

Who Gets the Pot?

HUNTINGDON, June 16.—Peter Herdic once known as a Williamsport lumber king, received the contract a year ago to supply Huntingdon with water. Yesterday his men were excavating at the new reservoir at the head of Fifth street. When at the depth of about eight feet from the surface J. D. McClain, Herdic's foreman, discovered an earthen pot, securely sealed, which was filled with Mexican and American gold and silver coin of ancient date. McClain refused to make public the amount of money the pot contained, but his friends say it is several thousand dollars. As soon as the discovery was made known Mr. Herdic put in a claim for the treasure on the ground that it was on his property, while McClain insists that it is his under the common law relating to treasure trove. Mrs. Christian Colestock is another claimant. Her deceased husband sold the land to Herdic, and the widow alleges that the money was buried by Colestock years ago for safe keeping. All the parties have employed counsel, and the ownership of the contents of the pot will be contested at court.—Altoona Times. After the contest the lawyers will have the money, and the claimants have the pot.

Pennsylvania Pig-Iron at $9 50 Per Ton.

The sale of the Valentine iron ore banks to a syndicate of capitalists and the development of that property will give Centre county a trial for which its people have long been asking. The financial men of that locality have declared that pig-iron could be made there for $9.50 per ton, and there seems to have been reason for the faith that was in them. Heretofore they have been handicapped by the restrictive policy of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, which charged $3 for carrying a ton of iron from Centre county to New York, while at the same time it was carrying iron from Richmond, Va., to New York for only 80 cents per ton. In the face of these discriminations capitalists could not be found who were willing to put their money into iron ventures in that locality; but since a line has been surveyed from the Beek Creek Road to Bellefonte, the possibility of obtaining competitive rates drew the attention of capitalists to that territory with the result indicated. There is no reason why Centre county cannot successfully compete with the South in the production of cheap pig-iron. A famous English iron master who visited Bellefonte a few years ago declared, after inspecting the ore banks near that town, that pig-iron could be made in Centre county as cheaply as in the Cleveland district of England.—Re. crl.

Mr. Labouchere's Truth says of Mr. Day's Company: "Were the American artists English each one of them would insist upon being a bright particular star of some theatre, while many of them, if they condescended to act together, would decline to accept a part unless his or her part were better than that of every one else. Here we have good actors and actresses, but few good companies. The star system, and the hatred, envy and all uncharitableness which have been its outcome among professionals, render a good all-round company almost impossible. Why, with so much native talent, the Americans should be eager to get hold of English actors and actresses I do not understand, unless it be from a depraved taste for exotics." Of Dixey Truth says: "Mr. Dixey himself does not strike me as a very comic gentleman. He neither sings well or dances well, and tries to make up in quantity for failings in quality."

LATROBE, June 22.—This evening about 9 o'clock, Frank Kanan and Mac Dixon, both of Greensburg, met in the Walton House, in this place. At sight of Dixon, Kane drew his revolver and fired three shots, the first two taking effect and the third going wide of its mark. Dixon fell to the floor and expired immediately. Both men had been drinking heavily. The shooting is the result of an old quarrel and it is said Dixon had threatened to shoot Kane on sight. The man had been attending Sell's circus, which is showing here. Kanan is a hotel keeper in Greensburg, and is a brother of the man who committed suicide there a few years ago.

DENVER, June 22.—A Glenwood Springs special to the Republican says that yesterday, while Miss Belle Sager and two men were crossing the rope suspension bridge across the Roaring Fork, one of the posts to which the cable was fastened was pulled out of the ground and the three were thrown into the swift current. The two men clung to the ropes, which were washed against the bank, and escaped, but the young lady was carried into the Grand river and was drowned.

Huntingdon's Quota.

HUNTINGDON, June 22.—The site of the alleged gold mine near Mapleton, this county, is being visited daily by persons from all parts of Central Pennsylvania, and the supposed find is still the subject of much discussion. Rev. J. N. Moorhead, an old colored miner and chemist, is melting ore in a furnace back of Jack's mountain and retains his early determination not to speak to the public. A delegation of professional men and merchants visited the mine yesterday and carried to an assay furnace small quantities of ore. They remained at the place until the whole process of melting had been undergone. When the assay was completed it was found that a piece of silver about the size of a buckshot had been extracted from the ore.

