Activity on the Trains.

The passengers on every train nowadays have no trouble in killing time and the newsboys on the train complain that business is made unusually dull for them by the political discussions which are continually going on among the passengers.

The News in California.

SAN FRANCISCO, October 1.—President Cleveland's approval of the Chinese exclusion bill was received here today with a marked degree of interest. Large crowds congregated around the newspaper bulletin boards and discussed the situation.

Victimised by Ticket Forgers.

CHICAGO, October 1.—A local paper says: Weeping and gnashing of teeth are heard among the railroad ticket brokers. They have been victimized to the tune of $4,000 or $5,000 by two clever forgers, one a fine-looking man and the other a remarkably handsome woman.

money. A visit was then paid to the other brokers' offices. Out of the one hundred and odd in the city, nearly every one had been victimized to the extent of two or five tickets. The woman in all cases accompanied the man, and when more than two tickets were offered the swimmer explained that he was accompanied by his son or sons. The ticket is a very clever imitation of those issued by the Illinois Central.

Nearly Drowned in a Well.

There was an accident early yesterday morning at the residence of Martin Greenleaf, on the Kettle road, above Crawford avenue, that came near being attended by fatal results. Jacob Greenleaf, aged 10, went out to water the horses, and his sister Irene, aged 15, went along to help draw the water. The pump being broken and it being necessary to fall back on the primitive method of the rope and bucket. The flooring had been partially removed from the well, and the girl stepped back and fell into the well which contains eight feet of water.

He Got the Job.

When Amos Cummings arrived in New York, after the war, he had a most excellent opportunity to be a tramp. All he possessed besides a job lot of ragged clothes on his back was 30 cents worth of postage stamps badly glued together. He wore a pair of battered cavalry boots and about three-quarters of a pair of trousers.

"No place for you," squeaked Greeley, without turning from his desk to look at the applicant, "don't you see I'm busy? G'way! See! Damit!" "But I tell you I must have a job," Mr. Greeley turned around his revolving chair, and glaring at Cummings, said: "Must? For what reason young man, do you say must?"

"For this reason," replied Amos, turning his back on Mr. Greeley, lifting the drapery of his old blue overcoat and exhibiting the vacant places where the wild wind whistled through his trousers. He got the job.—J. Arnoy Knox.

A Double Tragedy.

St. Louis, October 1.—Jacob Heber, aged 50, a basket maker residing at No. 1008 Chambers street shot and killed his wife and then committed suicide. Two weeks ago Heber, struck his wife for asking him for money, and his step son gave him a thrashing for it. Heber, left the house, but returned, and shortly after three shots were heard. Neighbors rushed in and found Mrs. Heber, dead on the bed-room floor, while her body, with a bullet hold through the heart, was found lying in the hallway.

Raising the Price of Bread in Chicago.

Chicago, October 1.—Many retail bread-dealers in this city have raised the price one cent a loaf owing to the continued advance in wheat and the consequent increase in the price of flour. The probabilities are that the price will be put up another notch. A reporter interviewed one of the wholesalers as to what action the wholesale dealers would take if the price of wheat continue to go up. He said: "There has been no increase by wholesale dealers yet, but if flour should continue to advance we will have to meet the rise."

A Tribute to a Just Judge.

The Republican Judicial Conference of the Clinton, Elk and Cameron district met on Friday last and by the following resolutions endorsed Judge Mayer of Clinton.

WHEREAS, The Republican county conventions of the counties comprising the 25th Judicial district that appointed the conferees here assembled failed to recommend for nomination any person as a candidate for Judge of the district; and

WHEREAS, We believe it is the earnest desire of the Republicans of this district to keep the Judicial office as far removed as practicable from political contests and influences; and

WHEREAS, The majority party in the district has put in nomination for that high office, Hon. Charles A. Mayer, who for twenty years has filled that position, and who by his learning, ability and knowledge of law and the facility and rapidity with which he dispatches the business of the courts, has evidenced his fitness for the place. Therefore,

Resolved, That we refrain from nominating a candidate for this district, believing that in so doing we reflect the sentiment of the majority of those we here represent.

There are a few judges in the state who have by their ability and fairness broken down party lines and raised the judiciary above partisan politics and Judge Mayer is one. It is a grand tribute and one richly deserved.

—Perlestein received a big lot of new goods this morning and when we passed was busy opening boxes.

PRACTICAL HINTS.

