A REPUBLICAN MANUFACTURER'S VIEW.

Free Raw Materials Are an Essential Element of Protection.

Arthur T. Lyman, is one of the largest woolen manufacturers of Boston, and is both a protectionist and a Republican, but he regards free raw materials as absolutely essential to the protection of both manufacturers and labor. When called upon by the finance committee of the Holyoke Republican Club for a contribution, he answered as follows:

"OFFICE OF THE HADLEY COMPANY, BOSTON, July 13, 1888.

"To the Chairman of the Finance Committee of the Holyoke Republican Club.

"I have yours of the 12th, asking for a contribution for the Republican Club. I am, of course, deeply interested in the tariff as regards the Hadley Company, and also in its bearing on many other cotton and woolen manufactures in which I am interested, but in my opinion the Republican members of Congress from New England and the 'Home Market Club' and the 'Woolen Manufacturers' Association' have practically done more harm to the cause of protection and to the protected (so-called) industries of Massachusetts than the Democratic members of the ways and means committee.

"I have had occasion to see some of the Democratic members of the ways and means committee and to hear of the plans and view of others, and I am convinced that but for the action of the Republican members of Congress from New England we could have had in the Mills bill satisfactory schedules for woolens and cottons.

"As it is, at the request of some manufacturers (Republican), made through the Democratic members from Massachusetts, the Democrats of the ways and means committee altered and advanced rates on some important items, while we were met, I am informed, by Republican members of the House saying: 'Leave the schedule as it is; it is better for the election.'

"The Republicans now refuse to aid in putting raw materials on the freelist, and certainly in New England free raw material has been considered as an element in protection almost as essential as the duty on the manufactured article.

"From my business experience in both importing and manufacturing I am fully aware of the necessity of protection for the maintenance here of certain manufacturers, and I very much regret that the Republican party, with which I have acted from its beginning, has, for political success, taken a position which I consider hostile in its practical effects to the protected industries of Massachusetts.

"The Democratic members of the ways and means committee take broad and, on the whole, reasonable views of the tariff question, and while of course they look at the interest of the United States as a whole they do not ignore the fact that many great industries have grown up in this country under the high duties made necessary by the war of the rebellion, and that it is only fair and proper that consideration should be paid their existence and condition. Neither do they ignore the fact that the work people in the protected industries are very largely members of the Democratic party.

"Besides the consideration that my manufacturing interests have been put at needless risk by the partisan action of the Republicans, I must also take into consideration the interests of the whole country, in which we are all involved, and I cannot feel it to be right to vote for any one who can honestly stand on the Republican platform—most of the Republicans with whom I have spoken about it have told me that they had not read it. I can readily believe that it would be disagreeable reading to Republicans who in the past have, in all honesty, desired to have raw materials and food products on the free list. But the exigencies of practical politics have forced the party into a false position as regards the tariff, and into many other unwise and dangerous relations in regard to the domestic and foreign affairs of the country.

"There is practically no party in this country in favor of free trade in any reasonable sense of the term, and it is as unfair to call the Mills bill a free trade bill as it is to say that the Republicans are in favor of the free drinking of whiskey, because the manufacturers of protected articles have for several years insisted that all internal taxes should be taken off, in order that it should be impossible to alter the duties on imports.

"While the Mills bill is not a bill that wholly commends itself to me, it is correct and for the interest of Massachusetts in many particulars, notably in the matter of free wool. Every manufacturing country in the world of any consequence, except the United States, has wool on the free list.

"The position that the Republican party has taken makes it well for the country, as it seems to me that it should not have the control of the government for the next four years.

LAST OF THE SEASON.

Pennsylvania Railroad Excursions to the Jersey Coast.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company's ten-day excursions to the Jersey coast have been enjoyed by hundreds of people this summer. The liberal limit of the tickets, the wide range of popular resorts from which a choice could be made, and the exceptional facilities for reaching the shore have left nothing to be desired. The last of the series will be run on Thursday, August 23d. This date covers the high-water mark of the seashore season. All the resorts will be in their best feather, and the cool, fresh breezes which may be enjoyed there during the torrid heat of the dog days would be sufficient justification for going, even if the bathing were not at its best, the fishing fine, and the other attractions numberless.

