

FARM AND HOUSEHOLD.

Geese are profitable and unprofitable according to the manner in which they are kept. If given the use of a large pond on which they can enjoy themselves, and dive down in search of minnows and tadpoles, they can supply themselves with all the animal food they require.

Aside from the potato crop the onion crop is the most important vegetable crop grown, and under proper culture is an exceedingly profitable crop.

The soil must be rich and thoroughly and deeply pulverized. A very rich, loamy soil is the best. Manure very heavily with well rotted manure.

A great many will be considering the pruning of their trees this month. This is often carried to excess. Do not allow any stranger especially any traveling stranger—to put a saw into your trees.

In one large coffee-cup of warm milk dissolve one cake of compressed yeast; to this add three well-beaten eggs and one small cup of sugar; beat these together, use flour enough to make a smooth, light dough, let it stand until very light, then knead it in the form of biscuits or rolls; put these in buttered tins, and let them raise till they are almost up to the edge of the tin; pierce the top of each one and bake in a quick oven.

The reason that many persons keep poultry with little or no profit is want of care for the hens and young chickens. Hen houses should be well ventilated, built fronting the east or south, so as to catch the morning sun, and be kept scrupulously clean.

Neuralgia of the Face.

Capt. John Orr, Pearlinton, Miss., has been a most intense sufferer from facial neuralgia for over twenty years. He has had seventeen operations performed on the nerves—that is, had them divided, cut off close to the bone from which they emerge.
