A HERO OF THE SEAS

Admiral Porter Reaches the Haven of Rest.

HOW HE SERVED HIS COUNTRY.

Over Sixty Years in the United States Navy—Five Generations of Naval Heroes—Selected His Own Burial Place—Gen. Sherman's Last Call.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—The flags on the executive departments, which have so often been half masted during the past month in token of national bereavement, are again fluttering at half mast, this time in memory of Admiral David D. Porter, who died yesterday at his residence in this city. They will remain thus until after the funeral, which will take place Tuesday.

Admiral Porter had been suffering from fatty degeneration of the heart for a long time, and had had spells of severe illness from time to time. Within the last week or so, however, he has been in a fair condition, and the end was not expected. He died in his chair, and the end came almost without warning. He sat bolt upright, with his son Richard holding one hand and his daughter, Mrs. Logan, the other. President Harrison sent a message of sympathy to the family and issued the usual executive orders. Secretary Tracy ordered official mourning in the navy for thirty days.

Admiral Porter's Career.
David Dixon Porter was born in Chester, Pa., June 8, 1813. Almost as long as there has been an American navy, the name of Porter has been honorably connected with it. Several generations of the family have gone down to the sea in ships, and all have acquitted themselves with bravery.

David D. had his first experience in the Mexican service in 1847, being then 34 years of age. In 1849 he was appointed midshipman in the United States navy, and attained his lieutenantcy in 1841. He served during the entire Mexican war, had charge of the naval rendezvous at New Orleans, and was engaged in every action on the coast.

Afterward he commanded for some years steamships in the Pacific Mail service between New York and the Isthmus of Panama. At the beginning of the civil war he was appointed to the command of the frigate Fox, and, on service in the Gulf, in Farragut's attack on New Orleans, Porter, now promoted to commander, commanded the mortar fleet. Farragut, having destroyed the enemy's fleet of fifteen vessels, led the reduction of Ft. Jackson and Ft. St. Philip in Port Charles, Louisiana, on service in the Gulf. The forts surrendered in April, 1862. Porter then assisted Farragut in all the latter's operations between New Orleans and Vicksburg, where he effectively bombarded the forts and enabled the fleet to pass in safety.

For his services at Vicksburg, Porter received the thanks of congress and the commission of rear admiral, dated July 4, 1863, the date of the fall of that town. He ran past the batteries of Vicksburg and captured the Confederate forts at Grand Gulf, which put him into communication with Gen. Grant. In the spring of 1864 Porter co-operated with Banks in the Red River campaign, and later in the same year was transferred to the North Atlantic squadron, and reduced Ft. Fisher, the gallant Gen. Terry commanding the land forces. Rear Admiral Porter received a vote of thanks from congress, which was the fourth that he received during the war.

Rear Admiral Porter was promoted to vice admiral on July 25, 1864, while he was superintendent of the Naval Academy, and was then transferred to Washington. On Aug. 15, 1870, he was appointed admiral of the navy, the highest grade in the service.

Admiral Porter's Funeral.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—The funeral of Admiral Porter will take place tomorrow at his late residence, 1712 H street. The body will be interred in Arlington cemetery. The cortege will be formed as follows: About 100 marines from the barracks here and in Annapolis, 500 cavalrymen and artillerymen from Washington barracks and Ft. Myer, 1,000 members of the local Grand Army posts, 1,000 infantrymen from the District National Guard, who have volunteered their services, and a naval Grand Army of the Republic post from Philadelphia, of which Admiral Porter was a member. This will make up a line of nearly 3,000. All officers of the navy in this city will attend the funeral in full uniform.

National Republican Clubs.
CINCINNATI, Feb. 17.—Arrangements are being perfected to make the next convention of National Republican clubs to be held in this city on April 21 and 22 next, a grand success. President Herrmann, of the local committee, is in receipt of letters almost daily from the presidents of clubs from all over the country, assuring him that they will attend the convention and assist in making the event the most successful of the kind ever held in this country. It is estimated that fully 50,000 visitors will attend from outside cities.

Threatened with Hydrophobia.
WILMINGTON, Del., Feb. 17.—Yesterday when John Sterret Smith, a well-known farmer living near Elkton, Md., was handling a small beagle dog the animal bit him severely on the hand. The farmers' son, Walker, aged 16, was also severely bitten on the hands. The wounds of father and son are ragged. The animal was at once tied up, and he showed every indication of suffering from hydrophobia. Smith and his son have made preparations to leave for New York today to go under treatment at the Pasteur institute.

A Much Needed Rain.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—The signal office furnishes the following special bulletin to the press: The present copious and general rain in California which began in the northern portion on Thursday, in the central portion on Saturday and extended to San Diego, ends a serious and long-continued drought over that section. But little rain has fallen there since January 1, and the total amount for the winter season has been very much less than the average.

All Quiet at Kearney.
NEWARK, Feb. 17.—There is perfect quiet in Kearney, not even loiterers being found round the mills of the Clark thread company. The works are in full blast, and but for the boarded windows there is no evidence of the scenes that were transacted on Passaic avenue last week. The new men were brought over from No. 1 mill under a heavy guard and placed in their former quarters. No trouble is anticipated. Both sides declare they will never yield.

A Mad Dog. CAMDEN, N. J., Feb. 17.—A dog, evidently the victim of hydrophobia, was shot by Officer Miller, after it had bitten two men, torn the legs of the trousers worn by an electric lineman, torn a woman's dress and bitten other dogs. The animal, a spaniel, chased everybody of the street, and the policemen had a desperate fight with it before he succeeded in killing it. Those bitten had their wounds cauterized and will undergo treatment.
