A PHILADELPHIA POLICEMAN MAKES THINGS EXCEEDINGLY LIVELY

PHILADELPHIA, February 20.—Burly John MacIntyre, a police officer of the Twenty-third district, took possession of the station house yesterday afternoon, drove his fellow officers out at the point of a pistol and attempted to kill Lieutenant Edward M. Lyons and Acting House Sergeant Archibald Griffith. Between 1 and 2 o'clock, after the lieutenant had finished calling the roll and had gone home to dinner, Sergeant Griffith was sitting behind the desk in the roll room conversing with Officer Hart and sub-Officer Carpenter. The door of the armory was partly open. The armory is a large closet a few feet away from the desk in which the officers as they come off their beats deposit their pistols. Sub-Officer Carpenter was just telling Sergeant Griffith that MacIntyre had been seen in the neighborhood drunk, and that he openly boasted in several saloons that he intended to kill Lieutenant Lyons when MacIntyre walked in. His eyes were bloodshot, and it was evident that he was drunk, although he staggered very slightly as he walked. "I'm going to show Lyons who is lieutenant here," he shouted. "I'm boss of the place, and I'll kill every cuss in the room." He walked up to the armory pulled the door wide open, and grabbed a pistol in each hand. "Put those revolvers down, John" ordered the sergeant; "don't make a fool of yourself," MacIntyre responded with a volley of oaths, and turning to Griffith, presented both revolvers at his head. "Get out of here," he yelled, "or I'll blow your brains out. I'll kill you all if you don't get out."

The station house was speedily cleared, and MacIntyre held possession for some time. He fired over forty shots and fairly perforated the north wall of the building. Lieutenant Lyons was notified, when he arrived he ordered the men to capture MacIntyre, but they refused.

Lieutenant Lyons borrowed a pistol from Patrolman MacGregor and walked into the corridor just out of the roll room. He called MacIntyre by name and was answered by a volley of oaths. "I own this place, and I intend to call the roll to night," yelled MacIntyre. "I'm going to kill you." Lieutenant Lyons heard MacIntyre walk toward the door and took a position on the staircase facing the doorway with the revolver in his hand.

MacIntyre came out with a pistol in each hand and fired as soon as he saw Lyons, who returned the shot and MacIntyre fired again. The bullet struck the staircase an inch from Lyons' head. The lieutenant fired a second shot, and it struck MacIntyre in the left arm, just below the elbow. He fell to the floor and the officers who were peeping in the door, rushed in and grabbed him. He struggled like a maniac, and six men were required to hold him while he was searched. Eight loaded revolvers were taken from his pockets, and he was locked up in a cell until the arrival of an ambulance from the German hospital. Four men had to hold him down in the ambulance. As it drove away with him he shouted "I'll do Lyons' up if you put him in here with me." MacIntyre's wound is not dangerous. He was angry because he had been suspended.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL.

—The committee appointed at the January meeting of the Centre County Pomona Grange, consisting of Messrs. Leonard Rhone, J. J. Arney, John Groves, L. C. Reardon and George Dale, have under consideration, as introduced, to arrange for holding the fourteenth annual Patrons picnic of Centre County, for two consecutive days and have agreed by unanimously passing the following.

Resolved that we hold the fourteenth annual picnic of the Patrons of Husbandry of Centre County at the usual time about the middle of September, at the old place on the top of Nittany Mountain; and that it be continued for two days with an exhibition of such farming implements and stock as manufacturers and farmers desire to exhibit, and we cordially invite the public to join with us in our annual gathering.

The committee have been offered ten cents free by the Williams Grove Interstate Picnic Association (except as to transportation) and have concluded to accept them.

Manufacturers are offering to exhibit and will aid in making the implement department interesting and, no doubt farmers having fine stock will be glad of the opportunity to bring it to public notice.

Arrangements will be made for public lectures daily, and in the evening some special entertainment is in contemplation.

Tents will be rented at a nominal price to accommodate those who may contemplate staying on the grounds. Applications for tents should be made early, to enable the committee to engage a sufficient number in time. Families are expected to provide their own board and bedding, but no doubt a boarding house will be erected.

