LORRY HEISLER KILLED.

AT THE BOILER WORKS ON TUESDAY.

A Huge Boiler Rolls Over Him and Crushes His Skull.—A sad Spectacle—Strong men Turn away from the sad Scene.

On Tuesday afternoon, at about three o'clock, at Maitland's Boiler Works, near the Penna. railroad depot, the life of young Lorry Heisler was terminated by a boiler rolling over him and crushing his skull.
 The particulars of the accident are as follows: Mr. Maitland and his workmen were engaged in loading a large boiler on a freight car, in front of the building. A track or skid was built from the ground to the top of the car, up which the boiler was to be rolled and into the car. A large rope was attached to the boiler and led over the top of the car to a telephone pole where by the use of pulleys and tackle the men gradually pulled the boiler up this inclined plane. As they drew it up young Lorry Heisler, who is employed in the shops, was stationed behind to block it up and keep it from rolling back. When they had it almost to the top of the car the ropes broke and the huge mass of iron, weighing over five tons, rolled back and caught the unfortunate boy, who was standing on the middle log of the skidway. He was knocked over and his head struck on the end skid log and the boiler passed over it.

When the rope broke Mr. Maitland called for him to run, but the warning was given too late. They rushed around to the other end of the car and saw the lifeless body of the boy lying on the ground under the skid-way with half of his skull taken off. Portions of the scalp bones and brains were scattered around over the timbers while his warm blood oozed from the hollowed portion of his skull.
 The body was picked up and taken in to the shops and covered over with papers until the undertaker arrived.
 Lorry Heisler was a lad of about 14 years and was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Heisler, the marble dealer, of this place. At the time of the accident his father was at State College. The sad intelligence was withheld from Mrs. Heisler until the body could be cared for by the undertaker.

This horrible event completely unstrung the nerves of Mr. Maitland who walked to and fro through his shops in a bewildered condition, not noticing anyone, thinking, apparently only of the young lad's sad death. The men about the shops took off their aprons and left the scene. Funeral to-day at 2 p. m.

Feil From a Telephone Pole.
 Charles Noll, of the telephone exchange here, met with a terrible accident last Saturday morning by falling from the top of a telephone pole near the railroad crossing on Main street which being rotten, broke off with his weight. He had climbed the pole to arrange the wires, which had become crossed in some way. Some of his front teeth were knocked out, his jaw dislocated, a hole knocked under his lip just above the chin, an ankle badly sprained, an arm badly bruised and a big cut on his left leg, beside number of other hurts. He is not considered dangerously injured but his wounds are exceedingly painful and will be apt to lay him up for a long time. He was taken to Dr. Watson's office and afterwards taken to the Fallen House. Word was afterwards sent to his friends at Bellefonte. —Lock Haven Democrat.

Charles Noll is a son of J. C. Noll of this place. The unfortunate young man had been in the employ of the Telephone company since he graduated from the Bellefonte High school last spring. On Monday morning the young man was brought by train to his home at this place. His injuries are quite serious yet are not considered dangerous and his speedy recovery is anxiously looked for by his many friends in this section.

THE GRANGERS' PICNIC.

Excursion Tickets to Williams Grove via Pennsylvania Railroad.
 The sixteenth annual picnic of the Grangers will be held at Williams Grove, Cumberland County, Pa., August 29th to 31st. This gathering of the husbandmen from the entire Union is the greatest event of its kind in America. The most prominent agriculturists of the country are present, together with all the eminent men in all the walks of life. The plain farmer is also there, and the interchange of ideas, the display of machinery and products renders the educational advantages second only to the benefits of social intercourse.
 For the benefit of visitors the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will sell excursion tickets to Williams Grove, from August 26th to 29th, valid for return until September 2d, at a single fare for the round trip, from all principal stations between East Liberty in the west and Bryn Mawr in the east, from Lutherville, Md., in the south to Erie and Chanandaigua in the north.

An immense sliding has been put down near the station at Centre Hall so that trains and shippers can reach the Granger picnic grounds more easily than before.

UTILIZING FURNACE SLAG.

