LOTTERY ARGUMENT.

Trying to Prove the Anti-Lottery Law Unconstitutional.

THE LIBERTY OF THE PRESS.

Counsel Taylor Asserts That the Government Has No More Right to Scrutinize Advertisement Than to Dictate Editorials -- Attorney General Maury's Argument.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 .- The United States supreme court yesterday heard arguments involving the constitutionality of the anti-lottery law. The cases are those of John M. Rapier, of the Manitou Register, and George W. Dupre, of the New Orleans States, who were arrested on the charge of depositing in the mails" newspapers containing lottery advertisements, and Dupre was charged also with depositing in the mails a letter about a lettery. The cases came to the supreme court on applications for writs of habeas corpus and certoriari.

Mr. Hannin Taylor, attorney for Rapier, opened the case on behalf of the petitioners. It has been recognized, he said, that the very essence of freedom of the press which the first amendment to the constitution guarantees is the right of circulation-not along the highways of commerce, over which congress could not possibly exercise any control in this regard, but along the great highway of the mail, the only highway which the government maintains and controls. The first amendment, together with the eleven which follow it, he maintained, had been declared by the supreme court to contain limitations, not upon powers which the Federal government never possessed, but upon powers actually vested in it by the constitution in its original form.

The Freedom of the Press.

As the only power thus vested whose exercise could possibly abridge the freedom of the press is the power to regulate the mails, to that power only could the freedom of the press clause of the first amendment apply. If that be true, he argued, then the very essence of the freedom which the first amendment guarantees is the irrevocable right of all newspapers to circulate through the mails, subject only to such implied restrictions as that amendment embodied. In view of this right to circulate through the mails, it was idle to contend that they stood on the same plane with merchandise, which was entitled to no protection. Following up his conclusions in arguing that advertisements are a vital part of a newspaper, Mr. Taylor said that nothing was better settled in the law of the press—the law of libel—than the fact that advertisements were a vital part of a newspaper, which stood upon the same footing with every other part. The power, he added, which could dictate what advertise-ments a newspaper should contain, could dictate what editorials should contain. The distinction attempted by the government had no basis either in reason or authority.

Congress' Discretion Absolute.

Mr. Taylor was followed by Assistant Attorney General Maury for the gov-ernment. There was, he said, no limi-tation whatever, so far as the terms of the power are concerned, on the will of congress, and if no limitation on the will of congress existed, there was no possible ground on which it could be argued that the laws of congress creating a postal service were not necessary and proper for carrying out the power to establish postoffices and post roads. The whole question was one of legislative discretion, with which the courts could not intermeddle except to prevent perversion and abuse. More than a century of acquiescence by the people of the United States in a construction of the constitution which proceeded on the op-posite side—that the discretion of congress is absolute under the power to es-tablish a postal system and is binding on the courts, as the supreme court had expressly ruled several times. No one could deny that congress had the power to say what shall be mail metter and what shall not. If congress deemed it advisable to exclude newspapers from the mails on any terms, might it not do

A Pestilent Practice.

Mr. Maury went on to contend that the general welfare allowed the government to do what it sees fit to prevent itself from being made an agency in promoting a pestilent and demoralizing practice, and he also argued that the right to exercise police power over the mails was not an abridgement of right. Concerning the freedom of the press, Mr. Maury contended that the right to exclude obscene and other immoral matter from the mails had never been denied, and could apply in the lottery

Mr. James C. Carter, of New York, counsel for Dupre, followed Mr. Maury. Mr. Carter had not finished his argument when the hour for adjournment

Knights Denounce Turner.

Toledo, O., Nov. 17.—The general assembly of the Knights of Labor approved the demand of the Women's Christian Temperance union for equal wages and equal suffrage. The second resolution of the women, declaring in favor of an equal standard for purity for both sexes, was approved. The as-sembly could not agree to the women's resolution that the World's fair be closed to visitors and opened on Sunday for worship. The fourth resolution, asking worship. The fourth resolution, asking the knights to petition the authorities to close saloons and prevent the sale of liquor on the fair grounds was rejected. Henry I. Allen, of Michigan, stated that as a member of the special finance compittee he knew ex-Secretary Turner's statement made in the papers, denouncing Powderly as dishonest, was untrue. He suggested that Powderly be requested to give a detailed statement, replying to the accusation of Turner. Powderly did so, verifying his statement with vouchers.

