General Sheridan and the Assailant of Christianity.

CHICAGO, May 23 .- General Geo. A. Sheridan delivered his lecture "The Modern Pagan," at the Chicago Opera House to-night to a large audience. Many prominent people were present. The lecture is in the nature of a reply to Colonel Ingersoll's attacks upon Christianity, and was a masterly argument. It was not his purpose, General Sheridan said, to being accompanied by a wound in the utter a defense of Christianity, but merely to show the evil offects of the panions. O'Brien was sitting down course abopted by Colonel Ingersoll. That gentleman was charged by the Speaker with declining to meet men competent to discuss the question with him. He fled from the field when the only really able man-Judge Jere Black-opposed him, In discussing the question of Christianity, Colonel Ingersoll creates captions issues; he utterly ignores the work of Christianity, and neither comprehends nor appreciates the excellence and magnitude of the achievements among us of leave the rink by a narrow alley, jump

')'Brien, however, was led away and reached the hotel in safety. Lalor's store was completely wrecked. The few policemen present made no effort to check the mob.

> KINGSTON, Ont., May 20 .- An attack was made here to-night on Mr. O'Brien. The Ottawa reception to William O'Brien has outdone all that its most sanguine organizers expected. From the time of the arrival of the party until their departure at half-past 12 to-day, it was one continuous march of triumph on the part of their friends, and expressions of indignation at the conduct of the Orange rowdies of Toronto were uttered by many of their opponents.

> O'Brien addressed a large and enthusiastic meeting here to-day. Upon the close, the people started to go out, and as O'Brien stepped on the sidewalk he was recognized by a crowd of Orangemen on the other side of the steet, who raised a savage cry of vengeance and rushed across the street. Broken stones and cobble stones began flying like hail. "Drag him out! kill him! tear him asunder !" shouted the mob, and they almost broke through O'Brien's body guard, which consisted of American special correspondents. As the party turned in Wellington street, another shower of bricks and stones came crashing through the crowd. O'Brien and his friends bent their heads and received the missiles on their bodies.

Messrs. Kellogg and Wall, of the New York Sun & Tribune, caught up with O'Brien on the steps leading to the house of John Newman, a Protestant-The doors were open and a shower of missils again came across the street. The crowd surged and O'Brien disappeared, evidently into Newman's house, but to the present time nobody is certain of this. The crowd next rushed to home rule!" "Kill him!" etc., and fired a volley of stones at the windows. Wall, the correspondent, attempted to pass the hotel but was recognized by a rush. Pe escaped, however, down a side street. The Canadian Freeman, the Irish Catholic organ, was wrecked Subsequently it was learned that O' Brien was safe in the house of Peter Devlin.

NIAGARA FALLS, May 22. - William O'Brien arrived here this morning at 2 o'clock and with no sleep in his eyes and haggard from weakness, arose from his berth and was taken possession of by several hundred persons, some of whom carried him to his carriage and he was driven to a hotel. Here he received many callers during the day. The doctors say that the cartilages of the eight and ninth ribs are partially detatched; there is also an indentation in the cartilages themselves. Inflammation of the base of the lungs is the result, and besides O'Brien is suffering from a severe cold.

FIREARMS THIS TIME.

HAMILTON, May 23. Mr. O'Brien arrived here to-day and was cordially received. This evening he addresse I an audience of 2,000 persons in the rink, at the conclusion of which another attack was made upon him. This time with firearms, and again there was another miraculous escape, this escape, wrist of one of O'Brien's faithful comafter having made a vigorous speech in return for the vote of thanks passed, and Dennis Kilbride was on his feet engaged in a like task. Just then a man was observed on the platform leaning over and whispering something in O'Baisn's ear. It was noticed that O'Brien shook his head as though in dissent. The man persisted. Finally O'Brien arose and followed him. It was the idea of some officious and meddlesome man of a plan which he had to save O'Brien's life. The plan was to into a carriage in waiting and to drive to the hotel. It was the first time so far during the tour that he did not go out the ordinary way, and the plan well nigh cost him his life. A number of men hissing and groaning followed the carriage, and as it wheeled into Market quare there was a sudden click and Co.

Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May, 22,1887. All things are quiet at the Capital ex cept the military. If the soldier boys do not have a good time it will be no fault of their hosts. Everything was in readiness by Saturday for their coming. The larg. est area of beautiful grass plot on which they drill is enclosed by a fence so high that no little urchin can scramble to the top or get a view of the lovely panorama within without paying his 25 cents, or climb the telegraph poles to view the coveted sight as Ben. Butler ascended his tower to take in the situation around Richmond been laid for the movement of the two vessels that will represent the fight between the Monitor and the Merrimack. This will be a grand and thrilling spectacle. The drill ground is partially enclosed by a grand stand that will seat 15,000 persons. On Sunday next the celebrated divine Rev. T. De. Witt Talmage, will preach on the camp grounds to the soldiery. Applications are piling up for seats on that occasion.

The beautiful green on the bank of the Potomse and from which the Washington Monument towers up 555 feet, is covered of the troops, most of whom arrived on Alleghany. Saturday, Sunday and every train is bringing in more. This country has never witnessed in time of peace such military pegeant as is in store for Washington and its thousands of visitors this week. More about it will be said in my next.

Judicial circles are much agitated as to who will be appointed to fill the vacancy on the Suprem Court Bench made by the death of Justice Woods. Many prominent names have been mentioned, the number including Secretary Lamar and the Orangemen, who went for him with Attorney General Garland. It is Generally conceeded that the appointment will go to the South. Although his name has n a yet been mentioned, you need not be surprised if Circuit Judge Jackson receive the appointment Judge Jackson was loth to leave the Senate and only did so at the earnest solicitation of the President It is believed that however much he might have been willing to accommodate the President he would not have given up his seat in the Senate unless he had cause to believe that when the opportunity arose he would be appointed to the U. S. Suprem Court Bench. The Judge is not only an able jurist but is also from the South--representing Tennessee in the Senate at the time of his appointment to the Circuit Court Bench. In view of all the circumstances, Judge Jackson is likely to receive the appointment.

The efforts will be renewed the coming Congress. Now the divorce question is partially settled, the preachers have tak en up for discussion and change the subject of funerals. It is claimed that they are entirely too extravagant and worked for all that they can be to advertise the business of the undertakers. The object in view by the present discussion is to generally make the ceremonies plainer and more simple in every way. The Clerks in the departments are getting bravely over the recent scare produced by the new rules of the Civil Service Commissioners compelling all employees to undergo an examination for promotion whether they wanted to or not, and in the event of failure to come up to the standard be sujected to dismissal. HARRISBURG, May Beaver signed the congressional apportionment bill this afternoon.

THE most important resolution adopted at the recent annual convention of the Grand Division of Railway conductors, held at New Orleans, was one looking towards the licensing of conductors and engineers on the same principle as are steamboat pilots. By this means none but the best men would be employed as conductors and engineers. They would have to go through a rigid examination before they could receive their license papers. The resolution was favorably considered. Grand Chief Conductor C. S. Wheaton, Grand Secretary and Treasurer W. P. Daniels and the Executive Board were instructed to meet with the annual convention of railway general managers and endeaver to have them endorse the proposed measure and ask Congress to pass a
