary loss; and are oftener the victim of misplaced confidence than any other calling in the community. People pay a printer's bill more reluctantly than any other. It goes harder with them to expend a dollar on a valuable newspaper than ten on a needless gewgaw. yet everybody avails himself of the editor's pen and the printer's ink.

A Fact Worth Knowing.

All of you and everybody should know that the heavy stock of men's and boy's clothing, boots and shoes, and ladies' shoes at the Great Boston Clothing House just opened in Reynolds' block, Allegheny street Bellefonte, Pa., are the latest styles and best patterns; made up at their headquarters in Boston, especially for the Bellefonte Branch. This is a fact, worth knowing. Remember the place—we mean the Boston Clothing House in Reynolds' block opposite the Brockerhoff House, Allegheny street Bellefonte, Pa. The cheapest place in the world to buy clothing, boots and shoes. no17-2t

AN "ORGAN."—"Young subscriber" wants to know "what is an organ?" It is the opposition paper, my son; the vile and truckling sheet through whose venomous maw, foetid with vice and festering with the loathsome corruption in which it daily wallows; the other party, bilistered with the plague spot of political leprosy, sewers the noisome filth of its pestilential ideas. GUR-R-R!! That's what an organ is, my boy. Our own paper is a Fearless and out-spoken Champion for the Truth. You may have noticed that.—Hawkeye.

Over a year ago I recommended your Hop Bitters to my invalid wife, who has been under medical treatment of six of Albany's best physicians several years. She has become thoroughly cured of her various complicated diseases by their use. We both recommend them to our friends, many of whom have also been cured of their various ailments by them. REV. E. The chief ingredient and life giving element of this great remedy is an herb commonly known as bitter-root although but very rarely found in this country, excepting in the extreme Northwest.
