DANIEL DOUGHERTY NOMINATES CLEVELAND.
As soon as he could be heard, Mr.
Dougherty said:

I greet you my countrymen, with fraternal regard! In your presence I bow to the majesty of the people; the sight itself is inspiring, the thought sublime. You come from every State and Territory, from every nook and corner of our ocean-bound continent-covering country. You are about to discharge a more than imperial duty with simplest ceremonies. You as representatives of the people, are to choose a Magistrate with power mightier than a monarch, yet checked and controlled by the supreme law of a written Constitution. Thus impressed I ascend the rostrum to name the next President of the United States. New York presents him to the Convention and pledges her electoral vote. Delegations from the thirty-eight States and all the Territories are assembled without caucus or consultation ready simultaneously to take up the cry and make the vote unanimous. We are here, not indeed to choose a candidate, but to name the one the people have already chosen. He is the man for the people; his career illustrates the glory of our institutions. Eight years ago unknown save in his own locality, he for the last four years has stood in the gaze of the world discharging the most exalted duties that can be confided to a mortal.
To-day determines that, not of his own choice but by the mandate of his countrymen and with the sanction of Heaven he shall fill the the Presidency for four years more. He has met and mastered every question as if from youth trained to statesmanship. The promises of his letter of acceptance and inaugural address have been fulfilled. His fidelity in the past inspires faith in the future.
He is not a hope. He is a realization, Scorning subterfuge, disdaining re-election by concealing convictions, mindful of his oath of office to defend the Constitution, he courageously declares to Congress, dropping minor matters, that the supreme issue is reform, revision, reduction of national taxation; that the Treasury of the United States glutted with unneeded gold, oppresses industry embarrasses business, endangers financial tranquility and breeds extravagance centralization and corruption; that high taxation, vital for the expenditures of an unparalleled war, is robbery in years of prosperous peace; that the millions that pour into the Treasury come from the hard-earned savings of the American people; that in violation of equality of rights the present tariff has created a privileged class, who shaping legislation for their personal gain, levy by law contributions for the necessities of life from every man, woman and child in the land; that to lower the tariff is not free trade; it is to reduce the unjust profits of monopolists and boss manufacturers and allow consumers to retain the rest. The man who asserts that to lower the tariff means free trade insults intelligence. We brand him as a falsifier. It is farthest from thought to imperil capital or disturb enterprises. The aim is to uphold wages and protect the rights of all.

This Administration has rescued the public domain from would-be barons and corsair corporations faithless to obligations, and resorted it for free homes for this and coming generations.
There is no pilfering. There are no one under this Administration. Public office is a public trust. Integrity stands guard at every post of our vast empire.

While the President has been the medium through which has flowed the undying gratitude of the Republic for her soldiers, he has not hesitated to withhold approval from special legislation if strictest inquiry revealed a want of truth and justice. Above all, sectional strife, as never before, is at an end, and 60,000,000 of freemen in the ties of brotherhood are prosperous and happy.

These are the achievements of this Administration. Under the same illustrious leader we are ready to meet our political opponents in high and honorable debate and stake our triumph on the intelligence, virtue and patriotism of the people. Adhering to the Constitution, its every line and letter ever remembering "that the powers not delegated to the United States by the constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States are reserved to the States respectively or to the people." By the authority of the democracy of New York, backed by the democracy of the entire Union, I give you a name entwined with victory. I nominate Grover Cleveland, of New York.

Mr. McKenzie (Ky) then took the platform and addressed the convention as follows:

Gentlemen of the National Convention: I bear the commission of the State of Kentucky to this National Convention, and in the name of the Commonwealth that has given to that State a Clay and a Crittenden I desire to second the nomination of Grover Cleveland for office of the Presidency of the United States. [Great applause and wild cheering] Within the broad limits of this great land there is but one more popular Democrat than he, and that is the queenly woman he has made his wife. [Great applause.] It must be, Mr. Chairman a matter of felicitation to every good citizen within the limits of our land that the historic White House around which cluster so many memories that are dear to every patriotic heart, is presided over by a man who has the courage to enforce obedience to bad laws until they be repealed, and recommend the enactment of good laws until they shall be enacted [Applause.] At the same time its social destinies are guided by the fair hand of the uncrowned queen of our American womanhood.
I never intend to let Mrs. Cleveland out of this canvass. [Laughter and applause.] In hoc Signo vinces.

It was said, gentlemen of the jury [laughter,] in our last National Convention that Grover Cleveland was loved for the enemies he had made; still later it has been said that he was loved for the rascals he turned out [applause]; still later it has been said that he was loved for the message he had written.
[Applause.] Kentucky loves him for the fight there is in him. [Laughter and applause] and for his splendid racing qualities. [Laughter.] He is as game as Lexington and as speedy as Ten Broeck. In his earlier form he won the Buffalo Mayorality stake hands down, and he won the New York handicap. He was then entered against the Florentine Mosaic from Maine [great applause and cheering,] and won the National Derby by a neck. It does not matter, gentlemen of the National jury, how this National Sweepstakes shall be made up; whether it be filled out by hyperborean icicles, Florentine mosaics or dark horses. When the race is run through the bulletin boards will show Eclipse first; the balance not placed. [Laughter and applause.]