About Road Horses by Professor Hadley. A gentleman's road horse should never weigh more than 1050 pounds. He should be 15 1/2 hands high with a long range neck and a broad, flat arm. This kind of horse should be watered before breakfast. He should then be well groomed, and should have four quarts of sifted oats for breakfast and dinner and two quarts with about ten pounds of hay for supper. He should be well groomed before retiring for the night and the legs should be bandaged. Road horses receiving this attention will live from twenty to 25 years without having a day's sickness. Every horse should walk two squares from the stable before he is put to actual speed. In the months of June, July and August, a horse that is driven over ten miles should have his mouth sponged out and given a bucket of water. No horse after a long drive should be watered or fed until two hours after he is in the stable.

—The republicans opened their campaign in the State on Saturday with mass meetings in every County and in all the cities of the State. In point of numbers, brass bands, fire works and stimulants the meeting here was a success. Seven or eight bands made night hideous while the boom of cannon crackers, the glare of red and blue lights and the shooting of rockets enlivened the diamond. Inside the Court House Wilbur F. Reeder assisted by a little army of Vice presidents and secretaries presided over a meeting addressed by Ex-Lieut. Gov. Stone. Mr. Stone's voice was not strong enough to fill the room and those in the back seats could not hear him. The gentleman as a speaker was disappointing and was either not well posted on his subject or did not believe in what he said. There was besides a woeful lack of argument, a forcedness about his talk that was apparent to everybody. Outside of bare assertions of time worn fallacies on the tariff Mr. Stone's speech consisted in abuse of president Cleveland and the democratic party. Mr. Harrison's name was not mentioned but once in his speech and then elicited no applause, while the mention of the name of the plumed knight met with a hearty response. Not once did he refer to the importation and employment of foreign cheap labor by the men who are crying for protection to American labor. The surplus he would spend in the purchase of bonds not yet due and on every hundred dollars of which the holder demands $20 premium. If Gov. Stone was to present the issues of the campaign he failed to do so. After the close of his speech which was when the court room had become almost vacant except the four bands and the people within the bar and in around the railing. John G. Love was called upon to make a speech. Mr. Love is perhaps the best speaker the republicans have in the County, but it is a noticeable fact that he is always called upon for a speech at the tail end of the meeting and when some one else has tired out the crowd, this was the case on Saturday night and John did not propose to talk to empty benches. His speech was very brief. Outside the crowd of men, women and babies enjoyed the bands and the fire works. As a display the meeting was a success. And our republican friends are doubtless satisfied with it.

—A good one comes to us through the Amateur Theatrical entertainment. A certain young gentleman of town who it is reported does not agree with the tariff doctrines of his party, and who will it is said vote for Cleveland, was one of the principal characters in the play. The gentleman had to "propose" to several ladies during the course of the evening and one of them made up her mind to interject something not found in the play, at a most critical point. John heard of it in some way but had not the slightest idea what it was or where it would come in, so while he was forewarned he was not exactly fore-armed. Everything went smoothly until the young man on his knees begged the lady to become the queen of his heart. The lady with queenly pride drew back and scornfully exclaimed: "Thinkest thou I would wed with one of your political proclivities?" This brought the house down with rounds of applause and the lady had scored a point on John. But John was equal to the occasion. "What exclaimed he, reject me, and thus miss the only opportunity you will ever have of becoming mistress of the White House? This brilliant repartee brought the house down the second time. It was a very pretty piece of by-play on both sides, and of course in good humor. The reply of John is as delicate and refined a piece of repartee as one will run across in a years reading, and the story too good to keep. All parties concerned as well as the audience enjoyed the little diamond cut diamond contest.

—The Daily News thus comments on the Daily Democrat of Lock Haven. "The editor of the Lock Haven Daily Democrat must imagine that the case, so far as Mr. Cleveland's party is concerned, is exceedingly desperate. He fills even the local columns with political stuff. In the columns from which we clip this we find no less than seven political 'locals'. What is the matter with the News. Seemst us there's flies on Bailey.

—Judge Munson is in attendance at special court.

"Chestnuts" are ripe.

—For variety the past three days has done very well in the weather line. Some fickle female must be at the crank of the machine that grinds out that articles.

—The Methodist festival was well patronized on Saturday evening although it was very cold for the patrons. We have not heard what the proceeds amounted to.

—Will Perlestein returned from Philadelphia on Saturday evening where he had been purchasing his fall and winter stock. He will announce his grand opening shortly.

—We acknowledge the receipt of the Connoisseur the art journal published by Bailey, Banks and Biddle, of Philadelphia the number is very interesting and elegantly illustrated.

