CANCER CURED.
No disease has so thoroughly baffled the skill of the medical profession as cancerous affections and as they have always been considered incurable, it has been thought desirable to adopt their treatment as a specialty; and hence physicians have neglected their proper study. But of late years new and important discoveries have brought forth a course that now proves successful in any of its forms, with certainty, without the use of the knife or caustic plasters. We have a treatment that is comparatively mild. It is not poisonous, does not interfere with the healthy flesh, can be applied to any part of the body, even the tongue. We take nothing for our services until the cancer is cured.

Gov. Cleveland and the fawn.
There is a pretty little story told of Cleveland's last summer at a mountain resort in the Adirondacks. There were a number of gentlemen and ladies at the hotel where Cleveland was stopping and the gentlemen were very fond of sporting, and also very fond of young venison. One day when they were out on the lake in a boat a little fawn ran down into the water, and they were able by getting the boat in its rear to finally catch it alive and drag it into the boat. After they had done so it again escaped them and got out into the water. But they recaptured it and brought it dripping and frightened to the hotel. Here they announced their intention of killing it for the table. The ladies, however, who were delighted with it, made a strong petition for its release. There was much discussion, and it was finally decided that it should be tried for its life before one of the party, who should be judge. This was done and the speeches were made. But the judge found the fawn guilty of death, and the sentence was passed. The ladies still pleaded, and it was finally decided to let the Governor decide whether it should be pardoned or not. He promptly granted its pardon, much to the disgust of the hunters, and the little thing bounded away.

PENN HALL.
Mr. Wm. Heckman has sold his farm to a Mr. Teets from Bloomsburg.

Jonathan Condo and wife spent Sunday at Clinton dale camping.
Mr. Andrew Heckman and wife, from Illinois, are visiting relatives and friends in this neighborhood. None of his friends knew of his coming, as he wished to surprise them all.

J. B. Fisher, our enterprising merchant, has been the first one to have the peerless melons this season in this neighborhood. Mr. Fisher is never behind, either in goods or prices.
Mrs. Samuel Fisher, from Illinois, was visiting friends in town a few days last week.

The most talked of throughout the county and few of our neighboring townships is of the late convention, and of course Gregg township is one that has got to take, and I think it can stand the wrap. One thing we are proud of, if our man was defeated he lost no money as he canvassed. He did not intend to make his nomination by leaving five and ten dollars at every hotel in the county, and the cry is at present "we shall remember Gregg." Well, you can, as Gregg always has something to say at the conventions, and they did say it and said it nobly. We glory in their firmness, and it shall not be behind in the future. Gregg is always there. It can also do its duty without a John Kelley.

The young folks of this place had the pleasure of enjoying themselves last Saturday at the so-called leap year picnic on the Nittany mountain. They left here at half-past-ten o'clock in the morning. The party consisted of ten couples. After the refreshments there and a little enjoyment they started for Myers' hotel, Centre Hall, where they partook of a sumptuous supper, which made them all feel happy for the homeward tour.
We should like to give a few items of a certain gathering, but as the "Mountain Boy" is shocked to a serious degree, has concluded to postpone until some future time.
MOUNTAIN BOY.

—We take the following from the Mechanicsburg Saturday Journal:
Mr. W. F. Decker was married to Miss Nora I. Brugger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Brugger, at Unionville, Centre county, Pa., on Thursday evening at 6 o'clock, August 14th.
The bride and groom entered the spacious parlor attended by the bridesmaid, Miss Flora Bitner, of Centre Hall, and groomsmen, Mr. Oliver Mordorf, of Mechanicsburg, Pa., to a grand wedding march played by Miss Laura Rumberger. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. A. Woodcock. The bride was arrayed in a beautiful white satin with a long flowing train. She was the recipient of numerous valuable presents from her many friends who were gathered to witness the happy event. Immediately after the ceremony the guests, numbering more than a hundred, assembled around a luxuriantly spread table, which had been placed on the lawn surrounding the Brugger mansion. At 8 o'clock the bridal couple started for Lock Haven, from whence they will visit Chautauque, Niagara Falls and other points of interest. They expect to return the latter part of next week to Mechanicsburg, where they will take up their residence. We wish them joy and happiness pure and undiluted.

ACCIDENT.—On last Saturday morning Mr. J. C. Rumberger, the station agent at Unionville met with a serious though not necessary fatal accident.

Mr. Rumberger as is his custom was running to where the mail car stops in order to exchange mails when the engine of the eastern bound train struck him and threw him several yards. When picked up he seemed lifeless and was pronounced dead by the physician. He finally recovered and we are pleased to learn is rapidly improving and will be up and around in a few days. He sustained no internal injuries and no bones were broken, but was terribly bruised and shocked. It was not through any carelessness that the accident occurred, but the immense crowd of people standing around and the unusual length of the train necessitated his going beyond his usual point.

Flag Raising and Banquet.
Thursday evening was the time and the New Brockerhoff House the scene of a flag raising and military banquet, which has been the talk of the town ever since. Proprietor McMillen is a member of the Bellefonte Fencibles, Co. B, of the 5th Regt. He served with the company at Gettysburg as a private soldier, and his attention to his duties and his genial good nature endeared him not only to the members of his own company but to the entire regiment. On his return from camp he determined to give a banquet to Capt. Mullen and his fellow members of the gallant Fencibles. He also made it the occasion of a flag raising, and happily fixed the time when the Commander of the Department of Penn'a., G. A. R., and his staff would be present. All these pleasant events were combined in the delightful occasion of Thursday evening.

