The Blood of the Howards.

The Little Blind Heir to their Titles and Es-

The little Earl Arundel is to be car ried now to the shrine of Caravaggio, where prayers for the recovery of his sight are to be offered. We know of nothing at once more pitiful and more interesting than the case of this fouryear-old heir of all the titles, estates and fame of the great Howard family. Its chief title is from that rough diamond Roger Bigod, Earl of Norfolk, whowhen choleric Edward I., urging him to a distasteful adventure, cried, "Sir Earl, you shall either go or hang! ' he stoutly retorted : "Sir King, I will neither go nor bang!" and forthwith and were all nigh forgotten when the Dukedom of Norfolk and its heriditary Earl Marshalship possed over to the Mowbrays, and thence became centered in the person of a young woman, together with the estates and titles of the great lines, was wedded to a smart young knight of Yorkshire, Sir Robert Howard, the head of a family of lawyers who had more wealth than blood. It was the son of this marriage, John Howard, who rode in high favor with found those lines which Shakespeare on the morn of Bosworths' fight.

Even in his religion he to that most bewitching of Rome's daughters, Mary of Scots. The Howards have kept the faith ever since, through good and evil report. The present Duke wedded the Lady Flora Hastings, a daughter of the famous Countess of Loudoun, and of another English family which draws its very name from the battle-field that gave Britain to the Normaus. Their single son, Philip Mary Joseph, Earl of Arundel and Surrey, was born blind. There has been something infinitely touching in the devoutness of the efforts made by the stricken parents to avert this affliction. The poor little boy has been blessed in person by the Pope; he has been prayed for by Knock, at Lourdes, and the other shrines in Europe, and special invocations on his behalf have been enjoyned more than once from the Vatican upon the churches of Eu-

A Descendant of Washington.

The name and family of the great Washington were represented at the recent Newburg centennis, by Mrs. Lewis Washington, who, as Vice Regent of West Virginia, has been prominently connected with the Mount Vernon associ ation for may years. An erroneous im-pression has prevailed that it was this lady's bushand who sold Mount Vernon to the Ladies' association. Col. Lewis Washington was on the staff of Gov. Washington was on the stall of the Wise, of Virginia, during the exciting period of John Brown's raid on Harper's Ferry. The determined old insurrectionest took Col. Washington prison rectionest took Col. Washington prison er, and held him as a hostage. He subsequently married the lady who now bears his name. She was his cousin and several years his junior. She was a great-granddaughter of Gen. Washington's only sister, consequently a great-grandniece of Washington, and also of his wife by direct decent from the Dandrige family. By this intermarriage of cousins Mrs. Lewis Washington's son commingles three lines of Washington blood. Wonderful Revelations

DEASLERS IN PURE DRUG

Amputation and Rum-

Some two years ago a sea captain, a patient of mine, and by no means a bad amateur doctor, on returning from sea, told me somewhat gleefully that he had successfully performed amputation. Whilst his ship was at Ruruta, an uncivilized island in the South Pacific, a poor native got his arm entangled in a sugar crushing machine. As there was no doctor on the island, my friend, the captain, was summoned, and at once recognized the necessity for removing the shattered fragments of the limb. The shricks and struggles of the powerful aborigiual were most fearful. Recognizing the necessity for taking steps to save the man's life, the captain hurried off to his ship, and returned with the necessary implements, and, in addition, a rum. In the absence of chloroform he induced his patient to swallow this fiery compound, wineglassful after wineglassful, until intoxication was induced, and subsequently profound alcoholic invensibility. Then the tourniquet was applied and amputation successfully performed. Recovery rapidly took place. So pleased was the savage with the eff ct of anasthesia that he subsequently offered to let my