—Jno. C. Johnston and Mr. McCroly, of Snow Shoe, dropped into our sanctum this morning. Both are intelligent, well posted sportsmen and have taken upon themselves the duties of American citizenship.

—The Record says Gen. Hastings plucked the American Eagle at Philadelphia on Saturday night. Its a little rough on the eagle to have big Dan pull its tail feathers, but Dan's eagle may turn into a crow before the campaign is over.

—Jonas Walker of Wolf's Store, dropped in while in town, paid his respects to us socially and financially and we are correspondingly happy. It don't take much to make a printer happy. The smallest bit settled brings a healthy color to his cheek.

—The Republicans are very modest in their estimated majority in Pennsylvania. Our friend Reeder says 100,000 and Gov. Stone says a larger majority than Blair received. We haven't seen Lawrence Brown yet but suppose he is away up in the clouds with his figures too.

—We read in your paper, that H. H. Grimm caught an eel weighing 3 pounds. William Troup caught an eel that weighed 6 pounds. Who can beat it?

—Middleburg News Item. And Bill Shoop, of this place, caught an eel that weighed—well, it weighed.

—Miss Elizabeth Truth, of Ayr township, Fulton county, died recently under peculiar circumstances. A cat inflicted a wound with its claws so slight as not to draw blood and scarcely visible to the eye. But it immediately became so painful that she took to her bed and blood poisoning ensued, terminating fatally.

—The Coalport Standard tells of how a young man named Dillen was working with a shotgun while his grandmother was working a machine in an adjoining room. The old lady had occasion to leave the room and during her absence the weapon was discharged, the contents passing through a door and out of the window at which she had been sitting. The young man fainted when he learned how near he had come to killing his grandmother.

—The art of kissing has been reduced from its position of a "fine art" to a "lost art" on the part of the masculine kisser. There is none of that delicacy of touch, that calm deliberation, that careful searching for the right spot, that characterizes the imprint of the feminine kiss that sends the blood tinkling through your body and your soul into realms of momentary bliss. The masculine kiss is a vigorous explosive, just as likely to be implanted on the nose or ear as on the lips and with a concussion that disarranges bangs, untunes the fine strings of the soul and send discord ringing through every nerve and fibre of your being. The intent of the masculine kiss is deliberate enough, but the actuality is an accident. A man should never kiss until he has deliberated for an hour. In that event he might approach the subject with the proper conception of its awful responsibility.

A Miss.

—A most entertaining entertainment was given at the residence of Isiah Clark on Thomas street Monday night by local and foreign talent. The program, which was carefully prepared, consisted of select readings, recitations and a very good play entitled the "Gypsy's Warning;" also some very fine music—both instrumental and vocal. The principal actors were Miss Lizzie Golden, of Conshohocken, Pa., the Herkimer sisters, Emma and Elsie, of this place, and Mr. Brown, of Philadelphia. At the conclusion of the performance refreshments were served, after which all departed for their homes highly pleased with the evening's entertainment. The entertainment was given in honor of Mr. Joseph Clark, who departed for Ottawa, Ill., Tuesday, to accept a position in a glass factory. Joe will be very much missed by his young associates in this place, and they are a unit in wishing him great success in his new field of labor.

—There is every prospect of there being an abundant nut crop this fall, and with the early fallings of the frost an abundance of chestnuts, hickory nuts, walnuts and hazelnuts may be found in the woods and barrens. The season has been very favorable for all kinds of nuts, particularly chestnuts, and they will be more plentiful than for a number of years.

—We are requested to state that the school directors of this place will be pleased to have any information concerning contagious diseases in the homes of any children attending the public schools. Diphtheria has again made its appearance in our midst, and it is the purpose of the directors to do all in their power to prevent its spreading.

—Arrangements are being made for the annual inspection of the Pennsylvania system of railroads. The inspection of the Pennsylvania Railroad will begin about the middle of this month. President Roberts, General Manager Pugh, General Superintendent Pettit and other general officers are expected to go to Pittsburg and go over every mile of track operated by the company.

—Rosa Wise, a young girl of Meridan, Miss., had five cents given her as a joke for a birthday present. She bought a yard of calico with it and made a sun-bonnet, which she sold for forty cents. This she invested in more calico, made it up, sold the garments and reinvested the capital until she had ten dollars. With this she bought potatoes, planted them, paid for the cultivation of her crop, for gathering and carting to town, and made fifty dollars clean profit.

—Scott McCormick, an engineer on the Pennsylvania Railroad, attempted to get on his engine as it was moving out of the round house at East Conemaugh, Tuesday of last week, and was caught between the engine and the door frame of the building, and so badly injured as to result in his death. He had intended giving up railroading in a short time and move out to a farm which he had recently purchased.

