A Gentle Stim ulus

Is imparted to the kidneys and bladber by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which is most useful in overcoming torpidity of these organs. Besides in-using more activity into them, this excellent tonic endows them with additional vigor, and enables them the better to undergo the wear and tear of the discharging function imposed upon them by nature. Moreover, as they are the channel for the escape of certain impurities from the blood, increases their usefulness by strengthening and healthfully stimulating them. In cerant organs, they fall into a sluggish state, which is the usual percursor of disease. What then can be the greater sant with the subject, a percentage of service than a medicine which impele them to greater activity when slothful? No maladies are more perilous than these which seet the kidneys, and a medicine which averts the peril should

A Waste of Words.

At a Woman's Dress Reform Convention recently a male physician, in endeavoring to redress the abuses of dress, in an address to the dress reformers, said: "A large waist in woman is beautiful and healthy." Many a man who has an extravagant wife will not agree with the doctor. The husband will tell him that a large waste in woman is quite the reverse of beautiful, and as for being healthy—well, his emaciated pocket-book proves the contrary.