Ground into Dust and Spread Over Farms as a Fertilizer.
 Farmers in eastern Pennsylvania have quite recently begun to use a new fertilizer which is well known to European agriculturists, but has never gotten a foothold in this country. It is iron slag, produced in the manufacture of basic steel. In this process iron which is too rich in phosphorus to be used in making bessemer steel, is dephosphorized, the phosphorus passing into the bi-product which is slag. This slag is ground to dust and used as a manure, its phosphoric contents making it valuable. The demand is now so great in Germany where basic steel is principally made, that almost all the slag that is made is used for fertilizing purposes. In 1888 about 600,000 tons were ground up and sold. The fertilizer is cheaper and better than mineral phosphates. Basic slag has usually been considered worthless in this country, but a Pottstown iron company turns it to new use.

Order of Odd Fellows.

The latest report of Sovereign Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows shows a total membership on this continent of 565,722; paid out as relief $2,350,766.91 during the year; an increase in membership during the year of 25,422; an increase in the amount paid as relief of $125,551.52. The total revenue, $6,075,091, an increase of $505,218.05. Speaking of the magnitude of this order, Grand Sire White says: "Take the two great Odd Fellows organizations, the Manchester Unity and the American Order together, and we find there are more Odd Fellows in the world by far than there are members of any other secret fraternal organization. The oldest and greatest of these, according to their own authority, and it is truly a noble institution, numbers, from the best estimates that can be made 1,082,922, while the Odd Fellows number according to the latest actual returns accessible, 1,201,646, or 118,654 more than the oldest and most numerous of the secret fraternal organizations."

A Long Elved Family.

Of the original twelve sons and daughters forming the well-known Herr family residing in and near Salona, Clinton Co., seven survive. Their combined ages are 518 years, or an average of 74 years. Of these seven aunt Lottie Moore, the only one residing out of Clinton county, is the eldest and is aged 85. She emigrated west many years ago. The youngest is our well-known friend Daniel Herr, whose age is 61. Aunt Katie Wilson, of Salona, the next oldest has seen the snows of 83 winters and is still active.

Blondin's Rash Bet.

Blondin the well known rope walker has wagered $20,000 that he can walk a cable from the top of the Eiffel Tower to the central dome of the Exposition building at Paris, in less than five minutes.

Illness is a Dangerous Fault.

In the kidneys. When inactive they speedily fall into disrepair. These obstinate and fatal malady's, Bright's disease and diabetes, come with terrible certainty upon the inaction of the organs affected. Catarrh of the bladder, enuresis, gravel and strangury are also to be apprehended from a partial paralysis of the bladder, of which weakness and sluggishness are the causes. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is a fine tonic and promoter of activity for the renal organs, and one which can be relied upon to furnish the requisite stimulus without exciting heat—an exact to be feared from the unadvised use of the excitant of commerce. A further important effect of the Bitters, by reawakening the activity of the kidneys, is to enable them to drain from the blood in its passage through them, impurities productive of rheumatism, a cold, dropsy, nervousness, fever and ague, constipation and dyspepsia are conquered by the Bitters.

A Former Centre County Young Man on his way to South America.

Marion L. Chadman, formerly of Ferguson township, who took a special course in chemistry and civil engineering at the State College and subsequently edited the Forest Democrat published at Tionesta, has been appointed First Assistant to the chief engineer of the railway in Antioquia, a province in the United States of Columbia South America, and will sail for that place from New York on the steamer "Alima" on the 29th inst. From New York Mr. Chadman goes direct to Savannah and thence 480 miles by river steamer to Puerto Berrio where his duties begin. While principal of the Allentown, N. Y. school he used a portion of his time in the study of the Spanish language and now speaks it fluently which will be of great service to him in his new position.
 Mr. Chadman owes his position to the influence of Frank F. Whittin formerly of Oil City and now Chief Engineer of all the government railways in the State of Antioquia, South America. In accepting his present position Mr. Chadman was obliged to resign the principalship of the Wellsville school much against the wishes of the trustees; his brother Wallace C. Chadman, of Pine Grove, will probably accept the position resigned by his brother.

Hotels Returned.

