

END OF A LIFE OF EXILE

The Comte de Paris Passes Away at Stowe House.

HE FOUGHT UNDER MO'LELLAN.

His Gallant Services Won America's Gratitude—Twice Driven Into Exile by His Country—A Historian of the Great Rebellion.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—The funeral of the Comte de Paris, who died at Stowe House on Saturday, will take place on Wednesday at Weybridge. At Weybridge there is a Roman Catholic chapel in which the bodies of Louis Philippe and his wife were placed before being transferred to Dreux. It is now believed that the body of the COMTE DE PARIS.

Comte de Paris will, by permission of the French government, be eventually transported to Dreux. At Weybridge the remains of the Comtesse de Nemours, wife of the Duc de Nemours, uncle of the Comte, are buried.

A very large number of messages were dispatched from Stowe House after the death of the Comte de Paris to distant relatives and friends. A telegraphic message was received from a number of French Royalists, who met and prayed for the then dying man in the old cathedral of Laval, capital of the Department of Mayenne, saying: "Present to Monsiour le Duc d'Orleans and Madame la Comtesse de Paris our respectful homage."

The wording of this message putting the name of the Duc d'Orleans, eldest son of the Comte de Paris, first shows it is claimed that the Royalists of France actually regard the Duc d'Orleans as king of France. There are, however, two other pretenders to the throne of France—Don Carlos, Duke of Madrid, and General de Bourbon, who styles himself Duc d'Angouleme, and who claims the throne. Their pretensions, it may be added, are ridiculed by the press and public of even royalist France.

The death scene was most touching. The Comtesse de Paris closed her husband's eyes, and all the princes and princesses, in the order of their rank, stepped forward and kissed the hand of the dead man.

The Comte de Paris was born August 24, 1808. When he was but 4 years old his father was killed in a carriage accident. In early infancy his mother led him and his brother into the chamber of deputies, only to be expelled therefrom amid great confusion. Compelled to flee, they found refuge at Emsch in a country house belonging to the Grand Duke of Saxe-Weimar.

They subsequently joined the exiled king and queen in England. On the death of Louis Philippe in 1830 the comte became the pretender to the French throne. He was educated under the supervision of his mother, who died while he was in his 10th year. Visiting Spain soon afterward he for the first time saw his cousin and future wife, Marie Isabelle, daughter of Duc de Montpensier.

Accompanied by his brother, the Duke de Chartres, his uncle, Prince de Joinville, and his cousin, Pierre Philippe, Duc de Penthièvre, the comte came to this country, landing Sept. 14, 1861. The rebellion was well under way and waiting for heroism. Although his intentions of entering the Union army were then not generally known, he was received with all the honors of a general. He was warmly and enthusiastically received. Returning from a trip to the chief cities of the Union, he presented his sword to General McClellan, commander of the army of the Potomac, and he was appointed with his brother, Duc de Chartres, on the general's staff with the rank of captain. Modesty and obedience marked the duke's service and won his chief's respect. Associated with him as a fellow aid was General Horace Porter.

During his exile in England and Spain the comte devoted his leisure to historic and economic authorship, his Spanish estate becoming the center of the family circle of Orleans relatives. After the downfall of Napoleon one of the first acts of the men who then controlled the destinies of France was to permit the Orleans princes to return to their native country and to restore the estate confiscated by Napoleon III. Some $3,000,000 was voted to them as an indemnity for the revenues they had lost during their long exile. Of this sum the Comte de Paris got his full share, and he also came into possession of his ancestral estate of Eu, near the seaport of Le Havre, in Normandy. Later, however, with his family, he was again expelled.

The Comte de Paris visited this country a second time in 1860 to refresh his memory on the old war scenes. He was received by Collector Erhardt at the port of New York with a welcome in the name of the president of the United States. Enthusiastic demonstrations awaited the visitor everywhere, especially in Philadelphia. A touching episode was his visit to the tomb of General McClellan, at Trenton, whither he was accompanied by George B. McClellan, Jr. It was raining, but wearing a preferred umbrella he knelt with bowed head and clasped hands at the foot of the grave, engaged in silent prayer.

