Supposing the arteries of the wrist or hand to be badly cut, he illustrated how the hemorrhage could be stopped by placing a twisted handkerchief or any hard substance on the inside of the elbow and then raising the disabled hand to the shoulder. Without anything but the thumbs and fingers a violent hemorrhage of this kind could also be stopped by compression on the future wellfare of the young daughter artery.

It was shown that the arteries were like a rubber tube and all that was required to check the flow of blood from them was to compress the walls. HISTORY OF THE CRIME.

The history of the crime for which John M. Wilson paid the extreme viction, are probably without a parallel in the aunals of climical history, In October, 1883, Frederick Stahl, a butcher, who worked for Albert Dieartery and below where only a vein is Wissahickon creek, in Fairmount "We left the circus and went into

The jury was less than a minute in declaring the head that of the missing Stahl and Dieterle was fully arraigned for the murder. There was strong circumstantial evidence against him, and the detectives went to work with the intention of gathering more. One dark night two detectives took Dieterie's horse, drove out in the direction of the Wissshichon and allowed the animel to take his own road. He went directly to the spot where the body was found and stopped. But for the frank admission of Assistant District Attorney Bregy, who was afraid of hanging an innocent man, that the evidence was not conclusive, and the course of Judge Allison in directing an acquittal, Die ing Dr. King's New Discovery Electric toris might have been convicted as Bitters and Backlen's Arnica Salve for terie might have been convicted, a, there was a very strong sentiment against him and many persons believed versal satisfaction. He said he had killed a man named Anthony Daly, near Phila delphia, in January, and after sewing the body in sacks had thrown it in the Wissahickon creek. The next day he repeated the same story, but in more detail. He said he had been employed by Anthony Daly for several months on a farm near Philade .phis. He quarreled with Daly about $30 dollars which was due him, and then picking up a cleaver struck the man on the head with it killing him instantly. He then cut off the victims head and hid it between two feather beds, dragged the body to the barn ance of ancient custom, graciously and cutting off the legs and arms hid them in a feed box. HUNTINGDON January 14.-During the past two or three days considerable sgitation has prevailed here, growing out of rumors reflecting on the linan. cial stability of Mr. John Whitehead the well known coal operator. While these rumors were accepted by the credulous all efforts to trace their origin proved futile. Relieving the Injured.

An audience of four hundred ladies attended the lecture to the candidates for nurses at the University Hospital yesterday afternoon by Professor J. William White, surgical demonstrator. These lectures are open to the public and many ladies are taking advantage of the opportunity they afford to inform themselves of the most opproved methods of dressing wounds in cases of accidents, caring for the injur.d in the absence of a physician and generally sursing the sick. Among those present yesterday were girls as well as mothers and grandmothers, and all manifested a deep interest in the discourse of Profossor White, which was illustrated with a skeleton, a rubber man and a living subject.

RELIEF IN CRITICAL CASES. The lecturer, without indulging in any scientific verbiage, addressed himself to the intelligent ladies who desired to fit themselves for affording relief or aid to patients in cases of emergency, as well as to those who are preparing themselves for professional nurses. It was his purpose, therefore, to explain to them the anatomy of the human body and the blood-vessels of the system. The heart was the great propeller of the body, acting through the arteries and veins. It sas important to understand at the outset that the arteries were the tubes that distributed the blood from the heart and the veins the medium of returning it. The blood as it goes out from the heart through the arteries is veins it is of a dark purplish color and flows continuously and slugglishly. In Deeds for the District of Columbia. did not occupy an hour, Professor White where immediate and intelligent relief necessary to save life and explained to be resorted to. nearly all his lady hearers had memorandum books and noted down the most striking points or suggestions for further study and reference. Only a few of those present aspire to become professional nurses, but all seemed ambitious to know how to afford relief to the afflicted at home or elsewhere if suddenly called in an emergency.