It is confidently believed that the public will enthusiastically join the patrons of our county to have the grandest and most profitable gatherings ever held by the farmers of our county.

—A marriage license was granted at Pittsburgh the other day to Jung Toy, a Chinaman, and Miss Minnie Frederick, formerly of Altoona. This is the first case on record, we believe when our Celestial brother captured an American lady. Toy has forsaken his native dress and substituted American clothes and also wears his hair after the most approved fashion.

—A terrible accident occurred at the junction of the Beech Creek and Pine Creek railroads near Jersey shore last night, by which Charles Dum, the night yard master of the Beech Creek railroad was instantly killed. The unfortunate man was changing a switch and his foot caught in the switch frog, holding him in such a way that he could not escape. Six freight cars passed over his body, mangled it in a most terrible manner. Mr. Dum was a resident of Jersey Shore having been married about six months ago to an estimable young lady of that place. The accident occurred a few minutes before ten o'clock last night.—Lock Haven Express

A NICE SCHEME.—For some time back the merchants and business men in this section have been victimized to some extent by spurious bills. It was not until about a week ago that they were detected and a lookout kept for them and the parties passing them. The mode of raising the denomination of a bill is simple and easily executed. A one dollar bill is made to represent a $2 or a two $5, as the case may be, by pasting the highest figures over the original number. All the bills detected so far have been raised by pasting tobacco stamp figures, and in most cases the work was well done. The perpetrators of such work are sure to be found out in time, and on Wednesday H. A. Kratzer, of Clearfield, swore out a warrant for the arrest of Mrs. Metter Price and Mrs. Samuel Straw, the latter a resident of Kansas visiting near here. Constable Way served the papers and brought the women before Squire Moore who bound them over in $300 bail each. On Thursday they were taken to Clearfield, but a writ of habeas corpus saved them from jail, until Monday next when Judge Krebs will render a decision as to jurisdiction, the question of its being a United States offence having been raised. Bail in $300 each was continued and both women were allowed to go home.—Curwensville Review

SPRING HILLS. Miss Fisher, daughter of Dr. Fisher, of Bostburg, is trying to get up a music class at this place; hope she will succeed.

As the Republican vote of Greag township scarcely forms a corporate guard it has been customary for the Democrats to nominate a double ticket for township offices, so as to afford the voters a choice of candidates and also to arouse interest by making a contest which always brought out a respectable vote. This year, however, the nominating caucus only nominated a single ticket, which displeased some of the party. The Republicans, thinking to profit by this dissatisfaction, nominated a mixed ticket, thinking thereby to gobble up some of the offices and infuse a little life into their almost defunct organization. The dissatisfied Democrats were caught by this subterfuge, for while they helped them elect the Democrats on the mixed ticket they scratched the names of the Republicans. Try it again Republicans.

The Half of a Hundred Years.

The following unique poem is from the pen of Joe W. Furey of the Lock Haven Democrat. Joe has music in his soul, and his sweet little poems often grace the columns of the papers.

No telling the joys and the gladness,
The sorrows, the groans and the tears,
The goodness, the folly and badness
In a half of a hundred years.

When a fellow approaches his fifty,
And backward looks and peers,
He sees where he might have been thrifty
In half of a hundred years.

He can mark all his folly and meanness,
Where courage, instead of fears,
Would have helped him over his weakness,
In half of a hundred years.

He can note where he acted foolish
For the sake of men's smiles and sneers,
And was surely conceited and foolish
In half of a hundred years.

He can see how soft-headed and tender
He was on the dainty dears,
And how often he went on a tender
In half of a hundred years.

Likewise where he acted the monkey,
When he might have been smart and wise,
Instead of a sap-head and lunkie,
Had he only kept open his eyes.

Old time! hold your chariot a minute,
Stop casting your fearful leers;
I tell you "there's a million in it"
If you'll give me but twenty five years.

Won't do it Old Graybeard? All right, sir,
Bring your scythe as best please you, then:
I'll embrace what is left with delight, sir,
Be it twenty years, fifteen or ten!

