A PLUNGE TO DEATH.

Fatal Wreck on the Pennsylvania Road. Seven Miners Probably Dead.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 20.—Sixteen cars of coal broke through the bridge over Brush creek at Larimer Station last evening, and six or seven miners are buried under the wreck. The train was on its way down the Larimer branch of the Pennsylvania railroad to the main line. When within six car lengths of the bridge a car broke down, and when it reached the bridge it tore its way through, letting the other fifteen cars down into the creek in a confused mass. All of the trainmen escaped, but the miners, who were on the cars going to their homes, were carried down.

Brakeman Carroll, who was on the rear of the train and saw the men when they left the mines for home, said this morning that there were between five and eight miners on the cars that went down. It is very certain that five men have been killed, as this number left the mines when the train started, and that number are missing from their homes today. After a dillgent search only three names of the missing men can be learned, these being Frank Rice, a German, who is said to have been working in the mines only two weeks, and who was a comparative stranger in this region, and August Thome and his son Fred, Belgians, who have been work-ing in the mines for the past three weeks. Two Italians are also known to be in the wreck

The body of Frank Rice has been recovered. It was found near the top of the cars, and was crushed almost beyond recognition.

Coal Dust in a Mine Ignited by an Overcharge Blast.

FIVE OF THE DEAD LEAVE FAMILIES

In Addition to Those Killed Four Others Were Badly Injured, One of Whom Will Die-The Disaster Caused by an Incompetent Miner.

WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 21.-The most appalling mine disaster that ever occurred in this section of West Virginia happened shortly after noon yesterday at the Blanch coal mines, on the Pan Handle rallroad, at Collier's Station. A new miner, an Ital-ian, put off an overcharge blast, which ig-nited the coal dust in the mine, and a fearful explosion followed, carrying death and destruction in its path. There were forty-eight men in the mine at the time, and the following are known to be killed: Michael Rooney, Thomas Jordon, Thomas Tucker, David Rowland, John Donnelly, Antonio Sattie and Mazzle Gissiedeo. The last five leave families. The following are badly injured: Raefel Necki (will die), Jose Refael, Jasper Lawrence and Thomas Morris (colored).

After the explosion there was a terrific whirlwind in the mine, carrying everything before it. Donnelly and Rooney were in the mine some distance, and were going towards the entrance. The force of the explosion drove them nearly a hundred yards from the mouth of the mine and landed Rooney on the railroad track, killing him instantly. Donnelly, who leaves ten children, landed in a gully, striking his head against a post. His brains were dashed out and scattered for yards around. His wife was the first to find him, and she swooned away and is now lying prostrated by the shock. There is little hope that she will recover. The news of the disaster quickly spread, and in a few moments hundreds of people were crowded about the mouth of the mine. Many heartrending scenes were enacted. The wives and children of the miners were frantic, and the strong men were even overcome. In a short time a rescuing party was organized and went into the mines after the bodies. When the bodies were brought to the surface many women swooned at the sight.

There were miraculous escapes when the explosion occurred. William Davis was in the entry, 150 feet from the entrance, and when he heard the explosion he lay down near the rib of the mine, and the whirlwind, carrying rocks, fire and death, passed over him. An empty coal car standing at the entrance of the mine was blown twenty-five yards.

The mine is owned by W. E. Smith, of Wellsville, and L. C. Smith, of New Cumberland. The miners charge that the accident was due to the inexperience of the Italian miner, and declare they will not work with Italians any more.

 Prosecuting Attorney Cotton and Cor-oner Walkinshaw, of Wellsburg, were soon on the ground and took charge of the bodies, and will conduct a rigid investigation. This is the second accident of the kind which has occurred at this mine. Just two years ago, Nov. 21, 1892, a similar explosion occurred, in which three were killed and seven injured. The state mine inspector arrived here today to take part in the investigation.