There was some surprise at this term of court for several hotel keepers, over in Pennsylvally charged with violating the liquor laws.
 David Rhule, of the Spring Mills house was returned for selling liquor to minors and men of known intemperate habits.
 Information was made against Shaeffer, of the Coburn house. The charge was for selling to minors and men of known intemperate habits. Mr. Shaeffer's license had been transferred to Mr. Willis Rishel, Spring Mills, but the Judge afterwards revoked the transfer.
 Abs Harter, of Millheim, was also charged with selling liquor without license.
 It is likely that the above cases will be held over for next term of court.

A Raving Maniac.

The people living in the neighborhood of Logan Mills, Clinton Co., were much alarmed on Sunday, August the 4th, over the startling news that Joseph Shreckengast, had become insane and was wild with frenzy. He ran around frothing like a mad dog and roared loudly enough to be heard for miles. Going from one house to another he riddled the windows with stones and broke in the doors. He was armed with clubs and made use of them when the neighbors interfered. In his raving madness he attacked John Greninger and broke one of his ribs, knocked John Emig down, bit and scratched Valentine Breon, clubbed Forest Wirth, and kicked several others. Towards evening the neighbors put shackles on him and later brought him to the borough lockup at this place for safe keeping. From here he was taken to the Danville Asylum for the insane.

Labor Day Approaches.

Labor Day being a legal holiday in this State, the banks will not be open for business, and consequently all notes, drafts, bills, acceptances and similar obligations maturing and payable at banks on that day will be due on the previous business day. As the holiday falls on Monday, September 2d, the previous business day will be Saturday, August 31st, the intervening Sunday being a dies non in the business world.

Sydney Krumrine, executor of the estate of Henry Krumrine deceased, disposed of the following tracts of land: Tract of land below Penn Hall, containing 6 acres to Samuel Musser.
 Farm in Penn twp., containing 116 acres to Elias Krumrine, and lot in Spring Mills, containing about one acre, to Wm. Allison.
 On Saturday 24, M. L. Rishel, administrator of the estate of Jacob Shaffer, deceased, sold the farm belonging to the estate of the deceased, containing about 100 acres to W. A. Krize.

PHILIPSBURG ITEMS.

The Democrats of this city are highly elated over the nomination made by our county delegates and are confident that they will have an easy "walk over" this fall. No more fooling with the enemy, they say. Two much Protection has made them solid for Mahooly.
 Just how Phillipsburg could get on without the indomitable Jack Gorton is an unsolved problem. He is "Watchman of the night" protecting the citizens property, and guarding the place by day, protecting both life and property woe to evil doers when Jake is around. Brave and fearless he will tackle any one who is violating the laws or disturbing the peace.
 Chief of Police, John H. Lerh, who was taken severely ill last week is again able to be about and will attend Court to prosecute the two big brutes who so nearly killed him sometime ago.
 Phillipsburg was almost depopulated on last Sunday. Two trains left for Bilger Campmeeting and hundreds of people availed themselves of the excursion rates. Through the courtesy of Mr. A. E. Woolridge who sold the tickets to the entrance of the grounds we learned that about nine thousand people were present on the first Sabbath of the meeting on the 18th and on last Sabbath there were at least two thousand more.
 About fifty survivors of the Buck-Tail Regiment were in attendance at their Reunion last week. In point of members and enthusiasm, it was a success. One ridiculous old "vet" became enthusiastic that his friends had him put in the cooler. Their parade which was joined by the two fire companies and members of the G. A. R. was a grand affair.
 Many Bellefonters were among the attendees, but as most of them belong to the Band of Hope (Republicans you know) they managed to keep out of the lockup. Even Feidler of the Gazette kept sober.
 His Honor Judge Munson is attending Court this week in an official capacity.
 Dr. Potter and his wife have returned from the sea shore much improved in health.

To Builders and those who Contemplate Building.

One of the most useful publications for builders and persons contemplating building is the beautifuly illustrated Architectural and Building Edition of the Scientific American, published monthly by Munn & Co., the celebrated patent solicitors, at 311 Broadway N. Y.

