not have been that of a girl who drudged in the kitchen but that does not make them any more respectable. Some people think their girls have constitutions equal to a steam engine, and keep them steadily at work from morning until late at night, and never give her any time to rest, and then wonder why they can never keep a girl. We would say for heaven's sake let her rest a little. Treat her as a human being.

An Exchange says Mercer county farmers are being bled by a man who claims to be the owner of the patent to the spring tooth harrow. He demands a royalty. A combination of farmers has been formed to resist the demand. There is no class of people, except farmers, but seeks protection in some way from imposition and swindling. This is done by the formation of societies, associations, leagues, etc. Some years ago an attempt was made in this section to establish Granges, and thus secure at least, favorable results by association, counsel and general interchange of opin ion all subjects relating to "agriculture At once the hair on the back of the politician s head stood on end. and he looked with a wild eye on the movement for fear his prospects for office might be endangered. Preachers condemned the movement for fear it might lead some of the flock estray and endanger their souls' salvation. Doctors looked upon the movement as one pro. motive of health and, therefore, ruinous to their business. Lawyers opposed it because the Grange would act as peacemaker among neighbors and thus deprive them of big fees. So it went on until only two Granges are left in the county, and what has been the result? This and nothing more, that the farmers have been and are considered tair game for the imposter, swindler and cheat. Even the poor miner, railroad laborer, mechanics and other employes combine for protection as against growing mon. opolies, but the farmer plods away, meek and lowly, and when effort is made to bring him up to an intelligent plane the whole world seems to frown and de. nounce it as impolitic, unwise and even unchristian. When the farmer gets to understand his business rightly, when he gets to know he is master of the situation and all others depend on bim, possibly he will see things in a different light. At present he is but a cat's paw

So the girl, in dispair of getting to heaven the class of christians who inhabit an elegant carpeted pew with a little kneeling bench at their service, are dressed in silk and satins, have jewels in their hair, are generally more ignorant than the poor unfortunate individuals whom have at some time in their life, wore bly than the slave holders of the South, Grover."-Exchange. They have no feeling of humanity, toward the poor girl who has to do their work for a mere "pittance insufficient to clothe them and keep soul and body together. These kind of christian ladies are numerous. We noticed upon one occasion in this town where a hired girl ventured into a pew and was immedistely shown to another. The mortification of the young lady (or hired girl as the pew owner would term her.) was visible, while the countenance of the new owner was haughty and dignified(?) The "hired girls" are in many respects far superior in accomplishment, educa tion and respectability than some of the wowld-be fine ladies who engage them | CRAT

Clearfield Democrat did not support him. Col. Barr. however, has doubtless made up his mind to belong to al. the Democratic parties of the State in around to it. For a while he had his own Democratic party, but as it wasn' any too much of a go he slid over to Mr. Randali's Democratic party. He remained there a long time until Gov.

For the President.

Thursday a package passed through the Adams express office, at Williams' in rags, went to Port Jervis and got into port, from Rochester, N. Y., for Presithe penitentiary. These ladies were dent Cleveland. The railroad men along the route made free use of their lead pencils on the package, in accept. ing the opportunity to express themselves to the President, in the line of congratulation on his marriage. Among them were the following : "Shake old they consider beneath them. They boy !" "What put so much good sense lirely cured by the use of a few bottles and taste in your head ?" "Bully boy, of Dr. King's New Discovery, taken in worse than the poor girl. But circum' you are Grover." "Kind greetings to stances have favored them and they are Frankie." The little ones are loved by everyboriy, their every want is supplied even before they make it known ; but the same, we fear, cannot be said concerning the old folks. They too often are neglected, and if poor, their lot is not slways a harpy one. Old age is honorable, and the aged couple who have journeyed down life's thorny pathway until their bair is gray and their form is bowed, are entitled not only to the respect but to the consideration of relatives and friends. Don't forget them if they are poor; don't neglect them in their loneliness. Give them the "Old Folks' Day" and make it one of gladness and comfort in their declining years .- Democrat & Register.
