"The Evils of Liquor Drinking."

TEXT: "Noah planted a vineyard, and he drank of the wine and was drunken."— Genesis ix., 20, 21.

This Noah did the best and the worst thing for the world. He built an ark against the deluge of water, but intro-duced a deluge against which the human race has ever since been trying to build an ark—the deluge of drunkenness. In my text we hear his staggering steps. Shem and Japhet tried to cover up the disgrace, but there he is, drunk on wine at a time in the history of the world when, to say the least, there was no lack of water. Inebriation, having entered the world, has not retreated. Abigail, the fair and heroic wife, who saved the flocks of Nabal, her husband, from confiscation by invaders, goes home at night and finds him so intoxicated she cannot tell him the story of his narrow escape. Uriah came to see David, and David got him drunk and paved the way for the despoliation of a household. Even the church bishops readed to be charged to be solver and not needed to be charged to be sober and not needed to be charged to be soler and not given to too much wine, and so familiar were people of Bible times with the stagger-ing and falling motion of the inebriate that Isaiah, when he comes to describe the final dislocation of the worlds, says, "The earth shall reel to and fro like a drunkard."

Ever since apples and grapes and wheat grew the world has been tempted to unhealthful stimulants. But the intoxicants of the olden time were an innocent beverage, a harmless orangeade, a quiet syrup, a peaceful soda-water as compared with the liquids of modern inebriation, into which a madness, and a fury, and a gloom, and a fire, and a suicide, and a retribution have mixed and mingled. Fermentation was always known, but it was rot until a thousand years after Christ that distillation was invented. While we must confess that some of the ancient arts have been lost, the Christian era is superior to all others in the bad eminence of whisky and rum and the bad eminence of whisky and rum and the bad eminence of whisky and rum and the deminance of which was the deminance of which was a superior to all others in the deminance of which was the The modern drunk is a hundredfold worse than the ancient drunk. Noah in his intoxication became imbecile, but the vic-tims of modern alcoholism have to struggle with whole menageries of wild beasts, and jungles of hissing serpents, and perditions of of blaspheming demons.

An arch fleud arrived in our world, and An arch fiend arrived in our world, and he built an invisible caldron of temptation. He built that caldron strong and stout for all ages and nations. First he squeezed into the caldron the juices of the forbidden fruit of Paradise. Then he gathered for it a distillation from the harvest fields and the orchards of the hemispheres. Then he poured into this caldron capsicum and copperas and log wood and deadly nightshade and assault and battery and vitriol and optim and run. and battery and vitriol and opium and rum and murder and sulphuric acid and theft and potash and cochineal and red carrots and poverty and death and hops. But it was a dry compound and it must be moistened, and it must be liquefied, and so the arch fiend poured into that caldron the tears of certuries of orphanage and widowhood, and he poured in the blood of twenty thousand as-

And then the arch fiend took a shovel that he had brought up from the furnaces be-neath, and he put that shovel into this great caldron and began to stir, and the caldron began to heave and rock and boil and sput-ter and hiss and smoke, and the nations gathered around it with cups and tankards and demijohns and kegs, and there was enough demijonns and kegs, and there was enough for all, and the arch fiend cried: "Aha! champion fiend am I! Who has done more than I have for coffins and graveyards and prisons and insane asylums, and the populat-ing of the lost world' And when this caldron is emptied I'll fill it again and I'll stir it segain and it will smoke again, and the is emptied I'll fill it again and I'll stir it again, and it will smoke again, and that smoke will join another smoke, the smoke of a torment that ascendeth for ever and ever. I drove fifty ships on the rocks of Newfoundland, and the Skerries, and the Goodwins. I have ruined more senators than gather this winter in the national councils. I have ruined more lords then ever your enthered in the house than are now gathered in the house of peers. The cup out of which I ordinarily drink is a bleached human skull, and the upholstery of my palace is so rich a crim because it is dyed in human gore, and the mosaic of my floors is made up of the bones of children dashed to death by drunken parents, and my favorite music—sweeter than Te Deum or triumphal march—my favorite music is the cry of daughters turned out at midnight on the street because father has come home from the carousal, and the seven hundred voiced shriek of the sinking steamer, because the captain was not him steamer, because the captain was not him-self when he put the ship on the wrong course. Champion fleed am I! I have kindled more fires, I have wrung out more agonies, I have stretched out more mid-night shadows, I have opened more Gol-gothas, I have rolled more Juggernauts, I have damned more souls than any other emissary of diabolism. Champion fiend

