THE BROOKLYN DIVINE'S SUN-DAY SERMON.

Subject; "The Strong Swimmer."

TEXT: "He shall spread forth His hands in the midst of them, as he that swinnneth spreadeth forth his hands to swim."—Isaiah xxv., 11.

At this season of the year multitudes of people wade into the ponds and lakes and rivers and seas. At first putting out can-tiously from the shore, but having learned the right stroke of arm and foot, they let the waters roll over them, and in wild glee dive or float or swim. So the text will be very suggestive: "He shall spread forth His hand in the widet of them as be that extinueth or non-vertice: "He shall spread forth His hand in the midst of them, as he that swimmeth spreadeth forth his hands to swim." The fisherman seeks out unfrequented nooks. You stand all day on the bank nooks. The head of the broiling sun, and fling of a river in the broiling sun, and fling out your line, and catch nothing, while the expert angler breaks through jungle and goes by the shadow is solitary rock, and in a place where no fisherman has been for ten years, throws out his line and comes home at throws out his line and comes home at night, his face shining and his basket full. I do not know why we ministers of the Gospel need always be fishing in the same stream, and preaching from the same text that other people preach from. I can-not understand the policy of the minister who, in Blackfriars, London, England, every week for thirty years preached from the Epistle to the Hebrews. It is an exhiliara-tion to me when L come across a theme which tion to me when I come across a theme which I feel no one else has treated, and my text is one of that kind. There are paths in God's Word that are well beaten by Christian feet When men want to quote Scripture, they quot-the old passages that every one has heard the old passages that every one has heard. When they want a chapter read, they read a chapter that all the other people have been reading, so that the church to-day is ignorant of three-fourths of the Bible. You go into the Louvre at Paris. You confine yourself to one corridor of that opulent gal-lery of paintings. As you come out your friend says to you: "Did you see that Rem-brandt?" "No." "Did you see that Ru-bens?" "No." "Did "No." "Well," says your friend "then you didn't see the Louvre." Now, my friends, I think we are too much apt to confine ourselves to one of the great corridors of this Scripture truth, and so much so that there is not one person out of a million who has ever noticed the all suggest ive and powerful picture in the words of my

This text represents God as a strong swim This text represents God as a strong swim-mer, striking out to push down iniquity and save the souls of men. "He shall spread forth His hand in the midst of them, as he that swimmeth spreadeth forth his hands to swim." The figure is bold and many sided. Most of you know how to swim. Some of you learned it in the city school, where this art is taught; some of you in boyhood, in the river near your father's house; some of you since you came to manhood or wo-manhood, while summering on the beach of the sea. You step down in the wave, you the sea. You step down in the wave, you throw your head back, you bring your elbows to the chest, you put the palms of your hands downward and the soles of your feet outward, and you push through the water as though you had been born aquatic. It is a grand thing to znow how to swim, not only for yourself, but because you will after a while, perhaps have to help others. I do not know anything more stirring or sublime than to see some man like Norman McKenzie leaping from the while trying to loosen the sail, bringing him back to the deck amid the huzzas of the pasngers and crew. If a man has not enthu-ism enough to cheer in such circumstances be deserves himself to drop into the sea and have no one to help him. The Royal Hu-mane Society of England was established in 1774, its object to appland and reward those who should pluck up life from the deep. Any one who has performed such a deed of daring has all the particulars and it came up over His wounded feet, and it came above the spear stab in His side—aye, it dashed to the lacerated temple, the high water mark of His anguish. Then, rising above the flood, "He stretched forth Hishands in the midst of them, as he that swimmeth spreadeth forth his hands to swim."

If you have ever watched a swimmer If you have ever watched a swimmer, you notice that his whole body is brought into play. The arms are flexed, the hands drive the water back, the knees are active, the head is thrown back to escape strangulation, the whole body is in propulsion. And when Christ sprang into the deep to save us. He threw His entire nature into it—all His Godhead, His omniscience, His goodness, His love, his omnipotence—head, heart, eyes, hands, feet. We were far out on the sea and so deep down in the waves and so far out from the down in the waves and so far out from the shore that nothing short of an entire God could save us. Christ leaped out for our rescue, saying: "Lo! I come to do thy will," and all the surges of human and satanic hate beat against Him, and those who watched Him from the gates of heaven feared He would go down under the wave, and instead of sar go down under the wave, and instead of sav-ing others would Himself perish; but putting His breast to the foam, and shaking the surf from His locks, He came on and on, until He s now within the reach of every one here. is now within the reach of every one here. Eye omniscient, heart infinite, arm omnipo-tent. Mighty to save, even unto the utter-most. Oh, it was not half a God that trampled down bellowing Gennesaret. It was not a quarter of a God that mastered the demons of Gadara. It was not two-thirds of a God that lifted up Lazarus into the arms of his overjoyed sisters. It was not a fragment of a God who offered pardon and peace to of a God who offered pardon and peace to all the race. No. This mighty swimmer threw His grandeur, His glory, His might, His wisdom, His omnipotence and His eternity into this one act. It took both hands of God to save us-both feet. How do I prove it? On the cross, were not both hands nailed?

