HON. J. H. ORVIS.

EXPIRES SUDDENLY FROM HEMORRHAGES.

An Honored Citizen.—An Eminent Jurist and Lawyer.—Interesting Career Closed.—Death Caused by Hemorrhages.—Brief Biography.

Ex-Judge Jno. H. Orvis died on Monday afternoon, at his residence, on East Linn street, after an illness of but a few days. On Friday he returned from a two weeks' deer hunting trip at Spruce Run Park. He appeared to be in elegant health and was in the best of spirits, having thoroughly enjoyed his outing. That night he had an attack of hemorrhages of the stomach. In the morning, feeling better, he came to his office expecting to go to Lock Haven on professional business. Friends, however, persuaded him to return home. He returned home went to bed and continued to grow worse until Monday afternoon when he died from sheer exhaustion, resulting from the excessive hemorrhages. The funeral will take place at his late residence on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

John Holden Orvis was born in Sullivan township, Tioga county, Penna., February 24th, 1835. His father was a well-to-do farmer, and as a boy he worked on his father's farm. In the fall of 1847 he came to Howard, this county, making his home with his half-brother, Orrin T. Noble, Esq., now of Lock Haven, Pa. While living at Howard he attended the public schools, of that place, during the winter months and a select school during the summer. During the winter of 1850 and 1851 he taught school in Howard, now Curtin township, and later taught a term at Rockhill, in Harris township. For a short time he attended New London Academy, in Chester county. In the spring of 1851 he went to Baltimore where he learned the printing trade. From 1853 to the winter of 1856 he spent in teaching, type setting and reading law, and in February, 1856, he was admitted to the Clinton county bar and commenced the practice of his profession.

His educational advantages were very limited, having, prior to the spring of 1851, no opportunities to acquire an education except what was offered by the public schools of that early day, and a select school, at Howard, not much superior to the public schools. While attending the New London Academy he took some of the advanced studies, but most of his literary training was acquired under private tutors while engaged in teaching. He studied the higher mathematics under Prof. Waring and the languages under other teachers at times. He had to depend entirely upon his own resources in preparing himself for his professional life and was, in the full sense of the term, a self-made man. As a lawyer he rose rapidly in his chosen profession and soon gained a reputation that brought him an excellent practice. From the time of his admission to the bar until November, 1862, he practiced in Clinton county, when he removed to Bellefonte where he has since resided. About the time he came to Centre county he formed a partnership with the late Senator Cyrus T. Alexander, under the firm name of Orvis & Alexander. Both members of the new firm were bright and energetic young men and their partnership soon became one of the leading law firms in Central Pennsylvania.

In the fall of 1872 Judge Orvis received the nomination of his party for the Legislature, and the next year he was elected by the largest majority given to any candidate on the ticket. In 1873 he was unanimously nominated and re-elected by a greatly increased majority. In the House he soon became the leader of his party and at the opening of the session of 1874 he was made the democratic candidate for Speaker. Before his second term expired he was appointed additional Law Judge of the judicial district comprising the counties of Centre, Clinton and Clearfield. Hon. Charles A. Mayer being the President Judge.

He was nominated by his party for the fall term in 1874 and elected by a large majority, his opponent being Hon. J. B. McEnally, of Clearfield. He served as additional Law Judge until the winter of 1881, when he became President Judge of the new judicial district composed of the counties of Centre and Huntingdon. He resigned the Judgeship in the spring of 1884 to return to the practice of the law and has ever since been actively engaged in his profession. On the 1st of January, 1884, he associated with himself C. M. Bower, Esq., and his only son Ellis L. Orvis, Esq., and the firm of Orvis, Bower & Orvis has, since then, been one of the leading law firms in this section.

As a lawyer Judge Orvis had few equals. He had a most remarkable memory and his power of judgment and judicial discrimination were unsurpassed. His mind was thoroughly trained, and a rich storehouse of sound legal principles. In a trial of a case he was calm and collected, and scarcely ever disconcerted by any turn a case might take. His arguments were always forcible and persuasive, and remarkable, as well, for the clearness of thought, as the elegance and purity of their diction.

Among the eminent jurists of his time he was recognized as one of the foremost lawyers of Pennsylvania. Judge Black, in speaking of Judge Orvis' legal attainments said: "There is only one John Orvis in Pennsylvania." Ex-Attorney General Lewis C. Cassidy, after listening to an argument made by Judge Orvis, before the Supreme Court, said: "Orvis is one of the strongest lawyers I ever listened to." Hon. Geo. A. Jenks, Hon. Wayne MacVeagh and others of equal eminence have frequently expressed their high appreciation of his superior abilities as a lawyer. Judge Orvis' career on the bench was a brilliant one. His opinions, though only a Common Pleas Judge, are frequently quoted and esteemed by lawyers as sound expositions. His charge to the jury in the noted ejectment case of Pruner and others vs. Bribin and others, is considered one of the finest expositions of law contained in the Law Reports, of Pennsylvania. The case was taken to the Supreme Court and the judgment of the court below affirmed. In the report of the case the charge is printed in full, and the opinion of the Supreme Court refers to it as containing a correct view of the law involved in the controversy. In many other cases, both as judge and lawyer, he was instrumental in establishing principles that will remain the fixed law of the state.

