THE RACKET

LATEST RETURNS!

Just received our second stock of them, for this season, this week. Many handsome patterns. Pleasing and pretty designs—The very latest styles—We have them. You should see them.

LOCAL DEPARTMENT.

In another column will be found an advertisement for the sale of some valuable real estate, for merly the property of W. H. Blair, dec'd, of Bellefonte.

Mr. John Eby, of Zion, while attempting to move some heavy timber, at Henry Gentzel's barn raising last Thursday, had one of his hands badly smashed.

Centre county's office holders, at Washington, are all home this week to vote and pay friends a short visit. Nearly everyone voted for Harrison, of course—that's business—not a matter of choice.

The personal property of the late Father Mollinger, of Pittsburg, was sold on Wednesday, and to-day the stocks and bonds will offered for sale, but the relics will not be sold until the court decides who the rightful owners of them are.

On Tuesday night the death of Mrs. Josiah Johnson, of Hecla, occurred, after a long illness. She was 58 years of age and leaves a husband and several children. The cause of her death was dropsy of the chest. The funeral will occur on Friday morning.

Herbert Butts left on Wednesday for Spangler, Pa., where he will open up a harness store. That town is growing and is in need of such a department. He will open up with a full line of all kinds of harness and horseman's supplies. Mr. Butts is well booked in that business and worked for a number of years with Mr. Schofield in this place.

On Saturday afternoon, of this week, a game of foot ball will be played at State College between that institution and the Bucknell boys, of Lewisburg. A special train will be run from Bellefonte at 1 p. m. The admission to see the game will be fifty cents. Last Saturday Bucknell defeated Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa. They have a good eleven but State College will be ready to recover the game they lost last season at Lewisburg.

RECEIVING THE NEWS.

Great Rejoicing Among Democrats During the Night.

For the purpose of receiving the returns the democrats had their headquarters in the club rooms above Reynolds' bank. The republicans held forth in the large hall, in the Bush Arcade.

The Western Union telegraph office furnished associate press dispatches for both and the long distance telephone company kindly furnished news free of cost, over their lines.

The first dispatches of any importance began to pour in from New York city. These invariably sent thrills of joy to the anxiously waiting democrats. Their long pent up enthusiasm began to pour out in rousing cheers for Cleveland. Hats were thrown in the air and smashed down over one another's heads. Tin horns popped out from overcoat pockets and their shrill, piercing, deafening blasts caused our dear friends the republicans to shiver in dismay. Dispatch followed dispatch with the news growing better. Men and boys, old and young, joined in the jubilee jollification. It was like a genuine old-fashioned campmeeting revival—all were happy and a shouting.

At 12 p. m., positive news was received that Cleveland had been elected. Later Col. Spangler appeared, who had the privilege of spending the evening with some of our prominent republicans, and stated that he was in possession of information from republican sources, conceding the election of Cleveland and Stevenson. That was enough.

The crowd poured out and with hundreds in line the procession proceeded to republican headquarters to extend comfort and consolation to those poor souls in the hour of distress.

While marching down High street, the court house was illuminated and the old bell began to peal forth ringing notes of rejoicing. Fire works illuminated the sky while tin horns did the rest. The public well knew that something had dropped—it was Harrison. The republican headquarters presented a sad picture—fallen countenances, drooping heads the army of disappointed office holders from Washington, huddled together in groups meant that misery loves company. It was sad, sad, to behold.

A procession of men on horseback, with girdles of sleigh bells about the steeds and each one carrying a large colored illuminated balloon, headed by Chief Heine, formed at the head of a large parade that started to do up the town. Their expedition, was by no means a failure—they made enough noise and commotion to wake the dead.

A large bonfire in the diamond was surrounded by hundreds of democrats who held a regular war dance around the fire. The shouts and noise continued until morning.

It was a great night for the democrats. They had cause to rejoice.

HEDGE FENCE.

Company Organized Last Week For Centre County.

The "Centre county Fencing Company, Limited" is the name of a company that was organized last week, for the purpose of introducing a new plan of hedge fencing in this county. The company was organized with the following officials: James H. Carner, Hubbsburg, President; J. S. McCargar, Bellefonte, Secretary and Manager; John W. Eby, Zion, Treasurer; Board of Managers, James H. Carner, J. S. McCargar, John W. Eby, M. S. Feidler, of Millheim, and M. Haveña, of Lewisburg.

The fence built by them is considered a cheap, practical and lasting affair. Osage orange sprouts are planted eight inches apart. In a few years they grow to a height of four feet when they are lapped over each other like net or lattice work and the tops are securely held in place by a wire strand.

