

Bloodshed And Riot.

St. Louis, April 9.—Eight deputy guards, stationed at the Louisville and Nashville yards, fired into a crowd of three hundred strikers at about 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. Five men and one woman were shot. Three of the men were killed, and the woman is supposed to be mortally wounded. The killed are: Pat Bristol, an employe of the water works and not a striker; Oscar Washington, painter, Jno. Boman, water works laborer, not a striker, and T. E. Thompson. Major Richman was shot in the head and shoulder and will probably die. Mrs. John Pfeiffer was shot in the back and probably mortally wounded. An unknown man was shot at the bridge approach. The crowd had made no attack upon the guard as at first reported, but were standing on Cahokia bridge near the Louisville and Nashville yard jeering at the guards, when without the slightest apparent provocation the deputies levelled their rifles and fired two volleys. The crowd immediately separated, running in all directions and the deputies ran on over the Cahokia bridge toward the Missouri river bridge, holding their rifles and firing to cover their retreat. When it was known by the strikers that the guards had fled, the former returned and recovered their dead.

The deputies who did the shooting went to the Third district police station this city, and surrendered. They say the crowd began to fire into them first and that they simply returned the fire. After the first firing was over and the strikers had become bent on revenge, a number of them armed themselves with revolvers and advanced on the Ohio and Mississippi railroad yards where they surprised the deputies on guard and fired into them killing one.

The greatest excitement prevails in East St. Louis, and the local executive committee of the Knight of Labor was on the scene attempting to restrain the men and trying to persuade them to meet in Flannagan's hall where they desired to advise them against all further violence. They refused, however, to meet them, claiming that they would be surrounded by deputies and fired upon again.

A mass meeting of the strikers, however was held in front of the City hall and they were with difficulty restrained by their leaders from advancing in a body upon the different railroad yards and attacking the deputies on guard. Guards of police are now stationed at each end of the approaches of the bridge connecting with East St. Louis and no one is allowed to pass over.

Governor Oglesby has ordered out eight companies of militia. Some of the troops arrived in St. Louis tonight. Messrs Baily and Hayes, of the executive board, and P. B. Brown a prominent Knight, spoke at the meeting held this afternoon, and appealed to the Knights to obey the laws of the country and to rigidly observe all the principles of the order.

FURTHER PARTICULARS.

The strikers had assembled without apparently having any preconceived plan and began a discussion of the situation when some one proposed that they go to Louisville and Nashville yards. Arriving there they swarmed into the yards and persuaded the men at work to desert their posts. The crowd remained in the yards for some time and, although considerable excitement prevailed, no violence was resorted to. Just at this time, however, a Louisville and Nashville freight train was slowly passing guarded by eight deputy sheriffs armed with Winchester rifles. In the meantime crowds had congregated on Broadway, where the Louisville and Nashville tracks cross the street, and also upon the spans of the Cahokia creek bridge, and in the open space to the east, just as the train reached the Broadway crossing the trouble began. The crowd on the bridge began to yell and jeer at the officers and, it is asserted, stones were thrown, which struck two or three of them, and it is also said that a pistol was discharged. The deputies immediately levelled their rifles and fired two volleys into the crowd on the bridge with the fatal effect mentioned above. None of the dead or injured were strikers.

As the deputies were running toward the bridge they were met by Mayer Joyce, City Clerk and a third man, who seized the deputies' guns and endeavored to turn them back. One of the deputies in his terror fired upon the trio, killed a man named C. F. Thompson, who stood between Joyce and Canty. Some shots were fired by the remaining deputies at the approaching strikers and all started over the bridge. The scene on the bridge was one of the wildest confusion and excitement. Coal teams loaded and other teams with wagons were galloping westward and their drivers shouting to all pedestrians and teamsters to run back. Women and men on foot were running toward the city and waving back all they met, while immediately behind came the deputies pursued by the vanguard of the crowd from East St. Louis. One of the frightened guards threw his gun into the river, while another hid his weapon in a wagon that was in full retreat to the city. About half an hour after the shooting an excited and angry mob gathered in the square between the City Hall and the police station. A man named Dwyer, a gambler, and in no way connected with the strike, became the centre of a crowd who loudly cheered the incendiary statements which he uttered. He urged to "hang and kill" and was in the midst of an appeal to the mob to follow him to the Ohio and Mississippi depot to hunt for deputy sheriffs, when John W. Hays, a member of the general executive committee of the Knights of Labor, Martin O'Neill and Knight of Labor Brown arrived upon the scene from this side. Mr. Brown, who travels with the general board in the capacity of a Knight of Labor orator and lecturer, mounted the stairs leading to the police station and yelled at the mob for attention, but the infuriated men answered him with, "Hang the cuss," "kill them."