At six o'clock, p. m., a handsome American flag was drawn to the top of the flag pole from the roof of the hotel. An immense crowd assembled in the streets below and cheered lustily, while the Milesburg band discoursed patriotic music. At a few minutes before nine o'clock the Fencibles, under Capt. Mullen, headed by the band, marched to the depot and upon the arrival of the train escorted Commander Dyer, Commander of the Department of Penn'a., G. A. R., Adj't. Gen'l Stewart and several members of the Commander's staff, to the Brockerhoff House. In the meantime, Gov. Curtin, Judge Hoy, A. O. Furst, Esq., and the following gentlemen in full uniform, Col. Hastings, Maj. D. S. Keller, Maj. Austin Curtin, Surgeon Geo. F. Harris, Adj't. Hale, together with the local committee of the G. A. R., assembled in the gentlemen's parlor.

The Brockerhoff dining room was very beautifully decorated and the tables were marvels of perfection in everything relating to taste, culinary skill and pleasing design.

It was not an official reception of the head of the G. A. R. Department, but as Col. Hastings remarked, "it was not wholly unofficial."
The band took position in the west corner of the dining room, the Fencibles marched in to the step of music, and the remaining guests in order. Col. Hastings presided with Commander Dyer on his right, and the latter's staff to his right and left. Gov. Curtin occupied the head of the Veterans' table flanked by Judge Hoy, Mr. Furst, Gen. Curtin, Capt. Williams, and other members of the G. A. R. Committee of Arrangements. The banquet was served in admirable taste under the personal supervision of Mr. McMillen.

When the plates were cleared Col. Hastings arose and briefly stated the causes which happily combined and brought about the delightful occasion, concluding by saying: "This is a temperance town, the Fencibles drink water only, the gallant proprietor will permit nothing stronger to be served on this occasion, but I ask you to join me in drinking 'Adam's ale' to the health of Commander Dyer, to his staff, to the Department of Penn'a. of the G. A. R., and to the hope that their reunion here will be a glorious success." Everybody rose to his feet, the glasses clicked, and the angel on the Court House fountain, if present, would have smiled to see the cold water disappear. Commander Dyer was not well, but Adj't. Gen. Stewart came gallantly to his relief in a most happy response. Roars of laughter went round at each succeeding happy hit of the blonde adjutant. McMillen's health was drunk, and the big-hearted proprietor responded modestly. Judge Hoy responded on behalf of the judiciary in a pleasant speech. A. O. Furst being called upon gave humorous reminiscences of the emergency campaign in Somerset county when he was second lieutenant. Gen. Beaver was absent, but his health was drunk amid ringing cheers, and Maj. Keller responded for the 2d Brigade. He said the National Guard of this State had steadily advanced in character, education and discipline until now it commanded the respect and admiration of the whole country. It was a standing army, drilled and ready for effective service at an hour's notice. It was no mob, but a drilled body of the best material in the State. The ranks were full, there were many knocking for admission, but no more room. The Guard was an honor to the State, and its members were honored by belonging to it. Maj. Keller's remarks were listened to with much attention.

Col. Hastings then arose and stated that the Fencibles was one of the oldest military organizations in the State, and that from its ranks had come some of the best soldiers in the late war. The Fencibles were organized years before the rebellion, and their first captain was the War Governor, nor of Pennsylvania—then "Capt. Andy Curtin." Gen. Beaver was the Orderly Sergeant and Gen. J. I. Curtin was a high private. When the war broke out the Fencibles was the second company to arrive at Harrisburg to offer their services to Governor Curtin. The speaker proposed the health of the first Captain of the Fencibles, the last of the war Governors of the Union States, the soldiers' friend, the father of the soldiers' orphans, and the protector of the soldiers' widows. Every man in the hall was upon his feet in an instant, and amidst rounds of cheers, the health of the Governor was drunk. The applause was long and loud before seats were resumed and the distinguished guest arose to respond. He never looked better. He said he never felt better. He was in better health than he had been for fifteen years, and he wanted it understood that he did not like to be called the "old war Governor." He was the youngest man present! All of the twenty-one Governors of Union States during the war were now gone, save three, and by the grace of God he proposed to survive the other two. He gave many quaint reminiscences of the old Fencibles, and of its early members who afterwards rose to distinction. He was in one of his old-time happy moods, and his hearers were delighted with his words.

Adjutant General Stewart recited a parody on "Sheridan's Ride" entitled "Snyder's Ride," in inimitable style, which brought down the house more than once. Our reporter being loudly called for, recited a humorous sketch about "Maria and the Mouse." Col. James P. Coburn was noticed in the throng, and responded fittingly to a call from the happy party.
The band played as the Fencibles formed and marched away to their Armory, where they passed resolutions highly complimentary to Mr. McMillen.
Before midnight the other guests had said good-night, and one of the most enjoyable occasions ever had in Bellefonte was at an end.

—Farmers in Centre county who can make up clubs to buy their fertilizers in car lots of twelve tons and upwards, will promote their interests by consulting Mr. Wm. —Wilson, McFarlane & Co., call attention to the only reliable Ready Mixed Paint in the market. The Pioneer Prepared Paint is not only superior to any Ready Mixed Paint sold but rivals pure white lead in its smoothness in working and durability. This paint is guaranteed by the manufacturers not to crack or peel within three years. The guarantee is not only good for replacing the paint but it will be put on if it should crack or peel within the time specified. It will be to your interest to call and see Wilson, McFarlane & Co., before purchasing either white lead or any other Ready Mixed Paint.