This kind of a fence, when completed, costs but $1.10 per rod and will last for generations and does not require a cent to repair.

Many rods of this fence have been planted in our county already and by next season will be completed so that our people can see just what it is.

The company is composed of our most reliable citizens and that is sufficient to guarantee it careful consideration.

New Postal Card.

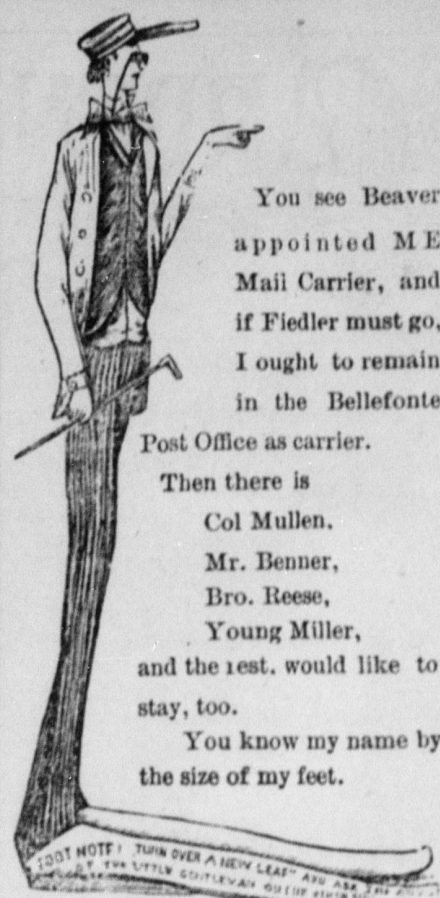

This week the new postal card was put on sale in the Bellefonte post office. It consists of a folded card. The one "flap" or leaf is used for the address and message, while the other leaf can be torn off at the edge or fold and used for a reply. It will prove quite a convenience and especially to business houses who are anxious for a reply.

His Foot Twisted Off.

Last week while Melville Stahl, of Beech Creek, was working at a hay baling machine on the farm of John Gummo, near that place, his right foot was caught in the machinery, twisted, and the bone snapped right above the ankle joint.

State College Wins.

On last Saturday the State College foot ball team defeated the Athletic team of Pittsburg, at that place, by a score of 16 to 6. This caused much rejoicing among the students of that institution.

You see Beaver appointed ME Mail Carrier, and if Fiedler must go, I ought to remain in the Bellefonte Post Office as carrier.

Then there is Col Mullen. Mr. Benner, Bro. Reese, Young Müller, and the rest, would like to stay, too. You know my name by the size of my feet.

Councils Doings.

The session of boro council, on Monday evening, was of special interest. The ordinary routine of business was transacted, but in addition a motion was made for placing bonds for $100,000. The limit of these bonds, given years ago to an exorbitant rate of interest, expires April 1st, 1893. The motion was made that an advertisement be issued to obtain this money after next April, at a rate of interest not higher than 4 per cent. After an animated discussion it was carried. The boro council is to be congratulated for taking this wise step, which is in the interest of an over taxed public.

A motion was passed to obtain 1,000 vitrified brick for street crossings.

The policemen were instructed to report all electric street lights that do not burn regularly.

For some time our Linn street aristocracy have complained of the fire alarm whistle, at the electric light station, and even threatened to bring suit against the company if they continued to blow the same. The necessity of this fire alarm is so well known that almost every property owner, and the fire companies, demanded that these few should not rule the town. The result of council deliberations on that point is that in the future the whistle be blown. That is exactly right, and every body you meet says so. Of course the blowing of that whistle may rasp the ears of some, but the safety of the town, in case of fire, is of decidedly more importance.

Attempted Murder.

The Tyrone Herald says: William Anderson, colored, Monday afternoon attempted to murder his employer, S. Harvey Boyer.

About half past three o'clock Anderson entered the restaurant of the Boyer House in an intoxicated condition. Striding up to Mr. Boyer, who was sitting in an arm chair, he asked for $2, the amount of wages due him. His employer told him that he couldn't have any money until he became sober when all due him would be paid. Thereupon Anderson whipped out a revolver from his overcoat pocket and with an oath fired at Mr. Boyer. The maddened man fired repeatedly, discharging five of the six loads. The first bullet cut a hole through Mr. Boyer's hat; the second imbedded itself in the right arm near the shoulder; the third entered the left forearm. Anderson had fired so rapidly that not until three shots had been fired did Mr. Boyer succeed in getting from his chair to grapple with his assailant.