With his death his royal pretensions fall to the inheritance of his oldest son, Louis Philippe Robert, Duc d'Orleans, who accompanied the count on his second visit to this country, and was arrested a few years ago for returning to France in defiance of the expulsion act. His eldest daughter is queen of Portugal.

Stage Coach Held Up.

PHREMY, Ariz., Sept. 15.—Word has reached here that a stage was held up seven miles south of Congress by two masked highwaymen. Six passengers were in the coach. They were relieved of all their valuables, the bandits securing $500 in coin. Officers are in pursuit of the robbers.

ITEMS OF STATE NEWS.

Matters of Interest from All Over the Commonwealth.

CLARION, Pa., Sept. 11.—W. F. Collier & Co., general storekeepers at St. Petersburg, were robbed of $70,000 in bonds, notes and cash.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 11.—The Prison Warden's association of the United States is in session in this city with wardens from all the prominent institutions in the country in attendance. Prison discipline was the principal topic of discussion yesterday.

WEST CHESTER, Pa., Sept. 10.—A lamp exploded at Rocky Hill, in the meeting of the J. O. U. A. M. A number of new members were being initiated. John Davis was so badly burned that he is now in the hospital, and Joseph Matlack and Frank Green were also badly scorched.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Sept. 10.—Elmer Freehafer, a brakeman employed at Cressona, while attempting to board an engine on which he worked, fell under the wheels. Both legs were severely crushed. His right leg was hurt so badly that amputation above the ankle was necessary.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 10.—Agents of the postal department arrested Anthony Kindrick, Tom Bargo and Max Bargo at Aldon. They are charged with breaking into a number of postoffices in Luzerne, Columbia and other counties. The prisoners were brought to Wilkesbarre and lodged in jail.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 11.—Mrs. Eleanor Scott, 70 years old, of Marysville, Mo., accidentally stepped off the Pullman vestibule of an incoming train yesterday and was brought to pieces. It was her daughter's bridal tour and the party was coming to the city to see the encampment and visit relatives.

SUNBURY, Pa., Sept. 11.—Clara Johnson, aged 4 years, was instantly killed by a Pennsylvania engine at Thirtieth and Market crossing here yesterday afternoon. She was going on an errand and walked on the track in front of the engine. The engine ran across her spine, cutting the body in twain.

ALTOONA, Pa., Sept. 10.—Bookkeeper C. L. Buffington, of the Baltimore Produce company, this city, was sent to jail on the charge of embezzling $300. His plan was to alter the deposit slip when on his way to bank, abstracting $10 or $20 on each trip. He is a married man and lives at Tyrone.

READING, Pa., Sept. 12.—Harry Ash and Henry Wertz, both young men, were arrested here, charged with robbing the residence of Mrs. E. P. Stewart, while she was away spending the summer. They got jewelry and cash worth $700. Some of the goods were found buried under a tree on the outskirts of the city.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Sept. 11.—David Swager, a German farm hand, was found hanging by a horse halter in a barn at Collegeville yesterday afternoon, having committed suicide while despondent over having no employment. He was 35 years of age, and was employed about the neighborhood sometimes.

YORK, Pa., Sept. 10.—Samuel Keller, youngest son of Joseph Keller, mounted a horse and started to a field to drive the cattle home. While riding at a rapid rate the horse made a sudden stop, throwing young Keller headlong, striking his head on a large stone. He is dangerously and possibly fatally injured.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., Sept. 11.—John Reed, a carpenter, aged 24 years, of Snydertown, fell from the top of the Patterson breaker, a distance of forty feet, and crushed his head and broke his neck. Despite his terrible injuries, however, he was restored to consciousness and lived nearly two hours. He was married two months ago.