It has become the custom for most of the builders in the United States and Canada to keep on file this publication, not only for their own benefit, but for the use of their customers, and they find their business promoted by doing so. A great variety of dwelling houses, costing from a few hundred to several thousand dollars, are illustrated in each monthly number, beside a double page printed in colors, representing one or more handsome residences already built. For the use of the customer, builders are able to give a clear estimate of the cost of construction, as the working plans accompany the illustrations. Most persons contemplating the building of a house or stable for their own use derive both pleasure and considerable saving, sometimes by carefully considering at their leisure, by their friends, various designs and plans which come before them. To enable a person to come to a wise conclusion in such an important matter as building a house for his family he will be wise if he refer the subject before selecting his household and study carefully over in the domestic architecture section, the interior arrangements. It not only affords great pleasure to the entire family to be considered in the matter, but good suggestions will come from it, and mistakes are less likely to occur in the selection. By all means consult the wife and grown up daughters, also consult the architect or engineer, as they will give you valuable suggestions as to how to build a house that will suit his fancy, or the estimate of the cost is too great, in a single number of the publication, he will be very sure to find in some one of the other numbers something that will suit both his fancy and his purse. Hundreds of dwellings have been erected on the plans that have appeared in this publication, and any person who contemplates building, or who wants to alter, improve, extend, or add to existing buildings, whether wings, porches, bay windows, or attic rooms, will be pretty sure to find what he wants in the Scientific American and Builder, which is published on the first of each month, at the office of the Scientific American, 311 Broadway. Subscription $2.50 a year 12 numbers. Single copies 25 cents. Back volumes of 6 numbers, in flexible covers, at 10 cents. Full year, $25.00. Subscriptions received and volumes sold by all newsdealers.

A FREAK OF NATURE.

A WOODCHUCK WITH A NINE INCH TOOTH.

A Remarkable Snake Story From Pine Grove Mills—From Other Parts of the County by our Regular Correspondents.

A remarkable freak of nature in the shape of a woodchuck was killed one day last week by one of our hunters. It had an abnormal development of two of its incisors which grew out of its lower jaw to a height of six and one-half inches, then turned a parabolic curve backward and grew down extending three and one-half inches below the lower jaw, where they were beginning to curve upward again. It can readily be understood that this woodchuck took its daily food under difficult circumstances as these projecting teeth come in contact with the earth before its mouth was sufficiently close to allow an indulgence of the grass and clover leaves which form the principal part of a woodchuck's food. This must have been the case since he was very much emaciated and when pursued by the hunter made very little effort to escape. Teeth nine inches in length is enough to make any woodchuck feel indifferent to life.
 The greatest snake story of the season comes from a Ferguson twp., man. I cannot vouch for its truthfulness, but the relator is a man whose reputation for veracity is unsullied, and who could not have the least possible motive for diverging from the straight truth. His knowledge of and experience with all kinds of serpents is good evidence that he could not have been mistaken in regard to the length of this one. He lives about a mile east of town, along the mountain and his name is William McClellan, but he is more familiarly known as "Bill" or "Mack." Out at the Kepler farm where he works he is called "Bluebeard" on account of the intermingling of his black and gray whiskers. To do "Bluebeard" and his story justice I should add that he was never known to imbibe anything stronger than new whiskey.
 Last spring a year ago McClellan was coming down an old coal road over in Gettis ridge. He was walking pretty fast as it was late and there are bears and wild cats on Gettis ridge. All the old hunters in the county know where Gettis ridge is and how plentiful the game is upon it.
 Just before "Mack" got to the foot of the ridge a snake crossed the road. Whether it was a snake or a sea-serpent "Mack" was not quite sure. Surely he had never seen anything quite so big before. He had often read of boa constrictors and pythons and how big they were but he never believed it; certainly he never expected to see one in his native country. He was horrified; he was transfixed; despite his acute realization of things around him he believed himself dreaming. He felt his head; he was stuck a pin into his arm to satisfy himself that he was conscious, and removed his spectacles believing that they magnified snakes; but everything was real, tangible and he was undoubtedly in his right mind. The more certain he became that he was not the victim of a false conception the more frightened he grew; his blood stopped, his heart thumped against his ribs, his eyes hung out like skinned tomatoes and the perspiration stood out on his face like rivet heads on a boiler. Right in front of him lay the snake, its head and forepart had already entered a brush heap, its tail was still in the road. Presently it began moving again and in a few minutes it had entirely disappeared under the brush heap.
 "Mack" admits he was scared, but he was not so much so that it prevented him from making a measurement. He measured the distance from the road to the brush heap. He knew the snake was that long and a good deal longer. The distance was twenty-eight feet and he is willing to swear that the snake was ten feet longer. "Mack" never crossed that ridge again. Not all the gold and silver and jewels and precious stones in the land could induce him to go over that old coal road again.

