

The Centre Democrat.

BELLEVILLE, PA.

The Republican Party's Future.

With the Lincoln Administration the Republican party first acquired prominence and power, and by a combination of circumstances it was called upon to do its best work at the beginning of its career. To it were attached many able men and accomplished statesmen, who sooner or later lost their influence with the party and became detached from its support.

It is a very significant fact that with the single exception of one whose absence was requested and who left in rather bad odor, every member of Lincoln's original Cabinet became antagonist to and left the party. Greeley, Sumner, Fessenden, Trumbull, Adams, and that class of men were denounced, and a totally different class of men came to the front and assumed control.

From that time forward, while adventurous politicians have been rushing to its standard, the better element of the party—the men who gave it character and standing—have been leaving it.

Give the Republican party credit for all the good it may have accomplished and still there follows a long accountability, such, for instance, as—

The Boss Shepherd Ring frauds in the District of Columbia.

The safe burglary iniquity.

The whiskey frauds, reaching to the White House.

The Freedman's Bank swindle.

The Belknap impeachment.

The Robeson naval frauds.

The Sanborn frauds.

The Indian Bureau frauds.

The Pension Bureau frauds.

The Black Friday rascality.

The theft of the Presidency in 1876.

The Indiana bribery in 1880.

And the Star route frauds, not to mention a long list of other offences, any one of which ought to and would overthrow any other political party that ever existed in this country.

Those who acted with it from the start, and held out with it as long as self-respect would allow them to do so, admit and assert that it has been false to all its first principles, and become a party of pretence and hypocrisy.

Intrenched in power as it has been so long, with all the offices and emoluments in its possession; with unlimited resources and an army of willing servants at its command; with innumerable dependents tenacious of their places and ready to do anything required to keep the party in the ascendancy, it is no easy matter for the sovereign people ever to overthrow this huge monopoly of power.

Recent events indicate pretty clearly that the people have taken these things to heart and intend to act accordingly.

The Republican leaders will, of course, blind the eyes of the people as much as possible by ignoring their complaints, and endeavoring to divert their minds from the sins of the party to questions of policy upon which they suppose people may differ. The people, however, are in earnest, and what they want is honesty in elections, economy in public expenditures, and a thorough reform in all the affairs of Government; and this they will know cannot be effected unless there is a change of the men who administer the Government.

The influence of names is no longer felt; the catch-words of party can neither rally, nor do they alarm the voter as they once did. The honest Republican who means reform does not hesitate to act with the honest Democrat who votes for it. The independent voter takes the responsibility and casts his ballot where he thinks it will do the most good. We have seen this in the last election in the different States; and this movement will continue, and the whole country will again rejoice in an honest administration of Government under new men, a new order of things.—Portland Register.

Lincoln on McClellan.

A Reminiscence Related by E. Gov. Austin Blair, of Michigan.

In a recent address at Bellevue, Mich., ex-Gov. Austin Blair gave an account of the convention of governors of northern states that met at Altoona, Pa., at the time of the issuing of the emancipation proclamation by President Lincoln, in 1862. The convention was called to bring an influence to bear upon President Lincoln to induce him to issue a proclamation or do some act that would set at liberty the 4,000,000 slaves; but the president outwitted them by issuing a proclamation on the same day their convention met. The governors then decided to go on to Washington and present to the president, not the urgent resolutions they had intended, but an address complimenting him upon the step he had taken. This address was prepared in an able manner by Governor Andrew, of Massachusetts, who read it to President Lincoln as he sat at his desk, while the governors were seated around the room. After that an incident happened that Gov. Blair said he had never before related to any one. Gov. Kirkwood, of Iowa, since a United States senator and secretary of the interior, rose and said: "Mr. President—I should be delighted could I return to my home and say to the people of Iowa that the president of the United States believes Gen. George B. McClellan is a royal man." He branched off upon other subjects connected with the war, and then closed by repeating with more emphasis: "I should be glad, Mr. President, to tell the people of Iowa that you believe in the loyalty and patriotism of George B. McClellan."

Taking his feet down from the desk upon which they had been resting, Mr. Lincoln sprang to his feet and straightened up, apparently two inches taller than usual, and said, with much force and apparent excitability: "Loyal! George B. McClellan is as loyal as any one of you." Then stopping a moment the president's face assumed its natural pleasant look, and he continued in a natural and pleasing tone: "I'll tell you, gentlemen, Gen. McClellan is an exceedingly well informed general, and is very careful, in fact, too careful, and the great trouble with him is that when he wins a victory he doesn't know what to do with it."

"Why not try somebody else?" mildly suggested Gov. Blair.

"We might do that and might lose an army by it," was the quick response of the president, which Gov. Blair admitted "completely unhorsed him."

Romance at Long Branch.

A Young Clerk Saves the Life of a St. Louis Heiress.

At Long Branch Miss Millicent Coombs, of St. Louis, went in bathing and was in danger of drowning, when a railroad clerk, who was a good swimmer, rescued her. Miss Coombs is a beautiful orphan, with $100,000 of her own and arrived a few days ago from her home accompanied by her aunt and two lady companions and a male cousin. She is an adventurous girl and struck out boldly, but when a little way from shore some object that she took for a huge fish touched her, and as she had been caught during the day, she lost her presence of mind.

