SHAMOKIN, Pa., Jan. 12.—Matthew Williams, of Lykens, and William McCarthy, of this city, engaged in a prize fight in the outskirts of this city yesterday afternoon, London prize ring rules, for a purse of $100. One hundred and two rounds were fought, in which both men were terribly battered up. The battle commenced at 1 o'clock and ended at 6 p. m. The referee decided the victory to Williams on account of a foul. The fight was witnessed by twenty people.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., Jan. 12.—A horrible murder occurred near Stony Point, in the northern end of this county. A party of men and boys from the neighborhood had gone up in the evening to serenade Mr. Charles Cressler, who had recently been married. A quarrel took place among some of the serenaders, and afterwards, one of the young men, named Peter Rhone, was waylaid on his way home by Charles Meredith. After Meredith had knocked Rhone down he tramped and kicked him almost to a jelly. The crowd then interfered, and Rhone was carried to his home, where he died soon after. Meredith was arrested and lodged in jail.

St. MARY'S, Pa., Jan. 12.—Louis Vollmer, founder of this village, and for many years a prominent banker and lumber operator here, died on Tuesday last, aged 70 years.

LANCASTER, Pa., Jan. 14.—J. M. Johnston, for twenty years connected with the Intelligence, of this city, died in Carlisle, aged 64. He was well known in newspaper circles of this state. Mr. Johnston was a lieutenant in the late rebellion. Four children survive him.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 9.—The coroner's inquiry into the revolting murder of Antoine F. Schilling was heard and resulted in the rendering of the following verdict: "We find that Anton Schilling came to his death from injuries inflicted by some blunt instrument in the hands of Jacob Schroop, and also find that Wilhelmina Schroop, alias Richter, was accessory before the fact." Schroop and his alleged wife were both taken to prison.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 9.—A circular signed by General Master Workman Powderly and the general executive board of the Knights of Labor has been sent out to the recording secretary of every lodge assembly in the order. In a few words it is to the effect that all lapsed locals can be reinstated without the payment of their back dues or the fees necessary to the procuring of a new charter.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 9.—Abraham Marquis and Isaac Marquis, jewelers, No. 145 North Eighth street, trading under the firm name of A. Marquis & Brother, have made an assignment to Morris M. Newman. They place their liabilities between $20,000 and $25,000. Their assets could not be arrived at.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Jan. 10.—The Daily Newsdealer republishes Red Nosed Mike's confession in full. He says: "Met McClure at Flanigan sixty yards from the scene of the murder. McClure said, 'Hello, I said nothing. When the carriage passed me I walked quietly behind, so as to be well up when the firing commenced. McClure was killed first, by Bevinino. Villala stood further up the road and shot Flanagan, killing him instantly. The horse ran away, and we thought we had lost the money, but Bevinino, who is a good runner, caught up with the horse and shot him. Villala got scared when he killed Flanagan, and threw down the gun and fled through the woods. I and Bevinino took the sachel out of the buggy and escaped through the woods. We would have killed Contractor McFadden had he come on the scene. One man would not have stopped our work. My accomplices are now in Italy." The correct names of the murderers are Michael Rizzolo, alias Red Nosed Mike, Giuseppe Bevinino and Vincenzo Villala.

BELLEVILLE, Pa., Jan. 10.—District Assembly No. 229, Knights of Labor, embodying assemblies in Clinton, Clearfield and Center counties, in convention discussed the proposed union with District Assembly No. 151, composed of Blair, Huntingdon and Centre counties.

MANY CALAMITIES.

Destructive Work of a Cyclone in Pennsylvania.

OVER 100 VICTIMS AT READING.

Grimshaw & Bros. Silk Mill, at Reading, Collapses Upon Several Hundred Operatives—A New Seven Story Building Collapses at Pittsburg, Killing Workmen and Crushing Adjoining Houses—Lists of the Dead, Wounded and Missing.

READING, Pa., Jan. 10.—A cyclone struck this city shortly after 5 o'clock in the afternoon, demolishing a number of buildings, including Grimshaw & Bros. large silk mill. In the latter were upwards of 300 operatives, who were buried in the ruins, and many were killed.

When the cyclone first struck Reading the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad company's paint shop was unroofed, and in less than ten minutes the entire structure was enveloped in flames. Several gas chambers underneath the passenger cars exploded, and four persons were killed and several others badly hurt.