Mr. Hays, who was standing at Brown's side, turned to a prominent Knight of Labor and asked him to introduce Mr. Brown to the mob as a representative of the general executive committee. The man replied in a frightened manner: "If I do they'll hang me." Brown turned on him and said, "Yes, if you don't they ought to hang you." Then turning to the mob which kept up the cry to "kill, kill and burn," Brown began an impassioned appeal for quiet law and order, and by sheer force of his earnestness riveted the attention of the crowd, but only for a few moments at a time, for they would break away from the spell of his eloquence and take up their revolutionary yells.

After a while the temper of the mob cooled down somewhat and they were dispersed, not, however, wholly pacified, many of them threatening to avenge the death caused by the deputies. Mayor Joyce issued a proclamation to close all saloons, and warning women and minors to keep off the streets. He was in company with Bailey and Hayes, of the general executive committee of the Knights of Labor, who urged him to do all in his power to calm the men. He said that he had notified the governor two weeks ago that he could do nothing and that he was utterly powerless.

A few more violent strikers, after arming themselves, announced their intention of attacking the deputies on guard at the Ohio and Mississippi yards and advanced in that direction. When near the yards they were met by several deputies and fired upon them and killing one of their number. Some of the deputies who failed to escape with those who fled to this city were chased by the mob into the freight warehouse and the offices of the Louisville and Nashville road. The warehouse was surrounded by an immense crowd who hooted and yelled and urged the men to attack the stronghold and drive the deputies out. The men went among the crowds urging others to procure arms and shoot all the deputies they could find.

Some of the deputies, watching their opportunity, rushed out and made their way among the freight cars unobserved. A Louisville and Nashville freight car was backed down alongside the platform and took away the others to a place of safety. Two were sighted by the strikers, who had procured arms, and were chased under the bridge. One of them was caught in front of Toney's house, on the levee and was beaten to death by the mob. Another was reported to have been shot as he was escaping under the approach to the bridge. The other deputies escaped unharmed.

New York, April 13.—Thomas Cleary, Michael Duffy, Louis Wendel, Rudolph Fullgraf, Arthur J. McGuire, Thomas Shiels, Patrick Farley, John O'Neal, and Henry L. Salls, members of the Board of Aldermen of 1884, were arrested this morning between 8 and 9 o'clock. Recorder Smyth had issued warrants which he entrusted to District Attorney Maetne, who placed them in Police Inspector Byrnes' hands. The charges against them are similar to those against the Aldermen previously arrested, namely: The acceptance of bribes for their votes on the Broadway Railroad franchise question. They were all taken to police headquarters and locked up. Messengers were immediately sent out by them in search of their bondsmen. Thomas Cleary is a member of the present Board of Aldermen.

At 11:20 o'clock this morning ex-Alderman Francis McCabe was arrested at No. 735 Lexington avenue by Detective Rogers. Alderman Fink, of the 1884 Board, is now the only one in the city not arrested.

LOUISVILLE, April 13th.—Information reached here today of three sensational murders in Bell county during the past week. Elihu Saylor married a sister of William Shell. The couple quarreled and the woman deserted him. The husband went in search of his wife, accompanied by young Shell, her brother. They found her in Pennville in bed in a smoke house. Saylor forced her to go with him, and as they started away Shell shot Saylor three times, mortally wounding him. Saylor was one of the men who murdered Wm. Haskins and his daughter about a year ago.

In the second murder Perry Tomer started out saying he was going to kill his man to-day. Meeting a man named Lewis he leveled his gun and shot him dead without warning.

The third case occurred on Clean Creek. A number of countrymen had gathered at a house, and after engaging in a drunken frolic, got into a general fight. When the smoke of the battle cleared away Beth Goodwin was found dead, and Wm. Dougherty, whom it is thought killed Goodwin, was stretched on the floor with one eye shot out, and his nose shot off.

ALBANY, April 10th.—Mr. Joseph Paltzer today forwarded to the secretary of state his resignation as representative in congress. He says that his journalistic work claims all his time, and that there are others far more capable of representing the interests of his constituents at Washington.

Chicago, April 12.—A committee of the Knights of Labor called upon Mr. C. H. McCormick and demanded the reinstatement of eight hundred men discharged in the recent strike and whose places were filled with non-union men. Mr. McCormick positively refused to re-employ the men, having given them a fair opportunity to return to work. The committee declare their intention to have the General Executive Board to declare a boycott against the firm.