I'll own that I might have been wiser,
Might have wrung from somebody's tears
The money to make me a miser
In my half of a hundred years.

But, hang it—I couldn't do it,
Couldn't live on what some money rears,
And yet I have the first time to rue it
In my half of a hundred years.

'Tis true I'm as poor as Job's turkey,
Owe debts that I really have fears
Will only be paid in the murky
Next half of a hundred years.

But still I find joy in the present,
For life is full of good cheers
And, take it all through, it's been pleasant
In my half of a hundred years.

So what is the use of regretting
Or grumble with sighs and with tears,
O'er the folly, the sin, the coquetting
Of half of a hundred years?

God knows that man is but mortal,
Prono to wickedness, folly and fears,
But repentance will open the portal
Of Heaven for million of years.

*The writer has not reached the "fifty," but a year or more less don't make any difference in the situation.

—The "Goo" Templar Lodge, on last Tuesday evening, discussed many important subjects relative to the workings of the organization, among them was the modern question of "Women's Rights" many good points were scored by ladies and gentlemen on both sides. But as it has always been in the past and no doubt will continue in the future, the negative should not have the right was the verdict no doubt of the lodge. It was a very enjoyable session.

—THREE ITEMS FROM THE PHILIPSBURG Journal.—We have often heard it remarked that the bulk of the business in Centre county comes from Philipsburg. If this is the case we can see no reason why it should not be done right here and save a large amount to the county.—Build a court house on south park, and instead of "we uns" going to Bellefonte, have those fellows come over here. That would be the way to do it.

We will put up our newly elected Burgess and Assistant Burgess against any other officials in the State as regards avoidance, their combined weight being four hundred and thirty-one pounds of which two hundred and twenty-five pounds falls to the share of Warfel, and the balance two hundred and six, to Wengert. If any of the roughs who from time to time create disturbances in our little mountain city, should chance to fall beneath the ponderous weight of these modern Hercules' there will be hardly enough of them left to mark the spot they fell on.

At noon, on Saturday, John Evan Farquas, a native of sunny Italy, and an employee of Cuba Mines, sat down under a railroad car, standing on the track, directly under the dump, at the mouth of the drift, in order to eat his dinner and at the same time keep clear of the rain which was then falling quite rapidly. He occupied a position that caused one leg to lay across the rail. Another car came down the track and ran into the one he was sitting under with sufficient force to start it. The result of this was an accident, one wheel passing over Farquas' leg and mashing it terribly. He was brought to town and after receiving treatment, was sent to Williamsport.

GOOD RESULTS IN EVERY CASE.—D. A. Bradford, wholesale paper dealer of Chattanooga, Tenn., writes, that he was seriously afflicted with a severe cold that settled on his lungs; had tried many remedies without benefit. Being induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, did so and was entirely cured by use of a few bottles. Since which time he has used it in his family for all coughs and colds with best results. This is the experience of thousands whose lives have been saved by this Wonderful Discovery. —Last evening at the residence of Mrs. Ida Dolan at the glass works an event of interest occurred it being the marriage of two of Bellefonte's well known young people. Mr. Ollie C. Miller, chief tinner at Harris & Co's tin shop, was united in marriage to Miss Kittie Dolan, daughter of the above named lady. The wedding occurred at 7 o'clock in the presence of a number of invited guests, Rev. Dr. Munroe performed the ceremony. Immediately after the two were pronounced one, and the congratulations over the guests were ushered into the dining room where a sumptuous repast was partaken of. At 9 o'clock the bride and groom boarded the train enroute for the eastern cities where they will spend several days. Mr. Miller is one of our best young men and his friends are legion. He is a trusted employee and has been connected with Harris & Co. for some time. In testimony of their appreciation of his services the members of the firm presented him with an elegant range complete. Messrs. Jas. Williams, Jno. Olewine, D. I. Parsons and Abram Jackson, fellow employes testified their regard for the bride and groom by presenting them with a beautiful dinner service consisting of 125 pieces. Many other handsome presents were received. The lady whom Mr. Miller selected to be his life partner, is highly respected, and of an amiable disposition. We wish them a prosperous and happy journey through life.