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa., June 22.—The killing of the Hungarian Sotick and the fatal stabbing of Walk by Sotick's friends, at Walston mines on Saturday evening, was the result of a dispute over the baptism of a child of Walk's. The principal preparation for the event was the ordering of 20 kegs of beer, most of which was drunk before proceeding with the baptismal rites. A dispute arose as to the mode of doing it, in which the child was fatally injured. Walk seized an axe and killed Sotick and the latter's friends retaliated by attacking Walk. Mrs. Walk was seriously injured while attempting to protect her husband. Walk will die.

Tyrone correspondent Altoona Times, There is some talk among the Republicans in this section of the county getting up a petition to the Chairman of the County Committee asking that gentleman, in view of the recent frauds committed in the convention by which the present ticket was nominated, to reconvene said convention and have the balloting all done over again. Of course no person with any discernment at all believes that such a thing will be done, but it is really the only way that will satisfy those who believe and feel that a great fraud has been perpetrated and that they have been cheated out of their just rights.

—On Friday morning David R. Dowler, son of Captain James Dowler, of Burnside, was drowned in the Susquehanna river, near what is called the "Little Basin," in the mountains. He was in company with another man employed on the James Cassidy drive, and was breaking some logs loose when they separated. In jumping onto a large log he fell and slipped into the river sinking instantly. Before help could reach him his life was extinct. He received serious injuries by the fall on the log, disabling him, otherwise the accident would scarcely have had so tragic a termination. Young Mr. Dowler was 25 years of age.

FOXBURG, Pa., June 19.—On Thursday night a freight train on the Pittsburgh and Western railroad was thrown from a trestle and dumped into Point Creek, forty feet below. Twenty cars went over, making a frightful wreck. Engineer Settig and brakeman Steffy and Kane were killed instantly, and Conductor Kime, who jumped from a car, escaped with slight injuries. Fireman Gallager went down with the wreck and was crushed so badly that he died to-day. The trestle was a wooden one and the accident is attributed to the breaking of an axle.

—John Kelley, who claims to represent a syndicate of Western Pennsylvania capitalists, has been traversing this county from Cherrytree southward to Isaac Bole's saw-mill, in West Taylor Township, and says he has already successfully leased eight thousand acres between those points, on which he proposes to bore test holes for oil or gas. Well No. 1 will be sunk at Chest Springs and No. 2 near Bole's saw-mill. He claims to be an old experienced oil man and he thinks both oil and gas will be developed in the territory leased by him.—Johnstown Tribune.

The body of an unknown man about five feet six inches in height, heavy set and probably 50 years of age was found floating in the canal near the Pennsylvania Railroad station at Marietta, Lancaster county on Saturday morning. The corps which was coatless and shoeless, was still warm when taken out of the water. A verdict of found drowned, cause unknown, was rendered by the coroner's jury.

—King Ludwig's funeral was largely attended. A number of persons were crushed to death. The excitement among the Bavarian people remains unabated, and many wept like children. When King Otto, who succeeds Ludwig heard the news of his accession received it with apathy and said, "So! So! The soldiers must then march out." He is mentally incapable. The bells throughout Bavaria will ring every day for six weeks from noon until 1 o'clock in the morning.

George Woodford has filed in the United States Circuit Court at St. Louis against Jay Gould, a suit for $500,000 for breach of contract. It is claimed that Gould used information, the property of defendant to be used in the interest of both, for his individual benefit.

The annual meeting of the Miners and Laborers amalgamated association held a very interesting meeting in Altoona last week. Every mining district in the state was represented by delegates. Snow Shoe district by Geo. Davis. They published a statement showing the average weekly and monthly earnings of the men which is vastly different from that published by the operators. The question of correctness is not doubted or disputed. The operators fail to take in the fact that boys do men work for their fathers and this of course increases the men's wages, for which the boys get no credit. The convention will be held in Harrisburg next year.
