

Killed By a Whale.

PROVINCETON, Mass., November 18.—The whaling steamer Lizzie N., Captain West, which has been engaged in the flinback whale fishery on the eastern coast this season, on October 6, when about fifteen miles east-southeast from Seguin island, off the coast of Maine, saw a large lone whale of that species and attempted its capture.

A boat was lowered and manned by Capt. West, his mate and four seamen. Capt. West, with a large, heavy whale gun in which was an explosive bomb lance, took the breach of the boat, while the mate steered. Upon approaching the whale it was seen that he would be an ugly customer to deal with as he showed no indication to run, but kept slowly milling around, evidently waiting to be attacked.

When the boat was near enough to warrant a shot Captain West fired the gun, but as the sea was rough the motion of the boat destroyed the accuracy of the aim. The whale was badly wounded, but not in any vital part. The whale then made for the boat, and in passing under it struck it with his flukes, throwing it some thirty feet into the air with its crew. As the boat descended the whale again struck it with his tail and completely demolished the boat and killed one of the crew, Jacob Klock, cutting him completely in two. The whale then commenced to bite and strike with his tail at the pieces of the boat, killing two more men, Neal Olsen and Chris Johnson, who were supporting themselves on pieces of the wreck. Captain West, the mate and the other men were safely taken aboard the steamer and another boat was lowered to capture the monster.

Then the whale attacked the steamer. By a quick turn of the rudder the steamer cleared him by a few feet. This occurred a second time, and the swell which was caused by the whale's fall back into the water knocked all on board off their feet. By throwing over an immense caulk, at which the whale, thinking it was the ship, kept bucking away, the captain was enabled to get a shot with the bomb lance, and finally the whale was killed. When the whale was brought ashore, R. F. Pierce, of Chicago, bought him and will exhibit him through the west. A large car to transfer him has been built at an expense of $4,000.

The Miners Use Force.

HAZLETON, Pa., November 17.—A number of "scab" miners houses, of this borough were ransacked by strikers Tuesday evening and the "scabs" were hauled off in a big hay wagon. Their whereabouts are unknown and the Deringer breaker was unable to work to-day, as they failed to turn up. This was the only breaker at work and the miners wanted operations discontinued. It is said the "scabs" are in the woods five miles distant and are being fed by the strikers.

The operators of Coalbrook have notified the striking miners that they must vacate (their (the company's) houses by Monday next. This means that all the operators have united on the policy of immediate eviction. The Court will on Monday finally pass on the temporary injunction restraining the Sheriff from serving the warrants on the tenants.

The strikers are orderly, but if the evictions are attempted the Governor will be asked for State aid. Sheriff Search says he will not undertake the difficult task.

A United Press dispatch says that the strike cannot last much longer, as it is day by day becoming a question of actual bread and meat. As the first enthusiasm wears off contributions from the other miners and from outside fall short, and not enough to feed the men. The strikers are disappointed that General Master Workman Powderly did not order a general assessment on the Knights of Labor.

In Scanty Costumes.

CHICAGO, November 17.—Hotel fires and panics are becoming alarmingly frequent in this city. Over one hundred guests, occupying the six floors of the Saratoga European Hotel, on Dearborn Street, were aroused from their beds shortly before two o'clock this morning by the ringing of the electric fire alarm in their rooms. Smoke was pouring through the halls and creeping in at the transoms. Cries of fire were heard on every landing and an indescribable panic ensued.

Few stopped to secure their clothing or valuables. Women and men fled through halls, down the stairway and out into the street clad only in their night clothes. The clattering of the fire engines aroused the occupants of several hotels in the neighborhood and the excitement became intense. One man, Harry Hammond, the night clerk of the hotel, descended from the sixth story by the fire escape.

The other inmates tumbled over each other down the stairs in their hurry to escape.

The fire had started in the kitchen of the Saratoga restaurant, on the first floor, and rapidly spread through the building, ascending to the top at the rear by means of the ventilator. The night clerk of the hotel, Thomas McFadden, saw the smoke and ran into the hall and gave the alarm. He rang the electric alarm bells. The clerk at the Windsor Hotel heard the cries of fire and sent in an alarm.

About a quarter to three, after several of the engines had been dismissed, the fire broke out afresh on the top floor, and in a short while the entire seventh story was ablaze, with a strong wind fanning it in the direction of the Journal building to the south. The rear from the lower floor clean to the roof was ablaze, the shaft formerly used as a freight elevator acting as a flue. The fire, however, was confined to these places, and but for the strong wind could have been easily fought. The building was flooded with water, and from this and smoke most of the damage will accrue.

His Girls Picture in a Packet

I gave you a silver dollar for some cigars half an hour ago. Will you look over your money drawer and see if it has been passed out?

It was a Chestnut street cigar store late Saturday afternoon. A well-dressed young man was the speaker. His face wore a worried and anxious look and betrayed considerable perturbation of spirit over the loss of the silver dollar. The dealer found that he had just eleven of the coins and he spread them in a row on the counter. The young man took them up one by one, weighed each in turn in his hand and an expression of vexation overspread his face as he laid the last down very carefully and murmured: "I knew I couldn't tell that way."

Then he went at them again. This time he grasped the dollar firmly with one hand and pressed his nail upon the letter "E" in "States." At the eleventh dollar, to which he applied the nail of the little finger, all the others having been broken in the fray, there came a sudden change in the appearance of the coin. Half of it slid one way and half the other, and in the lower half covered with a fine crystal, was the miniature of an extremely pretty girl. The young man heaved a sigh of relief laid down a greenback in exchange and left the store ruefully regarding his broken finger nails.

Uncle Sam's Money.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—The annual report of the treasurer of the United States shows that the revenues of the government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1887, were $371,403,277 and the ordinary expenditures 267,832,179. The surplus receipts available for the reduction of the public debt were $103,571,047. As compared with the previous year the receipts increased $34,963,559 and the expenditures $25,449,041 and the surplus revenue $9,514,509. There was an increase in every item of revenue, the largest being in the receipts from customs. The largest increase in expenditures was on account of the Indians and pensions and the largest decrease on account of the interest on the public debt.