Her screams attracted attention on shore and the life boat was quickly launched, but it would never have saved her had not help been nearer at hand. Bathing at the time Miss Coombs began to cry for help was Mr. Willie H. Whittlesey, who was about 200 feet from her shouting to her to keep cool. He soon reached her side, told her to place her arm around his neck and have courage, as the boat would soon reach them. The plucky girl did as bidden, and they were soon taken into the boat. Miss Coombs then swooned, but by the time the shore was reached she had recovered her consciousness.

They were received with a shout from the crowd, and Miss Coombs' cousin pressed a roll of bills into Whittlesey's hand. The gallant young fellow, however, handed it back, saying that he had only done his duty.

By great persuasion on the part of Miss Coombs he agreed to accept as a gift a gold watch and chain, which she said she herself would purchase and give to the man who saved her life. Mr. Whittlesey, who is not 21 years old, is engaged to be married to an estimable young lady who resides near his home at Iowa City, and the impulsive little heiress made him promise to permit her to act as bridesmaid on the occasion of his marriage. Whittlesey is a clerk in a railroad office in Iowa City, and a handsome young fellow, and when married there is no doubt but that Miss Coombs will see that he starts on life's journey with something more substantial than a clerk's pittance.

Grant Would Not Hang Lee.

We heard some time ago from a Washingtonian a story that is so creditable to Grant that we will give it. We had heard it before, but not in shape calculated to give us confidence in its authenticity. But as we last heard it, and because of the circumstantiality attending it, we no longer discredit it. After Lincoln's assassination there was a growing sentiment among extreme men in the north that the southern leaders must be punished, and the more famous men hanged. A Cabinet meeting was called and it was resolved to hang at least General Lee and some one or two others. Grant, at the head of the army, was sent for, and was told that was the action of the Cabinet. He deliberately unbuckled his sword, and laying it upon the table, said: "My honor as a soldier and a man is pledged to General Lee, and if you take the step proposed, I at once surrender my sword, resign my commission, and go before the American people." This firmness and promptness brought the extreme men to their senses, and the matter was dropped. We are assured that the story is trustworthy, and it comes through a channel that entitles it to credence. It is honorable to Grant, and shows him in a much grander light than anything he has ever done as President.—Wilmington (N. C.) Star.

A Human Windmill.

Remarkable Deformity of a Connecticut Boy of Seventeen Years.

A Norwalk, Connecticut, dispatch, relates that in a small one-story frame dwelling, situated opposite the freight depot of the Danbury and Norwalk railroad there, was recently discovered a curious example of human deformity, whose existence has been preserved a secret for nearly seventeen years. At the house mentioned Thomas Hardon, a railway laborer, and his wife live with their son Tom. This boy was born seventeen years ago, a misshapen mite of humanity. By the advice of their parish priest the sorrowing parents have carefully concealed him from the public gaze. When a correspondent called at the house the unfortunate boy was found half sitting and half reclining on an invalid's easy chair. He is totally devoid of shoulders, and from the centre of his back two arms, with well-formed hands, grew from a single joint. The hands and arms are devoid of the power of feeling, and are also afflicted with a strange, continual motion, sweeping around in a circle like a windmill, the arms being stretched out at full length and moving in opposite directions. This motion never ceases except when the arms are tied together, and are covered with scars from contact with the walls, tables, chairs, etc. His body is further deformed by the joining of the legs as far as the knee.

Here the right leg is turned back and upward until the heel strikes the centre of the back, where it is firmly imbedded in the flesh. He is mentally bright, and conversed freely and intelligently with the reporter about the few books his parents had been able to provide for him and about articles he had read in the newspapers, which are occasionally supplied to him. Said his mother: "He is a great care to us, being unable to help himself at all. But he is just as dear to me as if he was like other children. I suppose he could be exhibited, but as long as his father or myself have life in our bodies to work for him he never shall be."

Foodhardy Adventure.

Captain Webb Drowned in a Whirlpool at Niagara Falls.

NIAGARA FALLS, July 24.—Captain Webb attempted to swim the whirlpool of the rapids this afternoon. He dived into the water at four o'clock this afternoon, 300 yards above the old suspension bridge, and then swam towards the rapids. As he entered them under the bridge he was nearly turned over by the force of the water. From this point until in the middle of the rapids he was plainly seen by those on the bridge. At times he plunged out of sight and then again could be seen on the top of a huge wave. He gradually passed through and continued towards the whirlpool. People followed in carriages and the last seen of the captain was as he entered the whirlpool; when he was apparently doing nicely, but immediately afterwards sank and nothing was heard from him at 10 o'clock this evening.

When the swimmer struck the whirlpool he was rushed to the American side, where the waves were from three to forty feet high. The last seen of him was when he threw up one arm. His intention was to pass the whirlpool on the Canada side. Webb leaves a wife and two children in England. The refusal of railroads or the hotels at the falls to have anything to do with what they termed his going to death, rendered the affair a financial failure. The river has been searched two miles below the whirlpool, but no trace of the swimmer could be found. It is generally conceded that he was engulfed in the whirlpool. Webb's manager gives up all hopes of his safety.

Old maid: Oh, yes; there is plenty of hope for you yet. Naomi, the daughter of Enoch, did not marry until she was 580 years old. Like a sensible girl, she waited until she had arrived at the age of discretion.

The engaged couple is not two souls with but a single thought, as is generally supposed. The thought about staying single never occurs to them.
