

SCENES AT RAILROAD STATIONS

"Funny sights," said the man at the ticket window in the Union depot...

"What do you see that amuses you?" inquired a bystander.

"Things that occur around the depot here almost every day. I do believe there are more funny incidents in connection with railroading than with any other business in the world," counted the ticket man.

"Cur old raspberry canes as soon as the fruit is off; allow only as many new shoots to grow as are needed for fruiting. Pinch blackberry canes when six feet high and their branches when eighteen inches long."

a few minutes and when cold add one ounce of essence of sassafras. Bottle, cork tightly and keep in a cool place.

To make butter milk biscuits, to three cups of batter milk add one of butter, one teaspoonful of cream of tartar, one half teaspoonful of soda, a desert spoonful of salt, and flour enough to make the dough just stiff enough to admit of being rolled out into biscuits.

Boil five eggs for twenty minutes. While they cool, melt two tablespoonfuls of butter in a sauce pan, add the same quantity flour and one pint of boiling milk. Season well, slice the eggs into this sauce and serve hot with parsley, and you have a good luncheon dish.

BE KIND TO HORSES.

Horses now need more attention than any other time of the year, and a man's humanity, if not his piety, may be measured by the manner in which he cares for his horses in hot weather. It is not the pulling which hurts the horse in hot weather, not exactly the load he is forced to carry that injures him, but the manner in which he is subjected to do these services. If forced to stand long in the broiling sunshine driven at too rapid a speed, denied rest and a blowing space the noble animal is sure to suffer.

"What a very pretty girl your friend is, Miss Constantina!" "Such bright eyes and clear complexion one seldom sees. Hasn't she Irish blood in her veins?"

"Oh, yes," Miss Constantina replied "she is a true daughter of Erin Go Bragh."

"Well, all I have to say is," added Dumley, who greatly admires a pretty girl, "Mr. and Mrs. Go Bragh ought to be proud of her."

Little Stewart has spent his first day at school. "What did you learn?" "Didn't learn anything."

The pretty maiden fell overboard and her lover leaped over the side of the boat as she rose to the surface and said: "Give me your hand."

Said a teacher to one of his girl pupils: "If your father gave you a basket containing forty peaches to divide between yourself and your little brother, after you had taken your share, what would be left?" "My little brother."

LENA LITTLE LIFE.

Lena Little, who is singing herself into so much fame in London as the purest and most classical contralto now living is a New Orleans girl and still a very young one. All her early days were passed in the quaint, dim old "French Town," as the lower part of that city is called, and developed while still a mere child a voice of most exquisite purity and timber.

and study, and at the objection that she could not afford it cried enthusiastically that any one would teach such a voice for mere delight in it and demand no money. She finally succeeded in raising the money to make the journey, not hoping to do more than perfect herself, in order to be able to give singing lessons in New Orleans and perhaps sing in a church choir. Whether she found teachers willing to give her instruction for the evanescent reward of listening to her singing is doubtful, but her ideas of her powers and future enlarged, and now, after six years, her voice, originally a mezzo, has deepened into a perfect contralto, and she is flattered and feasted in London as only a singer who has captured her audiences ever is. She is much like a creole in appearance, which is frequently the case with girls of Anglo-Saxon descent whose families have lived for several generations in Louisiana.

IT HAD TO BE ABANDONED.

A newspaper correspondent says:—Westbrook's Pond in Blooming Grove Township, Pike county, Pa., is a small body of water fed by spring brooks. Fifteen years ago it was alive with immense brook trout. They were frequently taken weighing over three pounds. A mile from Westbrook's Pond is Lake Giles, on the grounds of Blooming Grove Park Association. In 1872 a man working at Westbrook's was employed by parties owning a pond in the vicinity to take pickerel from Lake Giles and stock their pond with them. The work was done at night. The man transported the pickerel in tubs and passed Westbrook's Pond on his way. He had a spite against a member of Westbrook's family, who was a great trout fisherman, and in passing the little pond he turned a large number of pickerel into it.

In three years there was not a trout in the pond, but it was alive with enormous pickerel. In hope of destroying the greedy newcomers the pond has been drawn off three times, and wagon loads of pickerel taken out. The bottom of this pond and the brooks above it were thoroughly limed and allowed to remain dry for weeks. A few weeks after the water was let into the pond again, after each drawing, the pickerel family was found to be at home there again, and to-day it is no trick at all to take three pounders at a troll. All hope of destroying the pickerel and restoring the pond to its old-time greatness as a trout haunt has been abandoned.

TRADING A SISTER FOR A WIFE.

Nearly seven years ago, in Union County N. C., Alfred Godfrey and his wife were living together, apparently happily. The nearest neighbors were Rufus Porter and his sister Susanna. As times rolled on the fact was disclosed that a strong attachment had been formed by Godfrey for Miss Porter and that Rufus Porter entertained similar tender feelings toward Mrs. Godfrey. A trade was finally proposed. Porter was to take Mrs. Godfrey and some property as a bonus and Godfrey was to take Miss Porter. This was carried out with the consent of the women, and everything moved on peaceably and lovingly. A few years ago both families moved to Mecklenburg County, amicable relations having prevailed between them. At times the two families lived on the same plantation. It was not until last week that the tranquility in their domestic bliss was disturbed and their household divided. Some one had a warrant issued for their arrest, and the case was brought before a magistrate on Tuesday. The warrant was not served upon Porter, he having run away. The case was heard and the parties were bound over for the action of the Criminal Court. While those who had been tried and bound over were in charge of the constable, Godfrey made his escape and has not since been heard from.

THE ENGLAND OF SOUTH AMERICA.

The Chilians call their country the "England of South America." If a native makes a promise, and wishes it to appear unusually binding he says,

"On the word of an Englishman!" Should he desire an appointment to be kept on the minute he says, "Be as punctual as an Englishman."

The traveler discovers that wherever he goes in Chili the highest respect and warmest friendship are entertained towards England. The explanation of these feelings is to be found in the fact that when the young republic was struggling to throw off the Spanish yoke, many Englishmen served her with as much ardor as they would have served their native country.

The upper classes of Chili imitate the English aristocracy. Like them, they are reserved, fond of a good joke and appreciate wit, cherish family pride, and make 'society' strict and exclusive. The women of this class imitate the better sort of English women, and never dress for church as if they expected to go to form to a 'reception.' They dress in plain black, with a black mantilla over the head, and their example is followed by the woman of all classes.—Youth's Companion.