The tickets as heretofore embrace Cape May, Atlantic City, Sea Isle City. They will be good for ten days, and will sold from Pittsburg at $10.00 and at the rates quoted below from other points. The special train on the main line connecting by regular trains from the branches will run on following schedule:

The party will rest in Philadelphia the night of the 23d, and proceed to the seashore by any regular train of the succeeding day. The tickets will be good to return by any regular within ten days, except New York and Chicago Limited.

Killed By A Rattlesnake.

While two boys, Jackson Moore and John Harvey, aged about 17 years, were hunting squirrels across the river from Memphis, Tennessee, they discovered a large rattlesnake coiled upon a rock apparently asleep. Moore said he would capture the snake alive. He crept up to the deadly rattler, and, by a quick movement, caught it firmly below the head and held it at arms length in triumph. Suddenly the snake coiled itself around the boy's arm. He became frightened and attempted to throw it off, when the reptile struck him on the neck, its fangs became fastened in the flesh. The unfortunate victim screamed with horror, and, grasping the snake with both hands, tore it loose and flung it to the ground. He fell to the earth in a swoon, while his terrified friend fled for assistance. The nearest house was two miles distant, and when help arrived the poor lad was past help and died in agony. The snake was found coiled close by, and when killed measured four feet nine inches, and had eighteen rattles.

The New York Press is regarded as the special representative of the American system. Robert P. Potter, its editor, was born in England. Harry W. Oliver, of Pittsburgh, claims to be the author of the tariff plank adopted this year at Chicago. Oliver was born in Ireland. John Jarrett is the agent employed by the manufacturers to teach the "American system" to the workmen. He was born in Wales. The men are shouting for the "American system" and the "American party" are, in almost every instance, natives of foreign countries.

From the New York Times, [Rep.] we glean the following: "The view of an intelligent workmen's representative on the tariff is expressed by the Hon. Henry Smith, member of Congress of Wisconsin. He was elected on a labor platform, and voted for the Mills bill for the following reasons: 1st. 'Because it tends to reduce the surplus, for which the Republicans proposed nothing. 2d.

Because it frees from taxation such necessities of life and materials of industry as salt, lumber, tin, and wool. He believes that the former ought to be as cheap as possible, and of the latter he says: 'My personal experience has taught me that cheap raw material never reduced wages in a manufactory, but on the contrary, had a tendency to raise them.' 3rd. Because he does 'not believe that a nation can be made prosperous or happy by taxation, and a large accumulation of money in the treasury breeds extravagance, and becomes a factor of demoralization in many ways; it is in its action like malaria; it enters the system slyly until the whole body is poisoned.' And Mr. Smith says finally: 'In conclusion I will say that between taking the tariff off the necessities of life and the internal revenue tax off tobacco and whisky, I shall vote for the former every time I get a chance. Cheap tobacco and whisky means more demoralization and drunkenness, and I cannot give consent to such a measure.' There is really no answer to this argument, and the more the workmen study the question the more surely they will reach Mr. Smith's conclusions.'

The Philadelphia Press and perhaps the Pittsburgh Commercial Gazette, will pay double rates for the names of occupations residences &c of Democratic floggers. That is not only a strong inducement to local correspondents but also to Democratic floggers. But stick close to the truth youthful correspondent even though the rates are double.

Mr. HARRISON of Indianapolis continues his handseaking and his little speeches with apparent contentment, or at least without apparent discontent. It is already reported in Washington that the action of the Senate Committee of Finance on the tariff bill will largely depend on the advice that may be given by Mr. Blaine when he arrives next week. But no one has happened to think of consultation Mr. Harrison on this subject, or, indeed, on any others. For this Mr. Harrison himself is somewhat to blame. He made haste very imprudently to declare his absolute acceptance of the platform. The senate can do nothing without spitting on the platform. He was rash enough to talk about the surplus and to declare in effect that the Republicans need not do anything on that subject until they had possession of the government. He has also declared in favor of subsidies. In these circumstances it is not at all to be wondered at that Mr. Harrison is not consulted by the Senators, who can do nothing at all except in opposition to his declared views. Mr. Harrison, in fact seems to be getting about all the attention he deserves.
