CANCER CURED.

No disease has so thoroughly baffled the skill of the medical profession as cancerous affections and as they have always been considered incurable, it has been thought desirable to adopt their treatment as a specialty; and hence physicians have neglected their proper study. But of late years new and important discoveries have brought forth a course that now proves successful in any of its forms, with certainty, without the use of the knife or caustic plasters. We have a treatment that is comparatively mild. It is not poisonous, does not interfere with the healthy flesh, can be applied to any part of the body, even the tongue. We take nothing for our services until the cancer is cured. Address D. J. HULBERT, Esq., Bellefonte, Pa.

Why Democratic Prospects Increase.

A Washington writer has discovered a change in the political aspect favorable to the democratic party. While there has been no recent doubt that the issue of the coming canvass will be favorable to the democrats, the change which is noticeable to all may be attributed to the recent business disturbances. The republicans are invoking the aid of business men, representing to them that the interests of business are dependent on their success in the elections, yet such transactions as have recently convulsed the business centres are directly traceable to the business methods developed under republican administration. Recommendation and advice in regard to the elections from a class which has manifested such an inclination to run into the excesses of speculation and stock gambling, however zealously they may endeavor to boom the republican cause will have rather the effect to repel them to enlist popular favor in behalf of the republican ticket of whatever material it may be composed. The people have learned that unsound business principles are nurtured by a corrupt political policy. It is recognized that the business methods which led to the recent disgraceful failures have come into vogue since republican administrations have directed the policy of the government. They have become to be regarded by the people as the offspring of the loose and dishonest political habits of the dominant party. The knowledges of this fact will powerfully aid the democratic cause in the present contest. The people see so little to induce them to aid in promoting the interest of a class which has made its millions by monopoly and speculation that have been encouraged by the republican party; that when the typical business men of the period, the speculators, monopolists and stock jobbers rally to the support of the party under which they have flourished and fattened, the popular impulse is to take the other side. This is a reason why democratic prospects are improving every day, in addition to a determination on the part of the people that the war taxes and the tariff for surplus and plunder must go.

Contest Over A Corpse.

A Norwich, Conn., dispatch says: The St. Mary's Catholic Cemetery is situated two miles to the north of this city, in a lonely and isolated opening in the heavy white oak forest, which but stubbornly yields space to it, and to the narrow plot of green sward occupied by the monument which marks the spot where Miantonomah fell, and where his heart was cut out and sampled by the blood-thirsty Uncas. It is a gloomy spot. On Wednesday morning last, between 2 and 3 o'clock, a party of belated revellers from Baltic, on their way to this city, while passing the cemetery had their hair raised on end by the sight of lanterns moving among the tombs in the graveyard, by the clanking of tools, and by sobs as if a distressed female. They caught sight of a group of men bearing a long dark object between them slowly. Then the tall figure of a person apparently a woman dressed in sweeping black robes seemed to rise out of the ground and move swiftly toward them, holding aloft her hand as though in warning. This was enough. Flying the whip, they urged their horse to the top of his speed until he reached the city limits. It was either the russet ocher at Baltic or else a black ghost, they concluded among themselves. To the general public they said not a word until the event of yesterday caused them to unloose their tongues. Some time on Tuesday night the corpse of Michael Enright, a wealthy Irishman of this city, was spirited from its resting place in the lot of his sister, Hannah Enright, in the Catholic Cemetery, and probably interred in the lot of his wife in the same cemetery, as a newly-made grave would seem to indicate. No one knows this for certain, but the rumors, the conduct of the widow Enright and the new grave have so maddened the Enright family that it is thought they will tear the grave open and carry the body, if they can find it, back to their sister's lot. They have already instituted legal proceedings to recover the body from the widow, but they fear the Courts cannot tell them who the body belongs to. A prolonged contest will be the result, whatever course things may take. The affair is the outcome of a family quarrel. The Enrights disliked Michael's wife. When he died Hannah had his body buried in her own lot, and ever since then she has claimed to own the right to retain the body. The widow Enright has vainly appealed to the Courts for it, and finally resorted to the midnight grave digging. —GREAT REDUCTION in Britton's celebrated Dexter Queen buggies. The World of Agriculture.—The Agricultural World, one of the best, is making a great success of the plan inaugurated by its editor a few years ago. The plan is nothing less than the giving of exhaustive articles by the best writers on agriculture in all the countries of the world. The articles from the different states and Territories of our own country are particularly instructive and entertaining. Judge Parrish's articles on "The Farmer's Relation to Law" are alone worth the price of the paper. Judge Parrish, who is one of the ablest judges and lecturers in the West, will soon leave for the South, with the view of supplying the paper with a series of articles on the agricultural features of that section. This journal also has a fine household department, which makes it particularly attractive to lady readers. The price of the Agricultural World (now in its tenth year) is only One Dollar per annum (26 numbers). In clubs of five, 80 cents each. Six months, 60 cents; three months, 40 cents. Sample copies, 6 cents. Two-cent postage stamps received on subscription. Address AGRICULTURAL WORLD Grand Rapids, Mich.
