

Beats a good wife—a bad husband. An after-dinner speech: "Check please."

Fashion soon tires of everything except a plug hat.

The woman who neglects her husband's shirt front is no longer the wife of his bosom.

"There's no place like home," repeated Mr. Henpeck, looking at a motto, and he heartily added, "I'm glad there isn't."

Do you think the face is an index of the mind?" she asked. "I never heard of a mind that was painted and powdered."

A Chicago editor, absent on a trip to Washington, writes that he has been all through the national capital and considerable of his own.

More than four thousand devices for coupling have been patented, and yet thousands of bachelors and maidens go it alone in this country.

A little Rochester girl drew the picture of a dog and cat on her slate, and calling her mother's attention to it, said: "A cat oughtn't to have but four legs, but I drew it with six so she could run away from the dog."

Young Genius (who has had all the talk to himself, and, as usual, all about himself) — "Well, good-bye, dear Mrs. Meltham; it always does me good to come and see you! I had such a headache when I came, and now I've quite lost it." Mrs. Meltham—Oh, its not lost! I've got it.

"So you enjoyed your visit to Barnum's, did you?" inquired young Silabus of his adored one's little sister. "Oh yes; and do you know, we saw a camel there that screwed its mouth and eyes awfully, and sister said it looked exactly as you do when you are reciting poetry at our church societies."

A little girl, a regular attendant at one of the Presbyterian Sunday schools went out with her mother to spend the day. A young lady visitor likewise asked her what church she attended. I don't know, exactly," the little girl replied. "I'm not a Methodist and I'm not a Baptist. I guess I must be an advertisement."

First Belle—"There dear, I want you to look over this list of people I'm going to invite to the theatre party, and I wish you'd suggest another young man; I've got seven girls and only six young gentlemen, so far there's Harry Westery, now; do you think he will do at a pinch?"

Second Belle (blushing)—"Well, dear, I don't know, I'm sure; but you remember I sat next to him when we went on the sleighing party last winter, and he's very good at a squeeze."

"Does your cow cringe and curl?" asks the New England Farmer, "and appear nervous and fidgety when you sit down to milk her?" Well not much she doesn't. She isn't one of your shy, timid, bashful cows.

She just fixes her eyes on vacancy with a glare that will raise a blister on an oak knot; sticks her tail straight up in the air, stiff as a poker, plants three feet firmly on the ground, and then feels around with the other for the milk-pail, milk-stool, milk-maid; finds them; fires them up somewhere into the blue empyrean, and remarking "Ha ha!" amid the shouting, jumps over a six rail fence and tramples down an acre of young garden.

Don't talk about cringing and curling to a cow that has to be milked with a pipe line and a pumping station.