LOCK HAVEN, Pa., Sept. 10.—A fatal and frightful collision occurred on the Philadelphia and Erie railroad about two miles west of this city. Two men were killed and nine injured. Those killed were: J. P. Shehan, married, aged 59 years; David F. Forsht, single, aged 30. The collision was between a freight train and a work train, which was backing. The caboose was filled with the work train crew and was shattered to pieces.

CHESTER, Pa., Sept. 8.—The largest steel plate ever rolled, not only in this country, but in the world, was turned out on Thursday in this city by the Wellman Iron and Steel works. The dimensions of the plate are 460 inches long by 130 inches wide and 1 1/2 inches thick. It is intended as a rudder plate for one of the new "ocean greyhounds" contracted for by the International Navigation company with the Messrs. Cramp, the Philadelphia shipbuilders.

HAZLETON, Pa., Sept. 12.—Private cablegrams received in this city from Hamburg, Germany, announce that E. B. Leisenring, the multi-millionaire, of Upper Lehigh, is at the point of death at that place. Mr. Leisenring settled in August for the benefit of his health, which has grown rapidly worse. Mrs. Leisenring will sail for Hamburg on Thursday. Mr. Leisenring is president of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation company, vice president of the Central Railroad of New Jersey and has extensive mining interests in this state.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 11.—A terrific explosion of gas occurred in No. 4 shaft of the Pennsylvania Coal company, at Pittston, yesterday. There were 109 men at work in the colliery, but they all managed to escape to the surface with the exception of Superintendent Andrew Bryden, who was in the mine at the time on a tour of inspection. His body was badly burned. The supposition is that Bryden ignited a blower of gas, which caused the explosion. Bryden is one of the best known mine superintendents in the anthracite region.

ASHLAND, Pa., Sept. 12.—Yesterday afternoon a terrible explosion of gas occurred in the Centralla colliery lines, operated by L. A. Riley & Co. George Elected was instantly killed, James Bergary was fatally injured, and John Cook was seriously burned. Two Hungarian laborers whose names could not be learned were also injured. The gas was ignited by Elected's naked lamp. His body was frightfully mangled and burned. Bergary was thrown a distance of thirty feet along the gangway and was injured internally.

READING, Pa., Sept. 10.—A case of insanity was brought before a police magistrate that has few parallels in this city. John Ziegler was arrested for abusing Mabel Bower, a 6-year-old adopted daughter. Ziegler's wife is in an asylum, and the girl is left at home, it seems, all day alone. On Thursday he went away early and the girl having no dinner ate two bananas she found in the cupboard. At night it was alleged, Ziegler came home and beat the girl with a stick until she was insensible, put her in the attic and then locked the house and departed. The next day neighbors found the child in the attic, her face covered with blood. She soon told of the cruelties.

Professor Helmholtz Dead.

BERLIN, Sept. 10.—Professor Hermann Von Helmholtz, the celebrated physiologist and physician, who was recently stricken for the second time with paralysis, died, aged 74 years.

VETERANS OF THE WAR

Their Twenty-Eighth Annual Encampment at Pittsburgh.

CITY ALIVE WITH ENTHUSIASM.

Never Before Has Pittsburgh Enjoyed Such a Scene of Animation—Many Prominent Figures in Attendance—The Fight for the Office of Commander.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 11.—The twenty-eighth national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic is now in session. Taken all together, Pittsburgh has never before enjoyed such a scene of animation. The sidewalks are inadequate to accommodate the crowds that throng them and the roadways are used along the main streets. Street cars and vehicles are almost blocked.

Governor McKinley, of Ohio, arrived here and has since been holding an informal, but none the less enthusiastic, levee, at the residence of C. L. Magee, whose guest he is.

All the national Grand Army of the Republic officers are here, and all the national and state department headquarters are open and crowded with visitors. Mrs. Nettie E. Gunlock, the only candidate for the national presidency of the Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic, is here with the Illinois department.

