BY FLOOD AND FIRE.

Thirty-seven bodies have already been recovered in this city, and reports from further down Oil creek are that seventeen more bodies have been picked up. Fully 2,000 people witnessed five strong men perish together. Holding to a piece of timber, they were struggling to make the shore, and just as they reached out for a grasp at the bank, a neighboring oil tank exploded, the river of burning oil enveloping the men. Death came almost instantly.

TITUSVILLE, Pa., June 8.—It is now estimated by the conservative people that no less than 100 lives have been sacrificed in this city. Reports have reached here that a number of bodies have been taken out of the water between here and Oil City, but as yet these reports have not been verified. It is the general opinion, however, that at least thirty or forty bodies have been floated down the stream and are liable to float some distance towards Pittsburg before they are recovered. Thirty bodies were buried yesterday.

OIL CITY'S VISITATION.

Over Two Hundred Dead and Many Frightfully Burned.
OIL CITY, Pa., June 6.—Flood and fire Saturday night and yesterday laid waste large sections of this city and Titusville and a fearful loss of life has resulted. The wildest stories of its magnitude are afloat, one report being that 190 bodies have been recovered. In this city alone half a hundred dead bodies have been identified, and it is believed our death list may exceed a hundred.

A territory of at least forty acres, being a narrow strip along Oil creek, is burned or flooded, or both. In addition to those dead a large number are injured, and probably a thousand people are homeless. The fire started in this city at 11:40 o'clock yesterday forenoon with an explosion of naphtha and oil on the surface of Oil creek. The creek was at a fearful height. The people of the city were apprised of the Titusville calamity early in the morning, and the whole town was out watching the rising of the waters.

The entire upper end of Oil City on both sides of the creek was under water at the time of the explosion which caused the awful conflagration. The town consists of four principal parts. The south side is on the opposite side of the Allegheny river, and was at no time in danger. In the acute angle formed by the confluence of Oil creek and the Allegheny river lies the business section of the city, and across Oil creek and down the west bank of the Allegheny is the Third ward, which is the district entirely destroyed.

Many houses on both sides a short distance above the business portion of the town were partially submerged. A thick coating of oil, presumably from bursted tanks in the region of Titusville, covered the surface of the creek. Floating along were three tanks of naphtha. The sun was shining hot and caused a vapor of oil fumes to rise from the wide surface of the creek. Several thousand people seemed to simultaneously recognize their peril. It is believed that a spark from an engine on the Western New York and Pennsylvania railroad ignited the fumes, which could be plainly seen dazzling in the air about twenty feet above the surface of the surging water. Eye witnesses say sheets of flame and volumes of smoke shot upward to a height of 100 feet in the vicinity of a bridge crossing Oil creek, 500 yards above the junction with the river. In two minutes the fire had spread up and down the river for over two miles. In less than ten minutes between two and three hundred buildings were in flames.

The thousands of witnesses were thrown into a state of the wildest panic. Men, women and children ran through the streets screaming and beseeching each other to be conducted to a place of safety. Clouds of smoke obscured everything. When the darkness was most dense three frightful explosions in succession shook the very earth. These were the floating naphtha tanks in the creek. The cause was not then known and a feeling that some horribly uncertain fate was impending added to the other terrors. A strong wind came up, partially removing the veil of darkness, blowing directly towards that part situated on the south bank of the creek, and this is all that saved the entire city from destruction. The terrorized masses by this time partially regained self possession. It was then evident that the whole of the Third ward and a large number of buildings on both sides of the creek farther up were doomed. Lower down, where the buildings were above the water surface, the fire was swept directly in among them.

Many of the persons who lost their lives were overtaken in the streets as they fled for safety. An almost perpendicular wall of stone hemmed the victims in on one side, the river on the other, and the devouring flames at their rear. Others were burned in their houses and many were drowned. One rescuing party with a large skiff load of persons, taken from flooded houses, was overtaken by the blazing oil and all perished. Four of a party who stood on the Western New York and Pennsylvania bridge are known to be dead.