The storm then continued eastward, dealing out destruction in its path. Nine dwellings on North Eighth and Marion streets were unroofed and otherwise badly damaged. The cyclone cut a swath of about 250 feet, and everything in its way was either leveled to the ground or very badly wrecked. The next building in its track was the immense silk mill of Grimshaw & Bros., located at the corner of Marion streets. This building was with several hundred operatives, and not a single soul escaped uninjured. The structure, which was four stories high and 250 by 70 feet, is one mass of ruins. Not a single brick remains of the beautiful building except the stock and engine room.

The fire department was called out and 10,000 men, women and children quickly assembled about the wrecked mill. The cries of the wounded and dying and their friends were heartrending. Willing hands, however, quickly set to work and in a short time some seventy persons had been taken out. Twelve of these were dead, and many fatally injured. Those who were less seriously hurt were taken to their homes, while those who received more serious injuries were taken to the hospital.

READING, Pa., Jan. 11.—These are the saddest days that Reading has ever experienced. Everywhere there is desolation and mourning. The black crape, denoting death, is suspended from the doors of nearly two score of houses. The ruins of the Reading silk mill disaster, by which over 175 young lady employees were buried under an avalanche of SEARCH FOR BODIES IN THE READING MILL. Brick, mortar, timber and heavy machinery, were surrounded by fully 10,000 people all day long.

The Reading artists were finally called out to keep the crowd back. The total death loss is not so large as at first reported, but it is bad enough.

The business men of Reading subscribed $5,000 for the sufferers, and a great deal more is promised.

The storm cloud tore all through the Lebanon valley before reaching Reading. It laid everything low in its path. Houses and barns were unroofed, and when it struck Reading it was at its greatest fury.

The complete list of the killed is: D. K. Becker, Sallie Harrison, Annie Fisher, Daisy Brecker, George Nisman, Millie Christman, Ella Ridner, Henry Krocker, Eva Leeds, Annie Ridner, Lottie Saylor, Mary Evans, May Fitzpatrick, Ella Long, William Robson, John Reber, Sophia Winkelman, Sallie Dickel, Barbara Seibehner, Sallie Bickel, Sadie Shade, William Snyder, Lillie Schaefer, Sallie Faust, Sallie Harner, Annie Kersner, Matilda Grow and Emma Nestor.

The seriously injured are: Laura Wright, Rose Clemmer, Rebecca Poush, Salini Taylor, Emma Blum, Mammie Kinsey, Katie Hepler, Howard Brecker, Annie Brecker, Sallie Young, Mary Reese, Kate Hartman, Sallie Hasson, Ella and Jennie Salome, Kate Casen, Bertha Kuser, Annie Leeds, Annie Fry and Emma Ranzenahn.

About ninety others were slightly hurt, principally bruised by being thrown from the building by the wind.

Those who escaped early in the evening hurried to their homes, and as nothing was heard from them it was thought they had been buried in the ruins. All of them reported to the superintendent yesterday.

When the crash occurred Foreman Haspock was on the second floor. He told a reporter that he heard the cracking of timber over his head, and then a lot of brick and mortar fell on him. The next instant the floor beneath him sank. His first impression was that an earthquake had occurred, and he did not realize what had happened until he found himself in the rain and unable to move.

When the cyclone struck the building some of the girls were lifted up and carried bodily through the air by the violence of the wind. Among these were Annie Carl and Abbie Rasmiller. The latter was blown through the window and carried fifty feet into the adjoining field, but was not injured.

Three of the girls jumped from the second story window and escaped without injury. They could not tell how they got out. Another operative on the third floor fell out with the east wall, and landed on the opposite side of the street. Beyond a few bruises she escaped injury.

Some horrible scenes were witnessed during the search for the bodies. One young woman was wedged in between two upright timbers, her clothes having been all torn from her body. Another, when dragged out, clutched a pair of shears in her hand. It is supposed that when she was stricken she was in the act of cutting something. The shears were wrested from her hand with difficulty.

as that of Lillie Schaefer. The body of another young lady, Miss Sallie Faust, was identified by rings worn on the third finger of the left hand. When the crash came Maggie Rowe, aged 18, had the presence of mind to get under a machine, and in this way saved her life.

Following is a correct list of the killed and injured at the Philadelphia and Reading paint shop, which was struck by a cyclone, and the men enveloped in flames by the explosion of the gas chambers in nine passenger cars:

Killed—Allan Landenbarger, head, legs and arms missing; John Foreman, crushed to death; John U. Kahler, carpenter, head crushed; Sheridan Jones, burned to death; George A. Schaefer, legs burned off.

