AN IMPOSING MILITARY PARADE.

George Washington Would Have Been Paralyzed with Astonishment if He Could Have Witnessed the Ceremonies in His Honor at New York Today—The Crowds, the Speeches, the Pageantry and the Enthusiasm Were Something Unprecedented Even in the American Metropolis.

ELIZABETH, N. J., April 29.—President Harrison, Mrs. Harrison, the president's private secretary, the other immediate members of the president's party, the members of the cabinet, the vice president and the justices of the United States supreme court arrived here on a special vestibuled train of the Pennsylvania railroad at 8 o'clock this morning.

The Parade at Elizabeth. After breakfast President Harrison and Governor Green reviewed a parade of over 5,000 men, made up principally of New Jersey officials and militia, and including the famous City troop, of Philadelphia.

of New Jersey officials and militia, and including the famous City troop, of Philadelphia. A novel feature of the parade was a division of farmers of Union county, accompanied by floats representing farming scenes of the days of Gen. Washington and of the present day.

There were five stands and three arches. All the church bells were rung and the town and port are lavishly decorated. The town was filled with country people from all around Elizabeth, and they packed close down along the water's edge to see the presidential party off.

An Unprecedented Marine Display Greets the President's Progress Up the Bay.

NEW YORK, April 29.—The centennial celebration of George Washington's inauguration as the first president of the United States began this morning under auspicious circumstances and has proceeded thus far with conspicuous success.

The naval parade was the most magnificent display ever seen in American waters. Compared with the gathering of steam, sail, and oar craft seen on the waters of New York harbor today, all the previous gatherings are utterly insignificant.

THE NAVAL PARADE FROM CASTLE GARDEN.

Then 100 or 150 were assembled. Today no less than 400 steam vessels of various sorts, from the tug to the ocean going ship, joined the grand marine procession, while naval ships, yachts and steam launches, barges, long boats, yawls and whitehalls in numbers too great to be counted awaited off the foot of Wall street the arrival of the steamer Dispatch carrying the president.

The Order of Parade.

The war ships were anchored on the west side of the bay, headed by the flagship Chicago, carrying the flag of the secretary of the navy at the main. The other naval vessels followed in this order: Boston, carrying the flag of the admiral of the navy at the main; Essex, Junata, Yorktown, Yantic, Kearsage, Brooklyn, Jamestown. The revenue cutters and yachts were anchored to the southward of the naval fleet.

The procession of river and sound steamers comprised twenty-three squadrons of thirteen steamers each, formed in two lines with flag boats leading. The line was seven miles long, and stretched past Fort Hamilton.

Saluting the President.

Upon this scene the Dispatch emerged from the Kill Von Kull, with the steamer Sirius, the Erastus Wiman and the Monmouth, filled with invited guests, following in her wake.

The triumphal passage of the Dispatch between the parallel lines of steamers occupied about an hour. The vessels were gorgeously decorated with the national colors. The war vessels dipped their colors as the president's boat passed and each fired a salute of twenty-one guns.

THE PRESIDENT'S BARGE LANDING AT WALL STREET.

on her way to Wall street. The naval squadron, the yachts and the revenue cutters proceeded directly up the Hudson.

The Merchant Marine.

Meanwhile the squadrons of the merchant marine steamed into line and followed the Dispatch to the foot of Wall street, and then continued up the east side of the East river to Hunter's Point, turned a stake boat there and returned down the west side of the river, round the Battery and up the east side of the Hudson.

The Scene at Wall Street.

During all this booming of cannon and shrieking of steam whistles a mighty multitude of patient patriots had taken possession of every possible point of vantage on the piers near the foot of Wall street, and the thoroughfares were choked with a surging throng of expectant humanity.

At last the Dispatch was seen rounding pier 8. The word was passed and cheer after cheer arose from the multitude. After their long and weary wait the people were eager to see, and the crowd surged forward with an impetus that seemed sufficient to overpower all barriers and precipitate the whole mass of wriggling humanity into the river.

The President Disembarks.

The Dispatch anchored. The tugs and steamers, covered with eager excursionists, closed in around. The excitement increased. The Dispatch whistled; the steamers whistled. The noise added to the confusion and excitement, and pandemonium reigned. At this moment the crew of the venerable shipmasters, who were to row the president ashore, were seen coming down the ladder to their barge.

Venerable Jack Tars.

The president descended the ladder and took his seat in the stern sheets of the barge. The ancient and honorable shipmasters, who were once more Jack Tars for this august occasion, were already in their places. Their oars were lifted and smote the water with one accord, and the barge sped on her way to the ladder at the Wall street pier, 100 fathoms away, and so, while cannon thundered and strong men cheered and fair ladies fluttered their handkerchiefs and small boys did such things as small boys commonly do under the pressure of tremendous excitement, the president landed.

The president was greeted by Governor David B. Hill, Mayor Hugh J. Grant and Hamilton Fish, chairman of the centennial committee.

The president and party were escorted to the Equitable building, where a reception is at this hour (2 p.m.) in progress.

Mr. Morton's Guests.

President Harrison and Mrs. Harrison will be the guests of Vice President and Mrs. L. P. Morton during their visit. The wives of the cabinet officers, justices of the supreme court, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. McKee and Mr. and Mrs. Halford will be at the Fifth Avenue hotel, where they will be the guests of the centennial committee.

At 7 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish will entertain the president and Mrs. Harrison at their residence, 29 Gramercy park.

The Centennial Ball.

NEW YORK, April 30.—The Metropolitan Opera house was thrown open last night at 8 o'clock for the centennial ball. Long before that hour, however, Broadway and Seventh avenue in the vicinity of the opera house were literally packed with curious spectators, and the police had the greatest difficulty in keeping CATARHIS.

A New Home Treatment for the Cure of Catarrh, Catarrhal Deafness and Hay Fever.

The microscope has proved that these diseases are contagious, and that they are due to the presence of living parasites in the lining membrane of the upper air passages and eustachian tubes. The eminent scientists, Tyndall, Huxley and Beale endorse this and these authorities cannot be disputed.

So highly are these remedies valued, and so great is the demand for them, that the ignorant imitators have started up everywhere, pretending to destroy a parasite, of which they know nothing, by remedies the result of the application of which they are equally ignorant.

Mr. Dixon sends a pamphlet describing his new treatment on the receipt of 10c in stamps. The address is A. H. Dixon & Son, 303 King St., Toronto, Canada.—Scientific American.