Drunkenness is the greatest evil of this nation, and it takes no logical process to prove to this audience that a drunken nation cannot long be a free nation. I call your attention to the fact that drunkenness is not subsiding, certainly that it is not at a stand-still, but that it is on an onward march, and it is a double quick. There is more rum swallowed in this country, and of a worse kind than was ever swallowed since the first distillery began its work of death. Where there was one drunken home there are ten drunken homes. Where there was one drunkerd's grave there are twenty drunk-ard's graves. It is on the increase. Talk about crooked whisky—by which men mean the whisky that does not pay the tax to government—I tell you all strong drink is crooked. Crooked Otard, crooked Cognac, crooked schnapps, crooked beer, crooked wine, crooked whisky—hexause it makes a man's path crooked, and his life crooked, and his death crooked and his eternity crooked.

his death crooked and his eternity crooked.

If I could gather all the armies of the dead drunkards and have them come to resurrection, and then add to that host all the armies of living drunkards, five and ten abreast, and then if I could have you mount a horse and ride along that line for review, you would ride that horse till he dropped from exhaustion, and you would mount another horse and ride until he fell from exhaustion, and you would take another and another, and you would ride along hour after hour and day after day. Great host, in regiments, in brigades. Great armies of them. And then if you had voice stentorian enough to make them all hear, and you could give the Great armies of them. And then if you had voice stentorian enough to make them all hear, and you could give the command, "Forward, march?" their first tramp would make the earth tremble. I do not care which way you look in the community to day the evil is increasing.

I call attention to two myth a thirst for the strong of the strong of the strong of the strong of death. Many a father has made a will of this sort. 'In the name of God, amen. I bequeath tomy children my houses and lands and estates; share and share shall they alike. Hereto I affix my hand and seal they alike. Hereto I affix my hand and seal they alike. Hereto I affix my hand and seal the thirty of the strong of the st and good men deceived, not knowing there is any thralldom of alcoholism coming from that source, are going down, and some day a man sits with the bottle of black bitters on a man sits with the bottle of black bitters on his table, and the cork flies out, and after it flies a flend and clutches the man by his throat and says: "Aha! I have been after you for ten years. I have got you now. Down with you, down with you," Bitters! Ah! yes. They make a man's family bitter and his home bitter and his disposition bitter and his death bitter and his hell bitter. Bitters. A vast army all the time increasing.

It seems to me it is about time for the 17, 000,000 professors of religion in America to take sides. It is going to be an out and out battle with drunkenness and sobriety, between heaven and hell, between God and the devil. Take sides before there is any further national decadence, take sides before your sons are sacrificed and the home of your daughter goes down under the alcoholism of an imbruted husband. Take sides while an imbruted husband. Take sides withe your voice, your pen, your prayer, your vote may have any influence in arresting the despoliation of this nation. If the 17,000,000 professors of religion should take sides on this subject it would not be very long before the destiny of this nation would be decided

Is drunkenness a state or national evil?

Does it belong to the North, or does it belong to the South? Does it belong to the East, or does it belong to the West? Ah, there is not an American river into which its tears have not fallen and into which its suicides have an American river into which its tears have not fallen and into which its suicides have not plunged. What ruined that Southern plantation?—every field a fortune, the pro-prietor and his family once the most affluent supporters of summer watering places. What threw that New England farm into decay and turned the roseate cheeks that bloomed at the foot of the Green Mountains into the pallor of despair? What has smitten every street of every village, town and city of this continent with a moral postilence? Strong

To prove that this is a national evil I call To prove that this is a national evil 1 can up two States in opposite directions—Maine and Georgia. Let them testify in regard to this. State of Maine says: "It is so great an evil up here we have anathematized it as a State." State of Georgia says: "It is so great an evil down here that ninety counties of this State have made the sale of intoxicating depths a criminality." So the word comes ting drink a criminality." So the word comes up from all parts of the land. Either drunkenness will be destroyed in this country or the American Government will be destroyed. Drunkenness and free institutions are com-

The most working classes is intoxicating liquor. It is the anarchist of the centuries, and has boycotted and is now boycotting the body and mind and soul of American labor. It annually swindles industry out of a large percentage of its earnings. It holds out its operative on his way to be a sorrels or life insurble army of teetotalism. Whisky, good to a corpse. Tens of thousands of young men have been dragged out of repectability and out of purity, and out of good character, and into darkness by this infernal stuff called strong drink. Do not touch it! will and diseased appetite, conquering, then will and diseased appetite, conquering, then surrendering, conquering again and surrendering again, and crying, "How long, O Lord! how long before these infamous solicitations shall be gone!" And how many mothers are waiting to see if this national curse cannot lift? Oh, is that the boy who had the honest breath who comes home with breath vitiated or disguised? What a change! How quickly those habits of early coming home have been exchanged for the rattling of the night key in the door long after the last watchman has gone by and tried to see that everything was closed up for the night.