Injured—George Knab, seriously; Aaron Dewald, arm broken. The loss to the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad company by the burning of its paint shop and passenger cars is probably $65,000, and to the silk mill and machinery about $110,000.

READING, Jan. 12.—Everything is quiet around the silk mill. The debris has been thoroughly searched, and the last body taken out. The dead by the storm in this place number twenty-three, eighteen killed by the falling down of the silk mill and five burned to death in the paint shop. Besides these the injured number about ninety. Some of these will probably die.

DISASTERS AT PITTSBURG.

A Big New Building Falls Upon the Workmen and Neighboring Houses.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 10.—There was an awful catastrophe at 12:35 yesterday afternoon. The high wind that struck the city at that hour completely demolished the large brick building in process of construction in Diamond alley, immediately in the rear of Weldin & Co.'s store. The building had been completed to the seventh story. It is a complete wreck, and as it went down it crushed the barber shop next to it. The falling debris with several hundred operatives, and a store, the front of which was knocked out. The floor of the store is full of debris. Five men are known to have been killed and ten to fifteen injured. There were at least twenty men working on the new building. The rear of all the stores on Wood street as far up as the hat store of Paulson Bros. were wrecked.

Six men were in the barber shop. Two have been recovered alive, two are dead and two are still under the debris. There were at least fifteen printers in the rear of Weldin & Company's store, on the second floor, and many of them were badly injured. As fast as they could be brought out they were carried on stretchers to the various hospitals. One man on top of the new building fell into the basement. His skull was fractured and both legs were broken. The firemen and police at once went to rescue the victims or their dead bodies from the ruins.

At the time the whirlwind struck the building most of the men were on the first floor, it being dinner hour, and were sitting around the fire eating.

The whole rear of J. A. Gallinger's chinaware store was crushed in.

Every few seconds during the afternoon pitiful cries would come from under the mass of wood and brick, and encouraging shouts would go up from the crowd. The sight was heartrending, and moved many to tears in the midst of their work of rescue.

There is nothing left standing but the rear wall and part of the side toward Market street. Toward Wood street there is nothing left but a mass of broken brick and shattered timbers.

The signal officer says the wind storm or hurricane was the most severe we have had in this section in years. Its suddenness made it particularly destructive and harder to withstand than the wind risen gradually. The velocity was forty miles an hour, and the storm lasted but ten minutes.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 10.—This is the record of the disastrous collapse of J. C. Willey's seven story business house in the hurricane:

Taken out dead, 9; dead still in the ruins, 2; fatally injured, 7; seriously injured, 24; slightly injured, 15; known missing, 9; total number dead, 14; total number affected, 67; missing, supposed under ruins, 20; total, 87.

Sixty-seven persons had been removed from the ruins. The list of dead follows: Thomas Jones, aged 30 years, bricklayer, single, Allegheny; George Mason, skull crushed; John Hill, 15 years old, colored boy, employed as a bootblack in barber shop; Charles Fritch, 16 years old, employed in barber shop, found standing in the shop with a sponge in his hand; Samuel Stringer, 16 years old, printer in Juergens' office, lived in Allegheny; Dr. James L. Read, 81 years old, lived at Allegheny, entombed in the Weldin building; heard groaning in the afternoon, but it was impossible to save him; William Gottman, 17 years old, employed as clerk in Thomas' leather store, imprisoned in falling walls; Joseph Gehring, 16 years old, Allegheny; John Rodgers, carpenter, house at Castle Shannon; George McGowan, single; Samuel Brown, aged 30, carpenter, Allegheny; John Donnelly, bricklayer, Nursery Hill; Richard Carroll, bricklayer, Allegheny; Leonard Schiffner, bricklayer. The body of Samuel Brown, Jr., a young carpenter, was taken out of the cellar of the Willey building. His head was crushed to a jelly, his body doubled, with his hands up to his head. A wheelbarrow which he had been using was alongside of him. A young man was at the spot where he was killed when the body was taken out. Said he, with the tears trickling down his face: "I just missed what my brother Sam got, because I was sick. I wasn't working, and that's how I escaped."