The death of Judge Orvis is an irreparable loss to the legal profession, and especially to the younger members of the bar. His counsel was never sought in vain by young men. It was his especial delight to aid and assist them. He always seemed anxious to see that they should form correct habits of study and practice. All felt that he was their friend in need, he was deeply interested in their professional success, and to him they could apply for aid at all times and under all circumstances.

In the community he will be missed as much as in the legal profession. He was constantly consulted by those who needed the assistance of a friend. His opinion in all matters was constantly solicited and highly prized. His acts of charity were numerous, but given in such a way that no one was aware of what had been done except himself and the recipient of the bounty. The distress of his neighbor always enlisted his deepest sympathy and received his prompt assistance. His charity never failed, and his heart never wanted in sympathy and love. When Judge Orvis' death was announced a gloom spread over the community that clearly indicated how deeply the great loss was felt by those who best knew him and who were able to appreciate his great worth.

In April, 1856, Judge Orvis was married to Caroline E. Atwood, of Chester county. Their happy union was blessed with five children, one of them died in infancy. His bereaved widow and four children survive to mourn their great loss: Ellis L. Orvis, who has for some years been connected with his father in the practice of the law; Jennie, married to A. E. Canfield, residing at Jenkintown, Pa; Anna, married Harry Keller, Esq; and Caroline A. Orvis, at home.

A special memorial service will be held in the court house this Thursday morning at 10 o'clock in honor of the late John H. Orvis deceased. The public in general are invited to attend.

A SUDDEN DEATH.

J. W. MOORE SUMMONED TO REST.

An Intelligent Citizen.—Tragic Death of Perry Condo at Jacksonville, on Monday Morning.

On Tuesday morning at about two o'clock John W. Moore, one of Bellefonte's well known citizens, expired suddenly in bed, which was due to heart failure. On Monday Mr. Moore went down Nittany Valley, on the new railroad, and spent the day hunting pheasants in the mountains. It is thought that he became chilled riding back on the train and that caused the sudden death during the night.

Mr. Moore was 67 years of age, and for a long period conducted a photograph studio at this place. He was a fine artist and did excellent work. In addition to his profession he was a persistent student and spent much time in scientific researches. He had a good knowledge of chemistry, both in theory and practice. Astronomy was a favorite study for him and so was geology. He also displayed talent as a musician and composer. He devoted much of his spare time to these branches of learning, and was on general topics a very intelligent man.

His photograph gallery was destroyed by fire several years ago on Allegheny street. Since then he has been engaged in the grocery business on Howard street. He leaves a wife and three children—Charles, Bernice and Aurora. The interment occurs this Thursday forenoon.

A Tragic Death.

The people in the vicinity of Jacksonville, Marion township, were horrified on Monday noon to hear of the death of Mr. Perry Condo, a well known and respected citizen of that community who lived on his farm about one mile west of that village.

On Monday morning the members of the family arose as usual, and after breakfast it was arranged that they finish husking corn. Mr. Condo dressed in his working clothes and was ready to go to the field. Mrs. Condo also agreed to help in the corn field.

When they started for the field Mr. Condo told his wife to go on and that he would soon follow. She husked corn until noon but her husband did not make his appearance. When she returned to the house she could not learn anything about him. Mrs. Condo then informed his brother Israel Condo, blacksmith, who lives near by, of her husband having disappeared. He made a search of the premises and when he came to the granary, in the barn, he saw his brother hanging by a rope. He drew his knife and cut it but life was extinct and the body was cold which indicated that it must have been in that position for several hours. An ordinary clothes line was used and was fastened to boards in the ceiling and was firmly tied. It is supposed that he stood on the edge of the granary bin and adjusted the rope and then stepped forward.

A coroner's jury was empaneled whose verdict was that death was caused as above described. Mr. Condo was about 50 years of age and leaves a wife and two children, both about grown. He was a member of the Evangelical church and on Sunday afternoon, as usual, taught his class at Sunday school. He was a good citizen. Always frugal and industrious, he had no occasion for financial worry as he owned his farm. His sudden and untimely death has cast a gloom over that community.

He is a brother of Miss Catherine Hershberger, at the residence of E. C. Humes, in this place. Deceased was an elder in the Presbyterian church at Port Royal for many years. He was an uncle to H. H. Hershberger, Bellefonte. Z. T. Hershberger, of Milesburg and Dr. S. U. Hershberger of Huston township. A daughter and son live at Tacoma, Washington State. —Gazette.

A Good Game.

On Monday an interesting game of foot ball occurred at State College. The game scheduled for Saturday between the Western University of Pennsylvania and the Penna. State College was postponed on account of the weather and was played Monday. A large crowd was present from Bellefonte as a special train was run. The State College boys proved too much for the visitors and easily defeated them by a score of 32 to 0.

Fire at Antes Fort.

Last Thursday morning a large warehouse owned by Mr. Gheen, merchant, was destroyed by fire. It contained a large stock of leaf tobacco and merchandise. The total loss will be about $30,000; insurance $16,000. Mr. Gheen, a few years ago, owned a store in Bellefonte and is known to many of our people.