OIL CITY, Pa., June 8.—The entire Oil creek valley has been converted into a valley of death. More than 200 dead and more than $3,000,000 worth of property destroyed is the awful result of the fire crowned flood. Every public building in this city and Titusville has been turned into a morgue and every private residence is a hospital.

The funerals of twenty-two of the identified dead took place yesterday, among them that of the Mills family—father, mother and four children. The interment was conducted by the Odd Fellows. Not a relative was present, but many a stout heart was stung with the bitterness of death as the last little casket was consigned to the earth. The Mills family came from Ireland five months ago.

KEYSTONE STATE NEWS.

TAMAQUA, Pa., June 8.—John Gallagher, of Sunbury, a brakeman on the Philadelphia and Reading railroad, was struck by a rafter in the tunnel two miles above this place and instantly killed. His head was crushed to a jelly, and his body was otherwise badly mangled.

READING, Pa., June 7.—Jesse Orr, resident of the Reading stove works, died suddenly yesterday. He had gone to Waynesburg, Chester county, with several friends, on a fishing expedition. While at the station waiting for the train to return he was seized with apoplexy and expired a few minutes later. Deceased was 57 years of age.

ALLENTOWNS, Pa., June 7.—During a sham battle on the Lehigh county fair grounds yesterday afternoon County Surveyor Charles W. Wentzell was engaged in loading a cannon when the weapon exploded prematurely, and he was killed almost instantly. The ramrod passed nearly through his body. The unfortunate man was 35 years, old and leaves a widow.

TAMAQUA, Pa., June 7.—While the people of New Silverbrook, Kline township, were holding a picnic services in the three-story school house at this place lightning struck the building, badly shattering it and shocking six persons. Three men named Gardner, Raisins and Miller are probably fatally injured. An eye witness says a large ball of fire descended through the building.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., June 7.—Edward McMillan, the wife murderer, was hanged in the Luzerne county prison yesterday. His neck was broken, and he died in eight and one-half minutes. He died protesting his innocence. He was calm and apparently unmoved, except that the crucifix which he held in his right hand shook visibly. McMillan assisted Sheriff Shook in the hanging.

LANCASTER, Pa., June 8.—The County Agricultural society has appointed a committee to confer with the committee of the State Fair association as to the site of the proposed state fair this year. Two of the state committees were in the city yesterday. Lancaster was preferred as the place for the fair. A business men's meeting will be held shortly and the necessary amount of cash subscribed to assure its being held here.

SOMERSET, Pa., June 6.—The jury in the case of "General" Sigel Miller, on trial for the murder of Moonshiner Hochstetler, rendered a verdict of guilty of murder in the second degree. As soon as the verdict was announced the attorneys for Bob Miller, the "General's" son, whose case was being tried, announced that if the commonwealth would agree they would withdraw their plea of not guilty and institute one of guilty manslaughter. This was agreed to.

MONONGAHELA CITY, Pa., June 8.—A cloud burst here yesterday lightning played havoc. The Pennsylvania railroad bridge was washed away and the river bridge is in great danger. Horses and other stock were drowned, and it is feared some lives were lost. Dwellings on the lowlands were flooded, the occupants being compelled to flee for their lives. The Episcopal church was shattered by lightning. Washouts are numerous along the Monongahela divisions of the Pennsylvania railroad, causing delay to trains.

FRANKLIN, Pa., June 6.—At 1 o'clock in the morning an explosion of dynamite occurred at Kensington, this county, in the house of J. K. Turner, a jeweler. Two persons were killed instantly. They are J. K. Turner, jeweler, and Miss Emma Scheffer, of Emlenton, Pa. The wife and two children of Turner were badly injured. That the house was blown up deliberately seems certain, as Mr. Turner was never known to have dynamite in his dwelling or store. The explosion was one of great force, breaking windows and doors at some distance.

