Pennsylvania Railroad

From the Philadelphia Saturday Night, June 25th. The Pennsylvani. Railroad is one of the greatest systems of inter-State communication in the world. Long years of careful and judicious management has placed it in a position above the fear of competition from rival lines. Its system connects two oceans and reaches, with its tributary lines, every important point in the country. Its appointments are superb, and it has contributed more than any other road to make traveling a luxury. Accidents to its employes or patrons are matters of rare occurence.

It would take columns to describe in brief its many advantages. Every safeguard, every convenience, every comfort, every luxury that ingenious minds have devised and cunning bands fabricated in railroad economy, are in practical operation on the Pennsylvania.

The inducements it holds out to summer tourists are upparalleled. It controls a direct chain of communication between Philadelphia and the ocean resorts stretching from Sandy Hook to Cape May Point. If the country is perferred, the Pennsylvania road carries the traveler to all important places in New York, New England and Pennsylvania. Whether it is desired to summer in some quiet, sleepy inland town, or within sight of green fields and within sound of babling brooks in a quaint old fashioned farmhouse, or among the crags and cliffs of the Blue and Allegheny mountains, or on the health-giving heights of Mount Washington, this road carries you to the chosen elysium quickly, cheaply, and safely the famous health resorts are All tapped by it, and whether the invalid be afflicted with consumption or hayfever, the Pennsylvania will take him to the place of cure. Its enterprise has built up along its main lines of travel, within a few minutes' ride of Philadelphia, a hundred little villages, and places that a few years ago were primeval wastes are now bright with a new life. Vilas and cottages, many of them as semptuously elegant as the palaces of the Old World's nobles, dot the hills surrounded by carefully-kept grounds, that in summer make a picture of incomparable rural beauty. The people of no city in the world have so many and diversified places of summer resort, within easy ridiug distance, as have the inhabitants of Philadelphia.

The Pennsylvania road by means of its many fast trains which leaves the station Broad and Market, daily, makes it possible for the business man to summer at the resort of his choice, without interfering in any way with his business in the city. The roads facilities for the rapid and careful handling and transportation of freight are incomparably fine. Its recent enterprise in putting on fast passenger trains brings Chicago within twenty-three hours' rid of Philadelphia, and transports the traveler to Cincinnati in eighteen.

Its road-bed is rock-ballasted, its rails are steel, its rolling stock of the most improved patern, and its employes are trained to habits of politeness and attention to the traveling public. Parlor cars, dining-cars, and sleeping-cars are attached, where necessary, to traine; and it is one of the wonders of modern railroad traveling that the Pennsylvania more than any other road has assisted in developing and perfecting, that one can live on a railroad train in as much ease and comfort as in one's own home The Pennsylvania road never retrogrades. It always moves "upward and onward," and it uses all legitimate means to compass this end. It is jealous of the rights of its patrons, and quick to defend them. The machinery of its management runs like a well oiled piece of machanism, smoothly and with outjur or crash. Every new inven. tion in railroad economy is catefully in vestigated. If its adoption is found to add to the comfort, convenience, or or safety of the traveling public, no expense is spared to secure its codtrol. Its vast army of employes are trained to observe this one precept: "The comfort of our patrons above all else.' Its motto might justly be written thus: 'Speed-safety-comfort.

Only Fractions of Lives.

C. L. GRAMLEY,

How many persons live only a fraction of average human life because they neglect to take the commonest precautions against sickness. It is disease in its maturity that kills, and maturity implies growth. A slight indisposition is usually slighted. They who avail themselves of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters know it to be effacious in chronic cases of disease, but the process of cure is a far easier one if it is used in early stages of dyspepsia, malarial disease, rheumatism, constipation and liver derangement. Let those who would avoid the peril which even the most potent remedies cannot avert, steer clear of the rock upon which so many constitutions split-an under-appreciation of the danger of neglect. It will not do to omit care and a recourse to medicine when health is affected. If deliberated, or nervous, or dyspeptic take it for granted you are in want of arenedy, use the Bitters.