Chicago, Nov. 17.—The socialist mass meeting passed resolutions to the effect that on wash days the police scrutinize clothes lines, and where red flannel underwear is displayed the same shall be confiscated; every adult female wearing any article of red shall be at once ararrested; auctioneers must use a green or orange flag; no citizen shall blow his nose on a Thurman bandanna; only members of the police force shall wear a red nose; any meeting where the American flag is not displayed shall be adjourned and the promoters charged with high treason. Socialistic Sarcasm.

CHILEAN WAR HORRORS.

Terrible Butchery of Youths by Balmaceda's Troops. VALPARAISO, Nov. 16 .- The Chilean Times prints these details of the butchery at Locanas:

A few days before the 18th of August last about 150 young men agreed to assist the constitutional army so soon as it should arrive at Valparaiso. On Aug. 17 nearly all of them met on Lo-canas' estate, near Santiago. Unfortunately, a wretched traitor betrayed their plans to Balmaceda. At daybreak next morning the estate was surrounded by the dictator's soldiers and the band of gallant youths were rudely awakened by discharges of rifles and carbines. The first to leave was Don Arturo Undurrage Vicunna accompanied by twelve companions, and their lives were saved through the instrumentality of a roll of notes offered to and accepted by the soldiers. Others of their companions were less fortunate. A voice rang out to give the unfortunate youth no quarter. order was given by an aide of General Barbosa, named Alexjo San Martin.

At the first discharge six or eight of the young patriots fell. The remainder attempted to cut their way out. Fifteen or more were shot dead, five or six were wounded and ten or twelve were made prisoners. The wounded were bayoneted and sabred to death and their bodies were mutilated and burned Don Wenceslao Arangula Pontecilla was subjected to unspeakable horrors. He was bound to a tree and was beaten and cut with sabres and swords to compel him to disclose the hiding place of Don Carlos Walker Martinez. As he insisted that he knew nothing of the hiding place of his employer, first one leg and then the other was broken. Paraffin was thrown over him and set fire to, but the quantity was limited so as to prolong his agony, which lasted nearly an hour. In the midst of his hor-rible sufferings he appealed to his tor-mentors to kill him at once and put him out of misery, but they mocked and reviled his supplications.

The bodies of the remainder of the victims were subjected to unheard of atrocities. Some were cut in two at the middle and the parts were suspended by cords from trees amidst ferocious and denomiacal yells. The busts of others were placed upon the benches in the corridors, the eyes were picked out with bayonets, tongues were cut out and ears and noses were cut off. Later on the greater portion of the mutilated bodies and remains were collected and burned.

Outlaws Disperse Mexican Troops. RIO GRANDE CITY, Tex., Nov. 17 .-News just received here says that on the 12th inst. Catarino Garza and about one hundred men met several hundred his proclamations. A volley was fired at his force at close range, which was returned by the revolutionists, causing the death of three soldiers and one badly wounded, who is now in the Mier hospital. The govern-ment force fell back in disorder. Garza has not been out of Mexico since he entered it on the 15th of September, but has been working up a revolutionary feeling in the states of Tamaulipas and Nuevo Leon, with the above results.

Minister Porter atthe Capital. WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 .- Ex-Governor Porter, our minister to Italy, who arrived from Europe on Saturday, is now in this city. He has not yet called at the state department. He was granted leave of absence with permission to visit the United States, so his visit to Wash-ington is regarded to have no special significance, as it is customary for ministers on their return from abroad to call and pay their respects to the secretary of state, and receive any instructions he may wish to give them.

Almy Pleads Guilty. PLYMOUTH, N. H., Nov. 17 .- Frank C. Almy yesterday afternoon retracted his former plea, and pleaded guilty to the murder of Christie Warden. Almy's fate—imprisonment or death—will be known within the next three days. The government and the defense will bring forth their witnesses, and the case will go on as though before a jury. If the judges find that murder has been committed in the first degree Almy most hang, but if in the second degree the maximum penalty is thirty years in state prison.

A Mother's Fearful Crime.

LONDON, Nov. 17 .- At Titchfield-with-Crofton, Hants, a woman who had been summoned by the police for ill treating her three little girls, infuriated by this, cut their throats and tried to kill herself. She is not expected to live.