CHESTER, Pa., June 7.—A church council of Baptist clergymen met in the First Baptist church and decided the ordination of Rev. William H. Wentz null, and withdrew the hand of fellowship as a member of the gospel. Three charges were made against the young clergyman, forging the letter by which he secured his ordination to the ministry and secured his education at the Crozier Theological seminary, repeated a persistent falsehood, and endeavoring to be released from his married relation on the ground of desertion. Wentz was present, and admitted all the charges after being subjected to considerable questioning.

PHILADELPHIA, June 7.—Dr. Henry F. Formad, the eminent pathologist, died of cholera morbus Sunday, after an illness of only six hours' duration, aged 45. As an expert in morbid anatomy Dr. Formad had few equals, and was constantly sought after to give his testimony in murder trials, where his knowledge of microscopy a study he practically introduced into this country, enabled him to determine the exact nature of blood stains. Among the famous trials in which he figured are those of Lingo, Leconey and Mrs. Schmidt, and Frenchy and C. Carlyle Harris, in New York. In the course of his eventful career Dr. Formad held post mortem examinations on over 10,000 bodies.

PHILADELPHIA, June 8.—At an early hour in the morning William Dragon, a young colored man, was found under the Pennsylvania railroad bridge which spans Cresheim creek near Wissahickon Heights, with his throat cut and two fearful gashes in his head. He had been dead several hours, and every indication points to a most brutal murder. Dragon boarded at the house of Philip Rumble (white). After making a thorough investigation the police arrested Mr. and Mrs. Rumble, Albert Clark, a boarder at their house, and Mary Dowdes and Martha Sprague, two colored girls. All denied knowledge of the crime. The latest theory is that Rumble is alone responsible for the crime.

PITTSBURG, June 8.—Pittsburg river men are expecting a big flood in the Monongahela river. The marks show thirteen and a half feet and rising rapidly. Heavy rain storms up the river is the cause. Thousands of dollars worth of damage is reported from various points above. Bridges are washed out and railroads on both sides blocked by numerous slides. Three inches of rain fell at Lock No. 4 and the river rose two feet in an hour, and is still rising fast. River men have steam up in all their craft, and are busy making more secure the large fleets of coalnaw in the harbor. The police have warned all the people living on the south side lowlands and in shanty boats to look out for flood. In nearly every instance they moved their families and household goods to places of safety.

Yes, Beware!
Beware of the get-rich-quick fraternal alliances that are being established all over the country, says an exchange. They are going to pieces almost every day, but it is noticeable that they do not go to pieces until the officers of the head office have corraled all the money. It's the same old game of swindle that gave birth to grave-yard insurance companies, and people who go into it must expect to be bitten and robbed. It is a risky investment to put your money in the care of strangers, when there is nothing in sight for it, and you have to rely on promises instead of something tangible. Put your money in home things where you can see it, and be not deceived by the stranger with his offer of 25 and 50 per cent. on your investment. You may get one dividend of that kind, but by the time the next one is due your principal and interest may be wiped out, and some strange rascal who had the handling of it will be laughing over how he "done" the jays through his get-rich-quick swindle.

I Am So Tired.
Is a common exclamation at this season. There is a certain bracing effect in cold air which is lost when the weather grows warmer; and when Nature is renewing her youth, her admirers feel dull, sluggish and tired. This condition is owing mainly to the impure condition of the blood, and its failure to supply healthy tissue to the various organs of the body. It is remarkable how susceptible the system is to the help to be derived from a good medicine at this season. Possessing just those purifying, building up qualities which the body craves, Hood's Sarsaparilla soon overcomes that tired feeling, restores the appetite, purifies the blood, and, in short, imparts vigorous health. Its thousands of friends as with one voice declare "It Makes the Weak Strong."

To Remain Poor.
To always remain poor you should begin when quite young. Think there is no use of racking your brain in pursuit of knowledge, and work just enough to get a few clothes and a little spending money and have a good time. If you lack change just borrow from one of the boys and then forget it. Marry quite young; your wife must play and sing just lovingly and make splendid angel cake, no matter if she can't cook a good meal of victuals or bake a loaf of bread. Then begin house-keeping and look around for a little job. If you get a little money just treat the boys, it makes no difference what your family needs. Follow these rules and you will always remain poor.