On the cross, were not both feet nailed? His entire nature involved in our redemption! If you have lived much by the water, you notice also that if any one is going out to the rescue of the crowning he must be independ-ent, self reliant, able to go alone. There may be a time when we must spring out to save one and he cannot get a lifeboat, and he goes out and has not strength enough to bear himself up, and bear another up, he will sink, and instead of dragging one corpse out of the torrent you will have two to drag out. When Christ sprang out into the sea to deliver us He had no life buoy. His father did not help Him. Alone Inte buoy. His father did not help Him. Alone in the wine press. Alone in the pang. Alone in the darkness. Alone in the mourtain. Alone in the sea. O, if He saves us He shall have all the credit, for "there was none to help." No car. No wing. No ladder. When Nathaniel Lyon fell in the battle charge in front of his troops, he had a whole army to cheer him. When Marshal Ney sprang into the contest and plunged in the spurs till the horse's flanks sourted blood. sprang into the contest and plunged in the spurs till the horse's flanks spurted blood all France applauded him. But Jesus alone "Of the people there was none to help. "All forsook him and fled." O, it was not "All forsook him and fled." O, it was no flotilla that sailed down and saved us. was not a cluster of gondolas that came over the wave. It was one person, independent and alone, "spreading out His hands among us as a swimmer spreadeth forth his hands to swim."

Behold then, to-day, the spectacle of a drowning soul and Christ, the swimmer. I believe it was in 1848, when there were six English soldiers of the Fifth Fusiliers, who were hanging to the bottom of a capsized boat--a boat that had been upset by a squall three miles from shore. It was in the night, but one man swam mightily for the beach, guided by the dark mountains that lifted their top through the night. He came to the beach. He found a shore man that consented to go with him and save the other men, and they put out. It was some time before they could find the place where the men were, but afte awhile they heard their cry: "Help! Help! awhile they heard their Cry: "Help: Help: and they bore down to them, and they saved them, and brought them to shore. Oh, that this moment our cry might be lifted long. loud and shrill, till Christ the swimmer shall come and take us lest we drop a thousand fathoms down.

If you have been much by water, you know very well that when one is in peril help must come very quickly, or it will be of no use. One minute may decide every thing. Immediate help the man wants or no help at

This is the difficulty which keeps thousands of souls out of the kingdom of heaven. It is because they cannot consent to let Jesus Christ begin and complete the work of their redemption. "Why," you say, "then is there nothing for me to do?" Only one thing have you to do, and that is to lay hold of Christ and let Him achieve your salvation and achieve it all. I do not know whether I make the matter plain or not. I simply want to show you that a or not. I simply want to show you that a man cannot save himself, but that the Al-mighty Son of God can do it, and will do it, if you ask Him. O, fling your two arms, the arms of your trust and love, around this omnipotent swimmer of the cross. That is a thrilling time when some one swamped in the surf is brought ashore and swamped in the surf is brought ashore and being resuscitated. How the people watch for the moment when he begins to breathe again, and when at last he takes one full in-halation, and opens his eyes upon the by-standers, a shout of joy rings up and down the beach. There is joy because a life has been saved. O, ye who have been swamped in the seas of trouble and sin! we gather around you. Would that this might be the hour when you begin to live. The Lord Je-sus Christ steps down, He gets on His knees, He puts His lip to your lip, and would breathe pardon and life and heaven into your immortal soul. God grant that this hour there may be thousands of souls resusci-tated. I stand on the deck of the old Gospel tated. I stand on the deck of the old Gospei ship amid a crowd of passengers, all of them hoping that the last man overboard may be May the living Christ this he out for your safety, "spreading forth His hands in the midst of you, as a swimmer spreadeth forth his hands to swim."

How to Travel With Comfort.

Avoid railroad food by carrying chicken, beef, hard-boiled eggs, bread, fruit and salt.

Arrange to start quietly after a plentiful meal. Take overshoes and waterproof in your handbag. This is important.

In railway traveling ride only in the last car of an express train, and the front car of a slow train, or get as near these points as possible.

On warm days ride backward by an open window, thus avoiding cinders and draughts.

For ocean trips take abundance of outer garments and flannel bedgowns Walk the deck for exercise, else first days ashore will be fatiguing. But rest the first two days at sea.

At night, if fatigued, drink a cup of tea with a bit of bread, and rest thirty minutes before dining. A tired stomach cannot digest easily. Hence the frequency of diarrhea during travel.