The State of Kentucky loves Mr.
Cleveland for the reason that he has had the courage to storm the intrenchments of subsidy and monopoly by recommending such a judicious revision of our tariff system as will secure equality in the distribution of the public burdens and lighten the exactions of labor. [Applause] He has had the courage to inaugurate such a war on that horrible misnomer called "trusts" that before this national campaign shall close it will cease to be a popular for a dog [Laughter and applause.] He has had the courage and patriotism to regard the Presidency of the United States not as a personal perquisite acquired by purchase or discovery or diplomacy or escheat.

Mr. McKenzie had turned round to face the people seated on the platform when the audience in front set up a cry for him to turn round and face the audience.

Let me talk to these learned Thebians awhile. [Laughter.] But he has regarded the Presidency as a great public office conferred by the unthought suffrage of the people, to be administered wisely, fairly, judicially, honestly, in the interests of everybody. [Cheers.] Well, the fact of the business is he has got so much courage that it is unnecessary to enumerate. But there is one thing that I want to call especial attention to. While others have wavered and others have written doubtful messages he has written a message to the present American Congress that has about it the directness and force of a Kentucky rifle and the executive ability of a dynamite cartridge. [Applause and laughter.] In lawyer parlance, it had about it the energy of a capias pro fine and the force and effect of a replevin bond.

Now, gentlemen, this is the one instance of the history of American politics where we had a man who furnished in his own person a first class candidate and a thoroughly Democratic platform.
[Applause.] He has done his duty. Let us do ours. [Applause.] I want every Democrat male and female [laughter,] in the body of this magnificent deliberative hall in tea world [Applause]— I want everybody to go home after we shall close these exercises [laughter] with the Democratic benediction and, if it shall please God to so provide, a red bandana as one of the guidons along the clear line of the Democracy in its march to victory. [Applause.]

In conclusion, Mr. Chairman and gentlemen, I move to suspend the rules and make the nomination of Grover Cleveland for President of the United States absolutely unanimous. [Great applause.]

WHAT IT SAVES.

The Relief the Mills Bill Would Bring to the Farmer.

Let the farmers ask what effect the Mills bill have on their yearly expenses. Mr. Charles T. Davis, of Washington, was asked, as a statistician, what would be the effect in this direction of the proposed reduction of the tariff. He said:

The question is a difficult one to answer satisfactorily, but I will endeavor to answer it so far as the wheat farmer is concerned, but I have not the data at hand to answer the question so far as the cotton is concerned. For a farmer cultivating, say, fifty acres of wheat, and having a family of, say, five, i. e., himself, wife and three children, the saving to the farmer between the tariff as at present imposed and the tariff proposed in the Mills bill would be about as follows:

On tin plates.....	$ 2 00
On earthenware and glass...	3 00
On salt, family and cattle....	2 50
On sugar.....	4 00
On lumber.....	10 00
On woolen outer clothing....	35 00
On flannels, shawls, blank- ets and underclothing....	12 00
On cotton goods.....	16 00
On jute bagging and bind- ing twine.....	52 50
On miscellaneous items not enumerated.....	20 00 $158 00

A part of the above saving of $158 per year would come out of the reduction of the revenue of the United States government, and a part out of the enormous profits of the various trusts which are the fruit of high tariff.

From the above statement it will be seen that the greatest saving to the farmer will be in the matter of jute bagging and binding cord.

It is estimated that because of the tariff now imposed upon raw jute the increase cost on bagging and binding twine average 3 cents a bushel on every bushel of wheat shipped in jute bagging from the grain-growing districts of the United States. The unjust taxation is a sad commentary upon the inequitable conditions of our laws, which so needlessly burden our agricultural interests and tend to increase the cost of wheat 3 cents per bushel, which increased cost inures directly to the benefit of our wheat-growing competitors in all parts of the world and prevents the extensive establishment of jute manufacturing industries within our own borders, which would utilize a large number of our unemployed laborers.

Jute is not grown in this country; not because of adverse conditions of either climate or soil, but because the cost of growing the jute is a small item when compared with the cost of stripping it.

In India it is possible to obtain labor suitable for stripping jute at a price not exceeding 4 or 5 cents per day. Then, again, the value of the land and the interest for the use of the money are less in India than is demanded in the southern portion of the United States.

ging and burlaps which latter form the rough foundation for oil-cloths, in Calcutta and Bombay, India, and in Dundee, Scotland, obtain their raw material free of taxation.
Hence, the manufacturers in those countries are enabled to ship their products into the United States, to Central America and South American countries, to the Hawaiian Islands and other sections, which, from their location, should be the natural markets of American manufacturers. In the countries which have been named jute bagging is used for the shipment of sugar, coffee, rice, borax, ores, etc. Under the present conditions of our tariff laws foreign manufacturers of jute bagging can send their products to San Francisco, where they are received in bond and thence distributed to the various countries in which there may exist a demand.

In the above estimates of savings to the farmer from the passage of Mills bill the miscellaneous items, amounting to $20, include savings on farming implement, wagons, shoeing of horses and mules, decreased cost of transportation which should ensue because of the reduced cost of rice for feed in etc.

If the farmers understand the effect of the tariff on their condition they will put in some direct form their demand for the passage of the Mills bill. One hundred thousand postal card requests for a vote in favor of the Mills bill sent to members of the senate and house would hurry it through.