Ex-Governor F. H. Pierpont, the war governor of West Virginia and governor of Old Virginia before the state was divided, has arrived in the city, and is the guest of his daughter, Mrs. W. H. Svirter, of Dithridge street. He will be the only war governor of the few surviving executives of the loyal states in attendance at the twenty-eighth Grand Army of the Republic encampment.

The parade of naval veterans took place yesterday. Over 1,000 men, under command of Rear Admiral J. B. Osborn, were in line. The old salts were cheered all along the line of march, which extended through the principal downtown streets along Fifth avenue and Smithfield streets and over to Allegheny. In the parade were carried many historic relics of naval warfare, among them the torn and time stained banner which flew over the good ship USS Kearsage. The naval veterans went into their annual convention late in the afternoon, thirty-four associations being represented. Resolutions were presented asking congress to establish a college for the education of the daughters of soldiers and sailors.

After the reading of reports and the presentation of a large number of resolutions, which were referred, F. B. Allen, of Hartford, Conn., was elected commander.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 12.—Yesterday passed with fewer excitements than were expected, and none very serious. Several women fainted in the crowds which thronged the sidewalks to witness the grand parade, and a few prostrations among the veterans were reported, but such thorough preparations had been made for this class of cases by the hospital corps of the National Guard that immediate attention was given and speedy relief afforded. The police arrangements for handling the immense crowd (conservatively estimated at 750,000) were as nearly perfect as possible, and the streets along the route were kept absolutely clear for the use of the marchers.

Forty thousand men who fought to save the union marched through the cities of Pittsburgh and Allegheny in the grand parade of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Governor Pattison, of Pennsylvania, with his staff and a number of notable men and women from all parts of the country, occupied the reviewing stand in the Allegheny park, and saluted each division as it swung and passed in review. This was probably the last time the veterans will turn out in such force, as it is seriously contemplated by the Grand Army of the Republic officials, in view of the advancing age and infirmities of the members, to abandon this most attractive feature of the national encampment.

The Kentucky delegation, in recognition of his courtesies to them, have had made a handsomely designed gold mounted gavel, which will be presented to General Adams in behalf of the delegation. The gavel is in one piece, and was cut from a large tree on the Lincoln homestead, in Larned county, Ky. Engraved upon a plate of gold affixed upon the face is a portrait of Lincoln. Upon the other is a facsimile of the badge of the G. A. R. The handle also is covered with beautiful designs in gold.

Several notable campfires were held last evening, at which addresses were made by Governor Pattison, Henry Watterson, Senator Manderson, General Buttfield, Governor McKinley, Governor Rich, Congressman Stone, General Alger, Church Howe, of Nebraska; William K. Ketchum, of Indiana; Judge Hicks, of Minnesota; L. D. Woodworth, of Ohio; Admiral Osborn, Joseph B. Weadell, of Indiana; General Trowbridge, of Michigan, and others.

The G. A. R. political situation is very hot, and the friends of the several candidates for commander-in-chief are working like beavers for their friends. Indications now point to the election of L. M. Walker, of Indiana, as commander-in-chief and to Louisville as the place of meeting for the next encampment.

Judge Long, of Michigan, withdraws from the race for G. A. R. commander-in-chief. In a letter he states that his withdrawal is to prevent discord or the possible introduction of any political question.

Married on His Deathbed.

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 12.—W. J. Thompson and Mrs. Mary McQuade were married here, beside the former's deathbed. An hour later the newly wedded man expired, after having made a will, leaving everything he had to his bride. The latter had been granted a divorce from her second husband, but a few hours before the wedding, and has been living with Thompson, as his wife, for the past year. The dead man was formerly chairman of the Populist county committee, and died of consumption.

A Drunken Man's Dead.

BROOKLYN, Sept. 12.—Peter McArdie, 59 years old, of 22 York street, while intoxicated, threw his 5-year-old niece, Mamie McArdie, out of the second story back window to the ground. He then jumped after her. She is internally injured and likely to die. McArdie was slightly injured, his fall being broken by a clothesline. He is under arrest.