To Builders and those who Contemplate Building.

One of the most useful publications for builders and persons contemplating building is the beautifuly illustrated Architectural and Building Edition of the Scientific American, published monthly by Munn & Co., the celebrated patent solicitors, at 311 Broadway N. Y.

It has become the custom for most of the builders in the United States and Canada to keep on file this publication, not only for their own benefit, but for the use of their customers, and they find their business promoted by doing so. A great variety of dwelling houses, costing from a few hundred to several thousand dollars, are illustrated in each monthly number, beside a double page printed in colors, representing one or more handsome residences already built. For the use of the customer, builders are able to give a clear estimate of the cost of construction, as the working plans accompany the illustrations. Most persons contemplating the building of a house or stable for their own use derive both pleasure and considerable saving, sometimes by carefully considering at their leisure, by their friends, various designs and plans which come before them. To enable a person to come to a wise conclusion in such an important matter as building a house for his family he will be wise if he refer the subject before selecting his household and study carefully over in the domestic architecture section, the interior arrangements. It not only affords great pleasure to the entire family to be considered in the matter, but good suggestions will come from it, and mistakes are less likely to occur in the selection. By all means consult the wife and grown up daughters, also consult the architect or engineer, as they will give you valuable suggestions as to how to build a house that will suit his fancy, or the estimate of the cost is too great, in a single number of the publication, he will be very sure to find in some one of the other numbers something that will suit both his fancy and his purse. Hundreds of dwellings have been erected on the plans that have appeared in this publication, and any person who contemplates building, or who wants to alter, improve, extend, or add to existing buildings, whether wings, porches, bay windows, or attic rooms, will be pretty sure to find what he wants in the Scientific American and Builder, which is published on the first of each month, at the office of the Scientific American, 311 Broadway. Subscription $2.50 a year 12 numbers. Single copies 25 cents. Back volumes of 6 numbers, in flexible covers, at 10 cents. Full year, $25.00. Subscriptions received and volumes sold by all newsdealers.

PHILIPSBURG ITEMS.

The Democrats of this city are highly elated over the nomination made by our county delegates and are confident that they will have an easy "walk over" this fall. No more fooling with the enemy, they say. Two much Protection has made them solid for Mahooly.
 Just how Phillipsburg could get on without the indomitable Jack Gorton is an unsolved problem. He is "Watchman of the night" protecting the citizens property, and guarding the place by day, protecting both life and property woe to evil doers when Jake is around. Brave and fearless he will tackle any one who is violating the laws or disturbing the peace.
 Chief of Police, John H. Lerh, who was taken severely ill last week is again able to be about and will attend Court to prosecute the two big brutes who so nearly killed him sometime ago.
 Phillipsburg was almost depopulated on last Sunday. Two trains left for Bilger Campmeeting and hundreds of people availed themselves of the excursion rates. Through the courtesy of Mr. A. E. Woolridge who sold the tickets to the entrance of the grounds we learned that about nine thousand people were present on the first Sabbath of the meeting on the 18th and on last Sabbath there were at least two thousand more.
 About fifty survivors of the Buck-Tail Regiment were in attendance at their Reunion last week. In point of members and enthusiasm, it was a success. One ridiculous old "vet" became enthusiastic that his friends had him put in the cooler. Their parade which was joined by the two fire companies and members of the G. A. R. was a grand affair.
 Many Bellefonters were among the attendees, but as most of them belong to the Band of Hope (Republicans you know) they managed to keep out of the lockup. Even Feidler of the Gazette kept sober.
 His Honor Judge Munson is attending Court this week in an official capacity.
 Dr. Potter and his wife have returned from the sea shore much improved in health.