In addition it is stated by Assistant Chief Steel, of the fire department, that as many as twenty others may be still under the fallen structures. Others express a fear that several ladies who were in Weldin's book store when the crash came did not escape, while some entertain a fear that some unknown men are lying dead in Spencer's alley, which is filled with great piles of brick and timber.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 12.—Five dead bodies were yesterday taken on the ruins of the buildings wrecked by Wednesday's tempest. Just before daylight the remains of the venerable Dr. James L. Read were lifted from the timbers and debris of Weldin & Co.'s bookstore. By his side was the chair he used, indicating that he must have been sitting at his desk.

Scenarists Who Succeed Themselves. LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 15.—The Republicans of the state legislature in caucus unanimously nominated Senator Manderson for reelection to the United States senate. Hon. THE HOUSE DEADLOCK BROKEN.

Weaver Yielded to His Colleagues—Fresh Fish Taken Off the Free List—Nominations for Postmasters—What the Wool Growers Demand of the Tariff Revisers.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Mr. Sherman introduced in the senate an elaborate bill for the reconstruction of the system of elections for members of the house of representatives. The bill is very long and is made up of detail concerning the form of oaths to be taken, etc.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The house spent most of the day in filibustering. A strong effort was made to transact business, but Mr. Weaver continued to interpose dilatory motions.

The senate spent a good portion of the day in debating the proposition to put fresh fish on the free list. The attempt was not successful.

At the close of a long discussion Mr. Hale's amendment was agreed to—yeas, 28; nays, 13—and fresh fish was placed on the dutiable list at half a cent per pound.

The house committee on invalid pensions agreed to report favorably twenty-six private pension bills. There are now 530 private pension bills on the calendar and about 5,000 waiting the action of the committee.

Among the nominations for postmasters sent to the senate by the president were the following: Massachusetts, T. H. Raymond, Athol Centre; H. L. Patrick, Hopdale; E. N. Nash, Newton Highlands; J. F. Robinson, Vineyard Haven; C. H. Stacy, West Newton; Julia E. Seely, Great Barrington; F. E. Wright, Lynn, New York; A. P. Willmott, White Stone; George Baker, Philmont; G. E. Platt, College Point; J. J. Byrne, Flatbush; Sarah A. Granger, Clifton Springs, New Jersey; William Carpenter, Clinton; Patrick Burns, Harrisburg, Pa.; Woodbridge, W. B. French, Woodstown, Pennsylvania; Eva R. Weisting, Middletown; R. C. North, Solon's Grove.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—In the senate Mr. Allison brought forward the long expected amendment to the sugar clause of the tariff bill. A number of important amendments to the bill were considered.

The senate took up the consideration of the tariff bill at the conclusion of the morning session. Mr. Allison, from the finance committee, offered an amendment giving a bounty of one cent a pound on all sugar produced in this country, providing for licensing all sugar producers. The amendment of Mr. Gray offered on Saturday last, was again taken up. It provides for the admission free of duty for the construction and equipment of vessels built in the United States for foreign account and ownership or for the foreign trade of sheets, angles, beams and bolts, deck and bulk beam, together with all structural shapes of iron or steel and copper and composition metal, forgings of iron or steel, castings of iron, steel or composition, flues and tubes of iron, steel or composition, machinery and parts of machinery, and all other articles of foreign production necessary for the construction and equipment of steamers or other vessels.

After remarks by Messrs. Gray, Teller, Fry, Aldrich, Stewart, Chandler and Platt the vote was taken and the amendment rejected by a strict party vote of 24 to 26.

Several amendments offered by Mr. Allison were adopted, and others offered by Democratic senators were rejected. There were short and animated debates over several of the propositions, particularly that to admit salt free.

In the house the rule providing for an adjournment at 5 o'clock each day was rescinded after a long debate. A revenue bill of importance was referred to the appropriations committee and a number of measures pertaining to the District of Columbia were passed.

The president pro tempore laid before the senate a joint memorial of the council and house of representatives of the legislative assembly of the territory of Idaho, setting forth their belief that the proposed admission of the territory of Utah would be a calamity. "Not only to every Gentile citizen of the territory, but to the general public, and especially to those states and territories adjacent to Utah."

In the supreme court of the United States the chief justice announced that the motion to advance the case of the Chinaman, Chao Chan Ping, was granted. March 11 was the day set for the argument. This is the case of the Chinaman who was not permitted to land in San Francisco because of the provisions of the Scott exclusion act. The constitutionality of the act is at issue.

Mr. Cox (N. Y.) introduced a bill in the house providing that no steamer carrying passengers shall carry freight of an explosive character, such as benzene, naphtha, etc., or baled cotton unless compactly pressed.
