When a calf bloats after being fed i less at a time and feed it three or four times a day. If this does not correct the trouble put a pinch of bicar-bonate of soda or magnesia in the milk to prevent flatulency.

We know a farmer who runs all straw he uses for bedding, (and it is a large quantity.) through his horsepower cutter, set to cut its greatest length, and says it pays him in three ways. The straw goes much farther, it absorbs a very much greater proportion of the gutter water, and is ready to put on the land at once, without loss of time, or loss of riches by leaching in the barn-yard. We are not quite sure as to the profit of this, but we know that he grows royal good crops.

There are too many advantages resulting from running corn-stalks through a fodder cutter or chopping machine for any farmer to omit it when it can be accomplished. Thus treated the fodder is worth more than twice as much as when fed in the ordinary way. The cutting may be done on rainy days or in winter when needed, and the feed given to cattle in half barrels, made by sawing barrels in two, or infeeding troughs in the barns or stables. There is an immense loss in the usual method pursued by the millions of farmers who raise corn and feed the stalks to cattle. By cutting and crushing bright well-cured stalks they are made of as much value for feeding at timothy hay.

Window plants should not be taken at once from the open air to a close room, but into one which can be freely opened during the day.

Rust can be removed from steel as follows: Rub the article with kercsene oil and leave it to soak for a day. Then procure fine flour of emery and mix with kerosene oil and scour the surface, finishing with rotten stone To preserve from rust, heat the steel and rub paraffine on it, and when cold polish with a cloth dipped in paraffine. No steel articles should be kept in a cellar or damp place but in a dry attic or closit. If they must be kept in a cellar they should be well coated with paraffine and rapped in cloths or paper; oiled paper would be preferable.

Fare At American Hotels.

When I have seen the lengthy bill milk, it is a sign of indigestion. Give of fare so commonly furnished at large American hotels, and thought of the waste entailed. I have often believed that a reformer might sncceed, by establishing, say in New York, hetel on a new plan, one that would afford the small, good variety that one finds at the smaller London hotels of the best class-a variety well cooked and served through the cook's attention not being disipated among a multitude of dishes. At two restaurants in New York, on Bros dway and Fifth avenue respectively, one gets an excellent table d' hote dinner of this kind at the reasonable charge of $1.25, which includes a pint of vin ordinaire. The best hotels, it gives me pleasure to state are fast moving in the direction of simplicity of bill of fare.

In New York the leading house on the American plan does not provide its table with much more than one half the variety of dishes one may have offered at second-rate pretentious concerns throughout the country. The dietary, too, in America is unquestionably improving. Fruit and Piano & Organ Emporium. v egetables are consumed much more plentifully than before quick trains transported them cheaply and canning became a prodigious business. Baked joints and foul, so often parboiled and sodden, are giving place to better things in the way of genuine roasts. The gridiron thank goodness, has well nigh driven the frying pan out of the kitchen, and wholesome broiled steaks and chops have taken the place of the hard, greasy meats that spoiled so many digestions in the past. Pie too, is going, and its exodus has bad much to do with the genesis of fat.