The assaulted man was in time, however, to strike up Anderson's arm when he fired the fourth and fifth shots. The reports had been heard by William Brumbaugh, a boy in the employ of Mr. Boyer, and he ran as soon as possible to the scene. Young Brumbaugh's quick wit brought a speedy end to the disturbance. He first threw a quart bottle at the burly assailant, then sent a heavy monkey-wrench in the same direction. The monkey-wrench struck Anderson just below the right eye cutting a fearful gash and effectually stunning the would-be assassin. Mr. Boyer then succeeded in felling him, and the alarm being given, Chief Snyder appeared promptly and placed the fellow under arrest.

He was escorted to Hollidaysburg that night by Officer H. R. Miller. Mr. Boyer's arms are very sore. He kept remarkably cool under the trying circumstances, and he hasn't yet determined whether he will have the balls extracted from his arms or keep them there as relics of the episode.

WE GOT YOUR BOODLE.

BELLEFONTE FENCIBLES.

The Survivors Held Their First Reunion Last Friday Night.

An interesting occasion among the old soldiers was a reunion of the surviving members of the Bellefonte Fencibles, held Friday evening, in this place. The Bellefonte Fencibles was a military company organized years before the late rebellion and was composed of young men of the first families of Bellefonte. For this reason they were universally termed the "kid-glove" company. Ex-Governor Curtin was the captain of the company. When the war broke out and President Lincoln called for three-months' volunteers the Bellefonte Fencibles, one hundred strong, was the second company to reach Harrisburg on its way to the national capitol. It served for three months at the expiration of which time it disbanded as a company, but all the members, with a few exceptions, re-enlisted and served through the war. The reunion held here was the first of the kind ever held.

The meeting was called to order by Colonel George A. Bayard and an organization effected by electing Robert Valentine president; James H. Rankin, reading clerk, and C. P. Stonerode, secretary. About twenty-five of the original one hundred members were present. Interesting speeches were made and the evening's reunion terminated with a grand banquet. Members of the company were present from Chicago, Washington, Altoona, Tyrone and other places. Meyer's orchestra furnished music for the occasion.

SIGNAL SERVICE.

Weather Reports to be Received at Centre Hall.

Daily reports from the United States Signal Service will in the future be received at Centre Hall, and by means of the different flags flying from a large flag staff, the predictions for the next twenty-four hours will be announced.

There are but two stations in this section. One at State College and the other at Bucknell University, Lewisburg, and the placing of one at Centre Hall, will make two in the county.

For the flying of the weather flags, a large pole will be erected near Dauberman's store, which can be seen by the surrounding country. Mr. John Dauberman will have charge of the service and apparatus and from him they will get the condition of the weather for the day. The predictions will be received by him by telegraph at eight o'clock each morning and by means of the different flags, it will be announced to the section.

Hastings and Spangler.

The correspondent to the Hastings' Tribune says: Gen. Hastings and Col. Spangler, as is well known, are associated in the coal business, and both close students of the one great issue of the day. The former is howling for more protection; the latter says we don't need any on coal. The miners say give us good steady work, and on this point the above gentlemen agree, as the mines of which they are at the head, have continued on at work uninterruptedly through the severe depressions of the last four years.

New Bridge at Troy's.

The abutments for the new iron bridge at Troy's, near Philipsburg, over the Moshannon, connecting Centre and Clearfield counties, are completed. The grading for the roadbed on either side is also about finished. The channel between the abutments is nearly another time as wide as it was heretofore and the bridge will be about six feet higher than the old one, which will give the high water an abundance of space to pass under. The iron for the structure has not yet arrived, but within a couple of weeks everything is expected to be completed for the public traffic.

Funeral of Mrs. Schroyer.

On Monday the remains of Mrs. Rebecca Schroyer, who died at her home near Chicago last week, arrived and were taken to the residence of Mrs. Jonathan Harper, Linn street. The interment occurred that afternoon in the Union cemetery, this place.

Fire at State College.

On Monday morning, of last week, a spark from the stack caused a fire to break out on the middle wing of the large building. The alarm soon brought the bucket brigade out and after some hard work they succeeded in rescuing the building from the flames.

Licensing Engineers.

The question of licensing engineers is being so agitated in every state in the Union that within a short time, for the protection of human lives, it will be impossible for any one intrusted with steam to hold or secure a situation without passing a rigid examination and obtaining a license. Stephenson's Illustrated Practical Test has been published to aid engineers preparing to pass such examination; and as it embraces all the questions asked on the Boiler, Pump, Engine, Dynamo, Corliss Engine, &c., it has already met with such a demand that it is now in its fourth edition. This work, which only costs one dollar, can be obtained of the publisher, Walter C. Kraft, 70 La Salle Street, Chicago.
