ADDITIONAL LOCAL.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company's Florida Tours.
No opportunity of making a delightful trip to the South has ever presented itself in so attractive a shape as that which the Pennsylvania Railroad Company's personally conducted pleasure tours to Florida offer to the people of this section. The tours have been arranged by the Tourist Bureau of the Passenger Department, and will be conducted under the personal supervision of the Tourist Agent and Chaperon.
A special train of Pullman Palace Sleeping Cars will convey the party through to Jacksonville on the fastest schedule ever made on similar a occasion. The train will leave New York on the morning of January 26th and February 8th, Philadelphia about noon, and arrive in Jacksonville for supper the next evening, stopping for meals at convenient points en route. The round-trip tickets, which beside the railway fare in both directions will include meals on route, sleeping-car accommodations going and returning, and one day's board at the Everett Hotel, Jacksonville, will allow a stay of about two weeks in the flowery State. The rate from New York is $47.00, and from Philadelphia and all points South thereof $45.00. Tickets at correspondingly low rates will be sold from all principal stations on the Pennsylvania Railroad system.

This is not only by far the cheapest, but at the same time the most desirable, Southern tour ever presented. The dates too are well timed, as they cover the choicest portion of the Florida season, which has as a great attraction this winter the Sub-Tropical Exposition at Jacksonville and the opening of the magnificent new hotels at St. Augustine. The time limit of the tickets permits of an extended trip through the State.
Names may be registered now for either date by calling at the ticket agencies of the company.

Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. She bought of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption and was so much relieved on taking the first dose that she slept all night and with one bottle has been miraculously cured. Her name is Mr. Luther Lutz. Thus write W. C. Hamrick & Co., of Shelby, N. C.—Get a free trial bottle at J. Zeller & Son's Drug Store.

THE ODORIFEROUS MOLECULE OF MUSK must be incomprehensibly small, when we are told the particles one grain of musk had, in a radius of ninety feet, disengaged in one day. No microscopic power has yet been conceived to enable the human eye to see one of these atoms, yet the organs of smell have the sensitiveness to detect them. We cannot imagine their smallness, as it is stated that the same grain of musk undergoes absolutely no diminution in weight. A single drop of the oil of thyme, ground down with a piece of sugar and a little alcohol will communicate its odor to twenty-five gallons of water. Halter kept for forty years papers perfumed with one grain of ambergris. After this time the odor was as strong as ever. Bordenave has evaluated a molecule of camphor sensible to the smell to 2,262,584,000 of a grain. Boyle has observed that one drachm of anastolis exposed to the open air had lost in six days the eighth part of one grain, from which Keil concludes that in one minute it had lost 63,120th of a grain.

Or the varieties of tomatoes the Livingston Favorite is one of the best. It is very smooth, a beautiful red in color, not so early to rot as the Acme, and ripens as early as the standard kinds. It is also large in size and ripens well around the stem, which is not the case with the Trophy.

McCOY-HATFIELD FEUD.

REVOLVING RECORD OF INHUMAN BUTCHERIES.

An Entire Family Extirpated, Root and Branch—Two Bound and Shot and One Man and Two Children Locked in Their House and the Building Burned Down.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 19.—The climax has at last been reached in the inhuman record of butcheries that have made the bloody feud between the Hatfields, of Logan county, W. Va., and the McCoy's of Pike county, Ky., the most revolting record of crime ever known in these regions.

Word has just been reached here of a raid made by the Hatfield gang on the house of Sim McCoy, a brother of Randal McCoy, whose house had been burned several weeks ago, and a number of his family killed. Determined this time to wipe out the balance of the McCoy's tribe, the Hatfield butchers surrounded the house in great numbers during the night and proceeded to storm out McCoy and his family.

The first secured the wife of McCoy, whom the led to a tree and securely bound with ropes. By her side they placed her eldest son and riddled them with buckshot, while the father was covered with revolvers by the other part of the butcher gang. This part of the inhuman programme over the next place Sim McCoy and his two youngest children in the house, fastened them securely to prevent escape, and deliberately burned them to ashes in their own home. As usual no arrests have been made, for the victorious Hatfields are stongly barricaded in a mountainous forest in the wilds of West Virginia, and would make short work of a sheriff's posse.

