The Militia Ordered Out.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 25.-The Governor this afternoon ordered the Toledo company of the National Guard to the scene of the riot at the Paulding county reservoir. The information, in brief, as outlined to the Governor, is that two handred masked men overpowered the guards at the reservoir last night and blew up the banks, saturated the locks and timber with eil and burned them. The guards were on duty at the instance of the Governor.

Toledo, April 26.—The lawless attempt to destroy the Paulding county reservoir is the result of the discontent, on the part of the people, at the maintenance of a practically disused section of the canal. There is no likelihood of a collision between troops and citizens.

Evansville, April 26. - The river has been rising rapidly during the past few days, and last night reached the danger line. A large portion of the bottom land in this vicinity is covered with water, and the river is still rising at the rate of over an inch an hour.

News from Jasper says the Potoka river is at an alarming height, and is still rising. The mills, factories, lumber yards and many dwellings have water in them from one to four feet deep. The Louisville, Evansville and St. Louis Air Line Railroad depot is surrounded by water, and the country between Jasper and Huntingburg is one vast

ADDITIONAL LOCAL.

-Arbor Day was generally observed here on Friday last. Thirty thrifty young trees were planted in the Bellefonte Park and enclosed in neat boxes, and will doubtless grow in beauty and make that one of the most delightful spots in our borough, E. C. Humes planted a row of maples around his property on Allegheny street, and on Bishop street Rev. McArdel had four planted along the property owned by the Catholic congregation. Many others ornamented their premesis by the same method.

- When the DAILY HERALD reporter this morning took a seat on the log in front of a mule catcher's shanty in Tyrone Scales, by the side of James S. Peese, he thought that he was sitting down by the side of a millionaire, but such he soon made up his mind was Over in Germany lived one Abram Peese, whom James says was as rich as a Jew. Abram was the father of John Peese and grand-father of James Peese, who since last December has worked in the capacity of mule-catcher at Tyrone Scales. Just how long ago Abam Peese died we do not know, but he died and left him an immense fortune, estimated at two million dollars. which has since been seeking its rightful owners, and at last settled down on two of them in the persons of James S. Peese and mother, both of whom live in East Tyrone.

Mr. Peese says that his father who formerly lived in Centre county, but is now dead, received about $9000 from the estate in Germany about eighteen years ago, and that the matter of a full settlement has been working up ever since. He says that the paper entitling the proper heirs to the money are now in Bellefonte, and only await the proof of identity of himself and mother to enable them to claim their share of the wealth which will be the big end of it. They will go to Bellefonte on Friday of this week for that purpose and fully expect to make their claim good.

Mr. Peese who is a fair type of the men who perform the hazardous work his companions, sauntered off. He has of catching mules, as it is termed, takes the news in a very matter of fact sort of way. While he says he feels good over the prospect of becoming wealthy, he is not unduly elated, but does not realize it. He says no matter how much work, because he was brought up that way; he will wear the same boots and clothes and be the same James Peese on June 23. These regiments were side that he is now.

Of a bluff, rough-and-ready, disposition, with an mexhaustible fund of the time of Lee's surrender, both comready and nata al wit, he is the life of the men among whom he works, and to the last man his comrades congratulate him on his prospective good fortune and hope that his brightest dreams may be realized. - Tyrone Herald

-A Boy Snor-Three little boys, street on Saturday noon when a boy named Forest Kline came along and revolvers, one a little 22 calibre affair and the other a large 52 colt's revolver, The little follows found a snake, and the Kline boy fired a couple of shots at it, with the little pistol. Failing to kil the snake he turned his attention or, rather, his revolver on the other boys and thrertened to shoot them. They all ran in terror from the young walkind arsenal, who fired after them. the ball taking effect on the head of little 8-year-old Jalius Hay. The wouded child staggerd home ail covered with blood. His mothe, as may be imagined was paralyzed with freight. A physician was sent for, who examined the wound, and to the intense relief of the parents pronounced it a scalp wound, and not at all dangerous. The ball had struck the child about two inches rbove the left ear and did not enter the skull. The physician thinks it glanced off as it could not be found. The little fellow bore the examination and process of dressing the wound like a hero, and is now doing finely. The young desperado who did the shooting is named Forest Kline and he is only 9 years old. He was arrested and taken before Justice Hess, who gave him a stern lecture on the impropriety of "kids" handling or carrying pistols, and then turned him over to the mercies of Officer Lehr, who put him in the lock, up for a couple of hours. When released he was effectually frightened, and promised never to carry a revolver again. He is a precacious youngster and his sage demeanor and comments on the affair caused no liittle amusement in the 'Squire'e' office.

-MARRIED-Herkhimer-Brennan-at the residenc of the bride's parents on Thursday April 21st at 1 o'clock p. m

The friend of the contracting parties were sitting waiting for the bride and groom to make their appearance, at a little after 2 o'clock the groomsman Robert Brennan and bridsmaid Miss Sallie E Lutz entered the room followed by the bride and groom, and taking their positions before the officiating minister, Mr. Geo. Herkheimer and Miss Lizzie Brennan were made man and wife, after congratulations were extended, the mrriage feast was announced, and such a feast; one that seldom graces the table of any wedding party. The table of good things was spread again later in the evening.

This time there were cakes of every description, ice ream, candies, fruits, etc., etc., etc., each one there satisfied the inner man. The gifts were numerous and useful. May happiness attend them. Your correspondent cannot remember the names of all those present, nor all of the presents; but each were happy. When the evening shade * had fallen low, the sound of music was heard in the distance. The low, soft' sweet, melodious(?)strains of the butch. er and dinner horns were wafted gently to the listening ears, and when our ears were greeted with the known sounding wedding bells, horns, etc., we merely remarked that the boys are enjoying -Between ten and eleven o'clock this morning Miss Ella Ripple, teacher of class No. 8, of our public schools had her attention called to Ella Miller, one of her pupils, who on investigation she found to be sick. Miss Ripple gave the child a glass and opened the door for her to go out into the hall to get a drink of water. A few minutes later Miss Klos, who was in the lower hall, saw her sitting on the stairway with her head resting on her arm, and heard that she was crying for help. The janitor was immediately sent to the little girl who was carried into her room and placed upon a recitation seat. Here she received every attention possible from her teacher and Prof. Pinkerton. Her father and a physician were sent for, but life ebbed away so rapidly that when the latter arrived she was dead. Her father says that the child had been sick last week and had been troubled with heart disease, and Dr Piper stated that it would have been impossible to have done more for the child than was done.

It is the opinion of the doctor that death was caused by some disease of the heart, but says that nothing but an autopsy can settle this surely, and thinks that an examination should be made in order that all doubt in the matter may be set at rest. Little Elia was about twelve years of age .- Tyrone Daily Herald.

He at once notified Mr. Musser of his discovery, and that gentleman found upon investigation that several dollars of cash change, some pocket knives and a mailbag key had been taken. The thieves were evidently amateurs of their profession. as they made a very bungling job of it. The front door looked as though it had been broken open with a very rude instrument while some of the drawers were badly damaged: A lot of half burned matches on the floor indicated what kind of light the burglars used for their night work.