How quickly those habits of early coming home have been exchanged for the rattling of the night key in the door long after the last watchman has gone by and tried to see that everything was closed up for the night.

Oh! what a change for that young man, who we had hoped would do something in merchandise or in artisanship or in a profession that would do hone to the family name, long after mother's wrinkled hands are folded from the last toil! All that exchanged for startled look when the door beil rings, lest something has happened; and the wish that the scarlet fever twenty years ago had been fatal, for them he would have gone directly to the bosom of his Saviour. But also you brought home dead! And how mother will still the theory in the hory is brought home dead! And how mother will still the the distance of the history in the hory is brought home dead! And how mother will sit there and say: "Is this my boy that I used to fondle, and that I waiked the floor with in the night when he was sick! Is this they do see this? the church of Ephesus, church of Thyatira, church of Sardis. The Protestant and Roman Catholic churches to-day stand side by side, with an impotent look, gazing on this evil, which costs this country more than a billion dollars a year to take care of the 300,000 dollars a year to take care of the 300,000 dollars, and the 315,000 criminals, and the 30,000 idiots, and to bury the 75,000 drunkards. Protagoras boasted that out of the sixty years of his life forty years he had spent in ruining youth; but this evil may make the more infamous boast that all its life it has been ruining the bodies, minds and souls of the human race.

Put on your spectacles and take a candle and examine the platforms of the two leading political parties of this country, and see what they are doing for the arrest of this evil and for the overthrow of this abomination. Resolutions—oh! yes, resolutions about tion. Resolutions—oh! yes, resolutions about Mormonism! It is safe to attack that organized nastiness two thousand miles away. But not one resolution against drunkenness. which would turn this entire nation into one bestial Salt Lake City. Resolutions about pro-tection against competition with foreign in trom scalp to heel. Resolutions about pro-tection against competition with foreign in-dustries, but not one word about protection of family and church and nation against the scalding, blasting, all consuming, damning tariff of strong drink put upon every finan-cial, individual, spiritual, moral, national interest

I look in another direction. The Church of I look in another direction. The Church of God is the grandest and most glorious institution on earth. What has it in solid phalanx accomplished for the overthrow of drunkenness? Have its forces ever been marshaled? No, not in this direction. Not long ago a great ecclesiastical court assembled in New York, and resolutions arraigning strong drink were offered, and clergymen with strong drink on their tables and strong drink in their cellars defeated the resolutions by threatening speeches. They could They could tions by threatening speeches. They could not bear to give up their own lusts. I tell this audience what many of you may

I tell this audience what many of you may never have thought of, that to-day—not in the millennium, but to-day—the church holds the balance of power in America; and if Christian people—the men and the women who profess to love the Lord Jesus Christ and to love purity and to be the sworn enmics of all uncleanness and debauchery and sin—if all such would march side by side and shoulder to shoulder this evil would soon be overthrown. Think of three hundred thou-Think of three hundred thou-sand churches and Sunday-schools in Chris-tendom marching shoulder to shoulder! How very short a time it would take them to put down this evil, if all the churches of God, transatiantic and cisatiantic, were armed on

It holds out its blasting solicitations to the mechanic or operative on his way to work, and at the noon spell and ou his way home at eventide. On Saturday, when the wages are paid, it snatches a large part of the money that might come to the family and sacrifices it among the saloon keepers. Stand the saloons of this country side by side, and it is carefully estimated that they would reach from New York to Chicago.

This evil is pouring its vitrolic and damnable liquors down the throats of hundreds of thousands of laborers, and while the ordinary strikes are ruinous, both to emhave started to go here to church, and I am going to attend service here." "Oh, Joe," his friend said, "you can go to church any time! The day is bright, and we'll go to Coney Island, and we'll have a splendid time." A new system of lighting by means of petroleum lamps has been introduced in one of the large railroad stations in London. The system consists in the use of a large tank containing the oil, from which pipes run to the various lamps, carrying the oil by gravitation, as needed. Each lamp has a small reservoir for holding sufficient oil to saturate the wick, the flow of oil being regulated by an auto-matic valve. The joints in the pipes are sealed by a material not affected by oil. The wick is lowered or raised by a wire outside of the lamp, and when the wick is lowered a flash light continues to burn, so that the entire wick can be lighted