This bloody feud, which seems to have ended with the extermination of McCoy's root and branch began several years ago, when one of the Hatfields had a fatal encounter with a McCoy on the Kentucky side of the river. A Hatfield was stabbed, and his relatives swooped down on the McCoy's, took them captives and held them prisoners until Ellison Hatfield died, whom they had stabbed, when the Hatfields conveyed the three McCoy boys to the scene of the altercation, stripped them, tied them to a pawpaw bush, shot them to death, and left the bodies in that position.

Since this time a regular war has been waged between the Hatfields and the McCoy's. A short time ago the Hatfield's party visited the residence of the McCoy's, and set fire to the house. Alaura, his eldest daughter, was the first to open the door, and make her appearance, and in the glaring light she was shot dead by the gang outside, who were concealed.

The son of Calvin next appeared, and he was shot dead. Mrs. McCoy made her appearance, in escaping from the burning building and was shot in the head and dangerously wounded.

Randal McCoy escaped from the burning building with his shot gun, and although a volley was discharged at him he escaped unhurt and opened fire upon the attacking party. He is known to have killed one of the gang by the name of Chambers, and it is said, shot Captain Hatfield in the shoulder and put the rest to flight.

As soon as the burial of Mrs. McCoy and her two sons, murdered by the Hatfields, was over, the rest of the McCoy's organized a posse and visited the Hatfield settlement in West Virginia for the purpose of annihilating the gang. The posse went to the Hatfield house, and finding no one at home, they repaired to the woods to meditate for a few moments. Their secrecy was of short duration, for the Hatfield gang were soon upon them and a regular war ensued.

After the smoke of the battle had cleared away it was found that the Hatfield party were badly worsted, three of their number were killed, while none of the McCoy posse were hurt. Those known to be killed were Johnson Hatfield, Thomas Chambers and James Vance. Vance was shot seven times. Satisfied with their day's work, the McCoy posse returned to their settlement, to await developments. Vance had killed several men in the McCoy neighborhood, and had to leave in consequence. He had been a bold, desperate fellow.

There are rewards aggregating $2,000 offered by the State of Kentucky for the arrest of the Hatfields and their delivery to the jailer of Pike County but no one seems to make the attempt to take them as they are strongly barricaded.

One of the number constantly stands guard, and they defy the authorities, but retributive justice is now likely to speedily follow, as this last act has stirred up that whole section.

All Killed but the Mother.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., January 20.—A year ago a rancher in Mora Canyon, named Lewis Stone, went west. During his absence a family named Goen, consisting of a widow, two sons, and a daughter, took possession of his ranch and cabin. On Stone's return he instituted legal proceedings to eject the parties. His title to the property was confirmed, and on last Wednesday, when Sheriff Breidlov went to take possession, the whole family of Goens faced the officers with revolvers. Breidlov snatched a revolver from Mrs. Goen, who sat at the door. She seized a gun and shot him in the face. In the melee that followed citizen Reed was fatally wounded by Pery Goen. A married daughter of Mrs. Goen was accidentally shot in the neck by her brother and fell dead. Pery Goen is shot through the head and arm fatally. His sister and brother were dead when the officers returned with wounded. Mrs. Goen still hold the fort declaring she will not leave the place alive.

Murderous Steps in the Dark.

ROME, N. Y., January 24.—Mrs. Richard Lesser was assassinated in New London last night. She was on her way home from the house of a neighbor, when a man came up behind her, threw her down, cut her throat and then ran away. He was seen by the neighbors, who gave the alarm. The assassin, whose name is Eugene Griest, was traced to his house, arrested and lodged in jail in this city. The woman is not dead, but her condition is critical.

SUBJECTS FOR THOUGHT.

The right of private judgment is absolute in every American citizen.
To him nothing is possible who is always dreaming of his past possibilities.

There are no greater prudes than those women who have some secret to hide.
God has placed the genius of women in their hearts; because the works of this genius are always works of love.

In the great majority of things, habit is a greater plague than ever afflicted Egypt; in religious character it is a grand felicity.
Happiness is a blessing often missed by those who run after pleasure, and generally found by those who suffer pleasure to run after them.