READING, Pa., Nov. 16.—The remains of William P. Bard, Esq., the well known lawyer, who disappeared from his home ten days ago, were found in the Schuylkill river in the lower part of the city yesterday afternoon. It was generally supposed that he had gone west, as he had not been seen in this city since the 4th inst.

MILFORD, Pa., Nov. 16.—There is great excitement in Pike county, Pa., over the shooting of T. E. Davis, wife and son by a worthless fellow named Simon Fields, aged 22 years, with whom Davis and his family had always been on good terms. The Davises were all seriously wounded, and it is feared that the father will die. Their assailant is in jail here.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Nov. 17 .- The thirteen former employes of the Catasauqua Manufacturing company, who participated in a riot and were found guilty of unlawful assembly on Saturday, were to have been sentenced yesterday, but Judge Albright for some cause again suspended sentence until Dec. 21. Edward Edwards, superintendent of the Fullerton rolling mill, was prosecutor.

Easton, Pa., Nov. 12.-Miss Alta Felker, the Easton domestic who, about two weeks ago, was suddenly bereft of her speech, hearing and use of her lower limbs, the result of a fright while attending a picnic at Reeders, in Monroe county, is recovering her lost powers. She is now able to walk a short distance, for the first time since her misfortune. She is afflicted with frequent spasms.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Nov. 11 .- Percival Emerson, aged 45, was found dead in Commiskey's quarry, 150 yards from his home at Newtown. He started out to pay his rent to Commiskey and was not seen alive after doing so. It is probable that he was taking a short cut home past the quarry and fell fifteen feet to the rocks below. His neck was broken, His money and watch were found all right, and the theory of foul play is not Pottstown, Pa., Nov. 16.-There was a horrible burning accident in Doug-lass township. Mrs. Patrick Kane came to Pottstown, leaving two little children at home. When she arrived home she found the body of her 3-year-old boy almost burned to a crisp, lying on the floor, while in a few minutes more the babe, several feet away, would have met a similar fate. The little boy had been playing with matches and they ignited his clothing.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 16.-The Columbus club, the leading Catholic organization of Pennsylvania, the membership of which includes many of Pittsburg's most prominent business men, met and denounced Benjamin Butterworth, secretary of the World's fair commission, for his uttetances reflecting upon the Cath-olic church. After several bitter speeches had been delivered a resolution was passed demanding an apology or the retirement of Butterworth. WEST CHESTER, Pa., Nov. 13.-The many Christian Endeavor societies of Chester county are in convention at Berwyn, and the Presbyterian church at that place is scarcely large enough to hold all the delegates. There are about thirty societies represented, twice as many as were in the convention one year ago. Pottstown, Pa., Nov. 16 .- The sensation caused by the arrest of several citizens of Pottstown for alleged infraction of the liquor law at the recent fair has taken another turn. The prosecutor, A. G. Lackenmayer, of Norristown, withdrew his suit against Captain William Auchenbach, because, he says, he could not get evidence to fasten the charge on him. Captain Auchenbach has begun proceedings against Lachenmayer for false arrest and malicious prosecution

CHESTER, Pa., Nov. 16.—The Phila-delphia, Wilmington and Baltimore rail-road disregards the sheriff and proposes to take possession of Tilgham street. Sheriff John D. Howard has sworn in a posse of men, and a strict guard will be kept. The sheriff had to threaten to shoot any one whom he caught violat-ing the injunction and to put the fore-man in prison for contempt of court if he allowed any further trespass. Reading has a large force on hand to prevent their tracks being crossed.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 16. — Frederick Turner, secretary and treasurer of the Knights of Labor prior to the Indianapolis convention of 1888, fires a broadside at General Master Workman Powderly in defense of the charges made at the present Detroit convention that he was short in his accounts. Some of the canceled checks which Mr. Turner exhibits are the basis of a remarkable tale concerning Mr. Powderly's use of the order's money and his "private" and "confidential" instructions as to little arrangements of his own.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 16.—A diphtheria epidemic is feared among the medical profession, owing to the prevalence of the disease in all parts of the city. In some portions it is even now almost epidemic, and spreading rapidly. The disease is most noticeable and in its worst form in the northeastern part of the city. It is also alarmingly bad in the recently built up northwestern districts, where, owing to the altitude and freedom from all contaminating influences, the saniowing to the altitude and freedom from all contaminating influences, the sani-tary conditions are generally conceded to be of the best.