If seasick, keep the deck; lie upon the back near the center of the ship; eat in spite of nausea. If vomiting follows, eat again at once. This is the only remedy. Drink little or none of the railroad icewater. If obliged to eat at stations, choose simple food. Eat slowly. Better less food than much haste. Bread and fruit or chocolate make an excellent lunch

Drink hot beef tea with plents of red pepper. Eat ship-crackers, raw beef, finely chopped, salted and red-peppered, and mixed with bread crumbs. If not seasick, control the appetite or prepare for dyspepsia.

Be sure of dry bed-linen and clean blankets. It is better to use your shawis than to be exposed to dampness. Throw back the bed-clothing two hours before retiring. See that your gas-burner does not leak. Move bedsteads away from windows. Old hotels are draughty .--- Cou-

Dr. Charcot's Queer Patient.

Charcot, "the man among us who is most habituated to the marvelous," draws the femme-chat, or cat-woman whom he has discovered. Dr. Charcot's femme-chat is an inmate of the hospital of Salpetriere, as the story goes. She is a pretty child, about fourteen years old, with blue eyes and long, blond hair falling down her back. She is modest and gentle up to a certain moment, when the visitor suddenly beholds her eyes, "frightfully convulsed," her mouth shrivels up, a horrible grimace distorts her features and she drops to the earth on all fours. Then she scampers about the room over and under chairs and tables, seeking everywhere an outlet of escape, and, if anybody attempts to capture her, she spits with the unmistakable pfft, pfft, of an enraged puss. She humps her back and gives vent to longs miaulments in crescendo, and if a bit of paper or other trifle be thrown to her, she stretches forth a paw or a hand, as the case may be, and plays with it as a cat will. Finally, after having done the entire pus business to admiration, she curls over on her back, the crisis is over, and the femme-chat becomes pure femme once more .- New York Commercial Adver-

While quickly realizing that he was fast covering the homestretch of un, with the doubt wire, as it were, plainly visible, the ruling passion in the confiding and always courageous youth thus betrayed itself "What's my chances, Doc?" "Not worth mentioning, my boy."

"One in twenty, you s'pose?" "Oh. no." "In thirty?"

"No." "Fifty, then?" "I think not."

"A hundred?"

In order to understand the full force of this figure, you need to realize, first of all that our race is in a sinking condition. You sometimes hear people talking of what they consider the most beautiful words in our lan-guage. One man says it is 'home," another says it is the word 'mother," another says it is the word 'Jesus," but I will tell you the bitterest word in all our language, the word most angry and baleful, the word sat-urated with the most trouble, the word that accounts for all the loathsomeness, and the pang, and the outrage, and the harrowing; and that word is 'Sin." You spell it with three letters, and yet those three letters de-kribe the circumference and pierce the diameter of everything bad in the universe. Sin! if is a sibilant word. You cannot pronounce it without giving the In order to understand the full force of this Sin! it is a sibilant word. You cannot pronounce it without giving the siss of the flame or the hiss of the serpent. Sin! And then if you add three letters to that word it describes every one of us by nature-sinner. We have our-raged the law of God, not occasionally, or now and then, but perpetually. The Bible declares it. Hark! It thunders two claps: "The heart is deceitful above all things and desperately wicked." "The soul that sinneth, it shall die." What the Bible says our own conscience affirms. After Judge Morgan had sentenced Lady Jane Gray to death his conscience troubled him so much for the dead

Immediate help the man wants or no help at all. Now, that is just the kind of a relief we want. The case is urgent, imminent, instan-taneous. 'See that soul sinking. Son of God, lay hold of him. Be quick! be quick! Oh, I wish you all understood how urgent this Gospel is. There was a man in the navy at sea who had been severely whipped for bad behavior, and he was maddened by it, and he leaped into the sea, and no sooner had he leaped into the sea, and no sooner had he leaped into the sea than, quick as lightning, an albatross swooped upon him. able. wing, might live and live forever. I want to persuade you to lay hold of this strong swimmer. "No," you say, "it is al-ways disastrous for a drowning man to lay hold of a swimmer." There is not a river or lake but has a calamity resultant from the fact that when a strong swimmer went out to save a sinking man the drowning wan cant for rapid running machinery, and it is used for all kinds of waterproofing, paper treated with it being preferred to oil paper. It is largely in demand for tact that when a strong swimmer went out to save a sinking man, the drowning man clutched him, threw his arms around him, pinioned his arms, and they both went down together. When you are saving a man in the water you do not want to come up by his face; you want to come up by his back. You do not want him to take hold of you while you take hold of him. But, blessel be God, Jesus Christian errong a swimmer, He comes not to our back, but to our face, and wrapping soaps, metals, books and all articles which require protection from moisture. A recent interesting application is in coating the paper cylinder on which the graphophone stylus traces its record. Its use for the manutacture of candles is growing so rapidly that it is believed, when a refinery is built in the Utah district, much of this trade will be lost to eastern candle makers. Its other uses are as a vehicle in the making of liniments, salves and plasters, in making was matches, coating life preservers and as varnishes, shoemaker's wax, wax figures, doll heads and similar articles.