Every event that a man would master must be mounted on the run, and no man ever caught the reins of a thought except as it galloped by him.
Love is not altogether a delirium, yet it has many points in common therewith. I call it rather a discerning of the infinite in the finite, of the idea made real.

Truth is the object of our understanding, as good is of our will; and the understanding can no more be delighted with a lie than the will can choose an apparent evil.
True love is eternal, infinite, and always like itself; it is equal and pure, without violent demonstrations; it is seen with white hairs, and is always young in the heart.

Good listeners, whether at the table or elsewhere, are as indispensable as good talkers, for the just of the story owes the life of its success more to the ear of the listener than to the narrator.
If we were all less disposed to criticize and more ready to take on trust, we should get on a vast deal better than we do now; to allow for differences would be the best way to come into harmony of lines.

Christians are like the several flowers in the garden, that have each of them the dew of heaven, which being shaken with the wind, they let fall at each other's roots, whereby they are jointly nourished, and become nourishers of each other.
There are souls in the world which have the gift of finding joy everywhere, and of leaving it behind them wherever they go. Joy gushes from under their fingers like jets of light. Their influence is an inevitable gladdening of the heart; it seems as if a shadow of God's own gift had passed upon them. They give light without meaning to shine.

Manners are of more importance than laws. Upon them, in a great measure, the laws depend. The law touches us but here and there, now and then. Manners are what vex and soothe, corrupt or purify, exalt or debase, barbarize or refine us, by a constant, steady uniform, insensible operation, like that of the air we breathe in. They give their whole form and color to our lives. According to their quality, they aid morals; they destroy them.

As the pleasure the ear finds in rhyme is said to arise from its recurrence at measured periods from the gratified expectation that at certain intervals certain effects will be repeated, so it is in life; the recurrence of the things that are the same or similar, the content in the fulfillment of expectations so familiar and so gentle that we are scarcely conscious that they were formed, have a harmony and a charm, and often make the only difference between life's poetry and its prose.

A man may be well grounded in the laws of health, yet, without exercise, have a feeble body; he may be crowded with knowledge, yet, without mental activity, have a feeble mind; and likewise he may be well versed in theories of right doing, yet without the habit of practicing them, he may have a feeble moral character, that has no power to resist temptations and no courage to do his duty. Teaching and training must go hand in hand; right feeling and right-doing must keep pace with right knowing if we are to have a dutiful child, an upright man, or a righteous Nation.

The thought of the supernatural amid with man, do what he will. It visits the most callous; it interests the most sceptical. For a time even for a long time—it may lie asleep in the breast, either amidst the sordid despair of the proud, rich, and young enjoyments of life; but it wakes up in curious inquiry or dreadful anxiety. In any case, it is a thought of which no man can be reasonably independent. It is so far as he retains his reasonable being and preserves the consciousness of moral susceptibilities and relations, in so far will his thought of a higher world—of a life enclosing and influencing his present life—be a powerful and practical thought with him.

to transform men into all sorts of beings, both vegetable and animal, from sweet-scented flowers to pigs and predatory animals, yea even into rocks of salt, was a favorite pastime with all the divinities and magicians of old. But the transformation of a happy couple into a pair of cannon is something incomparable—reserved to the reigning divinity of the island of Java, in the East Indian archipelago. Setama was the wisest of the wise men of Java, and prime minister and governor at the same time, and his wife, Natomi, the most beautiful and most adorable of women and an invaluable helpmate in all her husband's onerous duties of government.

One night King Sari had a dream that the Javanese god had made him a present of a pair of the most beautiful cannon in the world. He called on his prime minister and sent him off to find the cannon. The minister took his faithful with him, and they wandered for years without finding the cannon. At last they went into a temple and prayed fervently to their god to let them and the promised cannon, as they could not return to the king without them. That same night Setama's son had a dream that he could find the cannon in the same temple where his parents had taken refuge. He goes there, but sees no trace of either his parents or the cannon. At last he goes to the couch where his parents had been sleeping and—lo and behold! there are the two cannon, wrapped up in counterpanes like sleeping beauties. After that the cannon were set up as miracle workers in the temple—the he cannon for the male population, the she cannon for the females.