—Jennie Arnold, aged 16 years, of Linesville, Crawford county, eloped with Will Truesdale, of Jamestown, N. Y. Old man Arnold had Mr. T. arrested for abduction, but when Truesdale offered the angry father $15 to call it square the latter promptly assented and called his daughter to receive the parental blessing. When the young bride learned that her father valued her at only $15 she indignantly refused to be reconciled.

—The Canal Dover Reviewer is an independent paper, but to satisfy all classes of his many readers Editor Scott is giving several columns of political matter weekly favorable to all parties—Republican, Democrat, Prohibition, Labor, etc. No need of his readers taking any other paper to keep posted on political affairs.

—The last legislature passed an appropriation of $50,000 for furnishing the State reformatory at Huntingdon but as no appropriation was made for maintenance of inmates, it is not probable that the institution will be thrown open to the reception of the state's proscribed wards until after a suitable appropriation for this purpose has been made.

—A man in Trenton, New Jersey, was recently drowned in a beer glass. He had been drinking hard, and was well under alcoholic influence, when he entered a saloon and ordered a glass of beer, which was brought him. He sat down at a table and fell into a stupor his head dropping forward into the glass before him. When the barkeeper tried to arouse him half an hour later, it was found that he was dead, his nose being immersed in the liquor in such a way that respiration was completely stopped.

—The cause of most trouble is strong drink. There is not a young man in this community who has disgraced himself, his parents and friends who cannot attribute his misfortune to the too frequent use of intoxicating liquors. The lesson learned by many should be the means of saving others from the same fate. Young men who are sober will in almost every case be gentlemen in every sense and they will have the respect and confidence of their neighbors; their lives will be less troublesome and they will be better off for being sober in every sense.

—J. M. Kissinger, conductor of the Millin local freight, met with an accident this morning which may result fatally. About three o'clock he was ordered to run his train across the river at Mapleton to the sand works, for the purpose of taking on some additional cars. While backing down the sand works struck him on the back of the head, knocking him to the floor of the car. He was brought to Huntingdon and placed under the care of the company's physician, Dr. D. G. Miller, when it was found he had received a severe concussion of the brain. Conductor Kissinger was placed on day express and taken to his home in Millin.

—Mechanics are often addicted to what can only be called awkwardness. In getting at a new or strange piece of work, some men make so much fuss and appear at such poor advantage, that surprise is expressed that such an incompetent man should be employed. Most of this awkwardness or "fumbling" could well be avoided by the man if he would only see himself as others see him. His attention is too much taken up by some detail of the matter, and he does not comprehend the whole amount of his work. A thorough mechanic gives a thing a thorough thinking over before he proceeds to execute any work. If the awkward mechanic would learn to think more he would appear to much greater advantage, and would be worth more money to his employer.

How He Keeps a Girl.

A young married man who has been having the usual varied and trying experience in keeping a hired girl hit upon the following plan. He went out on the street and approached several fellows asking them whether they had girls or not, finally he struck a fellow who had. Now said the young married man I have a very comfortable house well furnished and everything in good style. If you bring your girl to my house I will pay her good wages and you must come not less than three nights per week. You can stay as long as you please and enjoy yourself but don't break up the furniture or wake the baby. I will pay the girl each week. Then he set 'em up to the young man with the girl, and went home to his wife happy. The new girl arrived promptly on time.

A Boy Missing.

The Williamsport Item says that a lad named George Robenald, has mysteriously disappeared from his home on Almond street, that city, and his mother is much concerned about him. He is 12 years of age and wore a dark suit of clothes.

Rough on Feldler.

To the Editor of the Gazette: "Don't be deluded then by the cry of 'free whiskey' into the belief that to abolish the internal revenue tax will lessen the restriction laws against the traffic." J. W. GEHARTH.

—That business this fall will brisk is not questioned by those posted, as an evidence of the great volume of business now being transacted, the Pennsylvania railroad company with its magnificent equipment finds itself unable to furnish cars enough for its trade. 1500 freight cars are being built to supply the demand and all the rolling stock is being run at high pressure. Alarmists can not frighten the business men of the country by the absurd cry of "free trade." The people have confidence in the administration of Mr. Cleveland, and business moves on as it has for the past three years. Honest consumption never injures business.

—Pay your taxes. You have but a short time to do it in. The 6th of Oct., is the last day on which you can qualify yourself to vote by the payment of tax.
